U. S. Veterinarian Dies in Path of Train at Beltsville.

Schoolgirl Loses Leg Under Wheels

Score of Others Hurt; Relief Is Promised 'Sometime Today.'

Ice, sleet and a cold, driving rain which froze as it fell combined yesterday to bring two deaths and a score of injuries on streets and highways in and near Washington.

The dead:

Dr. Ralph K. Miller, 53, Government veterinarian, 4711 Fourth street northwest, killed when his automobile was struck by a train near Beltsville, Md.

Injured critically:

Miss Bertha Orme, 17, Boyds, Md., reported near death in Georgetown Hospital after her leg was amputated when she slipped beneath a train near her home.

List of Injured.

Others injured in falls and other accidents:

Mrs. Jane Carl, 43, of 1737 Connecticut avenue, fractured ankle.

Mrs. Mary L. Lyon, of 642 Franklin street northeast, sprained back.

Mrs. Teresa Edelin, 71, of 1640 B street southeast, fractured wrist.

Sam L. Banks, 45, a White House policeman, possible skull fracture.

While Washingtonians battled throughout the day to keep a hazardous footing on icy pavements, the Weather Bureau remained optimistic, promising relief "sometime this morning." The temperature, it was predicted, will not drop to the freezing point and the rain is scheduled to stop before noon.

"Southeast storm warnings ordered north of New York to Eastport, Me., disturbances centered over Michigan and Georgia moving northeastward will be attended by increasing southeast winds, probably reaching gale force tonight or Friday morning."

Transportation Paralyzed.

From north and south, along the Eastern seaboard, came reports of crippled transportation facilities, ice-glazed highways and blinding sleet and rainstorms.

In nearby Maryland and Virginia counties, schools were closed, bus line schedules were disrupted and hundreds of stalled automobiles were abandoned on slippery hills while their owners plodded through slush and ice to seek aid.

Even mail service was disorganized as mail trucks skidded into ditches and stalled on traffic-snarled streets. The rain, freezing as it fell, presented the city with one of the worst traffic problems in recent years.

During rush hours, vehicles were snarled in repeated jams both downtown and in outlying sections. On upper Massachusetts avenue northwest, huge buses, crowded to capacity with homeward bound Government workers, slipped into gutters and ditches.

Little Donald Miller was the city's first accident victim of the new year. He was killed when his Christmas sled, streaking down an

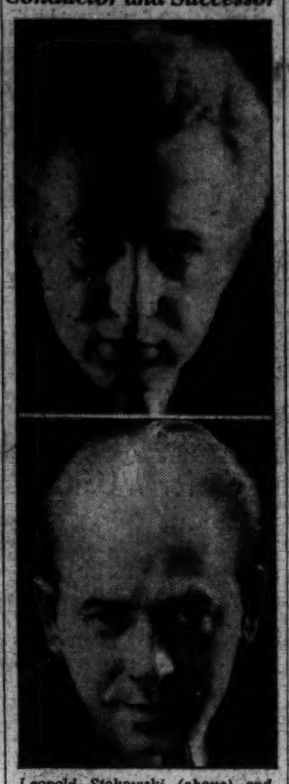
Conductor and Successor



Leopold Stokowski (above) and Eugene Ormandy.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, Jan. 2.—Leopold Stokowski, "blond maestro" of the Philadelphia Orchestra, will end his 23-year contractual relationship with that institution next spring.

Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, will succeed him.

A desire to devote more time to research, Stokowski said, prompted him to decline a new three-year contract. He said, however, in a joint statement with the board of directors, that he plans to conduct about 20 Philadelphia Orchestra concerts next season. The board expressed the hope that in the two succeeding seasons of Ormandy's contract, Stokowski will conduct as often as his research work will permit.

It is understood his work will be in scientific laboratories where research will be conducted into the science of sound as applied to music and its reproduction. He remarked only: "I have nothing to say about my own plans at the present time."

Stokowski's career as director of the Philadelphia Orchestra brought him and the organization worldwide fame and has been fraught with the dynamics which go with his sometimes explosive personality.

He will take his usual winter vacation about the middle of January and will return to conduct the Easter music program in April. His decision not to sign another contract is expected not to interfere with a contemplated tour of the orchestra.

Ormandy frequently conducted the Philadelphia Orchestra. He will lead the orchestra as guest conductor in four concerts late in March and early April.

Born Jeno Blau in Budapest about 37 years ago, Ormandy was influenced by his father, a dentist, in studying music. The name Jeno, Hungarian for Eugene, was given him after the great violinist Jeno Hubay.

The boy studied the violin under Hubay at the age of 9. At 14 he received his master's degree from the National Academy in Budapest. He came to the United States in 1921 and became a violinist at a New York theater. He became conductor there a short time later.

Ormandy, the Philadelphia management said, was released from a

Il Duce Issues Call for 5,700 To Air Corps

1,500 Aviators Sought in 'Greatest Appeal in History.'

New Scientific Weapons May Be Employed Against Foes.

By the Associated Press.

Rome, Jan. 2.—Italy called for 5,700 volunteers for her air service tonight in what Fascists said was "the greatest aerial enistment in history."

The air ministry asked for 1,500 pilots and 4,200 base experts.

Italy has expressed official regret for the bombardment of a Swedish Red Cross unit, but warned Sweden against "tendentious versions of the incident," it was disclosed.

The regrets and warnings took place yesterday between Fulvio Suvich, undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, and the Swedish minister, a communique said.

In "expressing his grief," the announcement stated, Suvich explained that the bombardment was in reprisal for an "atrocity" committed by the Ethiopians.

New and undisclosed "scientific weapons" may be pressed into Italy's fight against Ethiopia, a reliable source said today.

Italy has a vast quantity of these weapons, which thus far she has been reluctant to use, the informant said. But Ethiopian war practices may make it necessary to bring the new instruments into play, he asserted.

Air Raids Foreseen.

A violent Fascist campaign from the air, some observers predicted, might come as "punishment" for the alleged decapitation by Ethiopian warriors of Italian fliers.

It was disclosed that the bombing of a Swedish ambulance unit was in retaliation for the alleged decapitation of a pilot.

(An Ethiopian communique said 28 Ethiopians were killed and two Swedish physicians wounded in the air raid.)

Fascists asserted that travelers in a war zone necessarily take risks.

The official Stefani News Agency said the attack took place after Pilot Vito Minniti was captured and beheaded by the Ethiopians. An Italian communique yesterday said two Fascist fliers who fell at Daggah Bur were beheaded.

Leaflets Dropped.

Along with the bombs dropped in the Dolo area, the agency continued, were leaflets saying:

"You killed one of our aviators who was your prisoner by decapitating him against humane international laws, making the safety of war prisoners sacred, which must be respected. In exchange you will have what you deserve."

Observers said among matters causing concern to the Italian government was the possibility of an American oil embargo at the forthcoming session of Congress.

Authorities disclosed that Italian Lieut. Biondi was killed in a mutiny by "Six Meharisti," or camel corps troops, on the Tripoli-Tunisia border.

They described the incident as of "a criminal rather than political" nature and said it was "closed" with speedy military measures.

Bombs Saved Hilo, Scientist Declares

Hilo, Hawaii, Jan. 2 (AP).—Aerial bombs were acclaimed today as proved means of saving cities from destruction by volcanic eruptions.

Thomas A. Jaggar, Government volcanologist, in crediting definitely to 20 army airplane bombs the turning away of Mauna Loa's lava flow from Hilo, said:

"The bombing experiment proved what can be done to save Hilo and other communities threatened with a lava flow if conducted at the proper time."

Five army planes dropped 20 600-pound aerial bombs on the fiery rivers last Friday. The explosions caused the collapse of lava tubes through which the fiery rivers were advancing.

41 Hurt as Egyptian Soldiers Use Guns to Subdue Students

By the United Press.

Cairo, Jan. 2.—Egyptian soldiers were used tonight for the first time to suppress anti-British student rioters. Bloody rioting, in which 41 were wounded, apparently was out of police control when the government called out stell-helmeted troops armed with rifles and bayonets.

As bricks and jagged chunks of pavement rained down on them, the government forces opened fire with shotguns, wounding 14 students with birdshot.

The student front melted before the gunfire and the rioters fled in disorder through the streets. The police then charged them, cracking heavy batons against their skulls and sending eight more to the hospital.

Nineteen government men were injured in the student "bombardment," including eight Egyptian soldiers, eight Egyptian policemen and three officers. They were treated at a hospital for bruises and cuts.

The students were in a sullen, angry mood tonight. They invaded the center of the city by the hundreds, shouting, "Down with Nahas Pasha (leader of the Wafd, or Nationalist party), and "Down with England!"

Impatient over the long delay in negotiations for a new independence treaty with Great Britain, students are threatening to desert the Nationalist united front, led by Nahas Pasha, and establish their own front.

Violent demonstrations against alleged British domination of the Egyptian government broke out early this morning. Seven thousand students of the Mohammedan University of El Azhar, largest in the world, went on strike.

The first clash occurred at a secondary school when police fired on student strikers who smashed furniture and destroyed other property. Several police were injured by stones and clubs thrown by the demonstrators.

Simultaneously, students of two other secondary schools struck. Police, attempting to break up their demonstration, were met with a hail of bricks and streams of water from fire hoses which the students had commandeered.

Two thousand other students, including girls, en route to place a wreath on a monument in memory of dead classmates, battled hand to hand with police in the center of the city. Three officers were injured and several students wounded in this clash.

Hull, Congress Leaders Adopt Measure; Bars Belligerent Loans.

Embargo to Affect All Nations at War

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Agreement on the Administration's neutrality program was reached late yesterday between Secretary of State Cordell Hull, Chairman Key Pittman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Chairman Sam D. McReynolds of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

The agreement was made possible when State Department officials abandoned their insistence on authority to apply embargoes against one country involved in a conflict, but did not to a second or third participant. The new legislation will provide rigidly for an equal application of all embargoes to all belligerents.

The department, however, won its point that the President should have discretionary authority to place embargoes on such essential war material as he deemed necessary to make this country's neutrality invulnerable, it was reliably reported. The present mandatory embargo on arms, ammunition and implements of war will be incorporated into the Administration's measure, except that it will be made non-discriminatory.

Limits Cotton, Oil.

It is understood the President would have authority under the Administration bill to restrict shipments to belligerents of such essential war material as cotton, oil, copper and scrap iron to peace-time levels. The method by which this would be achieved is left for the President to determine.

The measure also will contain a provision restricting loans and the extension of credits by persons in this country to belligerent governments or their agencies. Whether these proposed restrictions would become effective immediately against a country going to war, or whether the President would have discretion to determine when they should be made effective was not revealed.

Details of the measure were not revealed, pending its introduction in the House, probably today, by McReynolds. It will be introduced in the Senate by Senator Pittman as soon as the opportunity affords, probably Monday.

Reaction in Doubt.

Whether the measure will meet with full approval of Senators Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, and Bennett C. Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, and the House neutrality bloc was not known last night. But the measure as it was generally understood last night coincides in many respects with the views expressed to The Post last week by Senator Nye on his return to the city.

Senator Nye on that occasion revealed he was willing to leave certain matters in connection with the application of neutrality legislation to the President's discretion, such as restricting the shipment of war material not primarily arms and ammunition.

But the North Dakotan was adamant against giving the President any authority which would permit him to discriminate against one nation involved in a war in favor of another participant. He contended that to give the President such power was to authorize him to name an aggressor and join in the application of economic sanctions. It now appears that the Administration has capitulated to Senator Nye on that point.

Senator Pittman and Mr. McReynolds finally agreed with Secretary Hull late in the day after a two-hour conference, which also was attended by Assistant Secretary of State R. Walton Moore and Joseph Green, chief of the munitions control division of the department.

Mr. McReynolds conferred with Secretary Hull in the morning. Mr. Hull subsequently discussed neutrality legislation with President Roosevelt. It is understood the President will deal with the neutrality problem in his message to Congress tonight.

Many Changes Made.

The Administration's bill has been in the process of formulation for several weeks. Within the last week, however, it has been redrafted half a dozen times in order to meet objections raised to it. The measure would repeal the existing law, hurriedly adopted last August.

In addition to the sections dealing with embargoes on arms shipments and restrictions on the export of essential war commodities and on loans and credits, the measure will contain a clause asserting that Americans must carry on all transactions with belligerents at their own risk. This will follow the line of the President's pronouncement of October 5 directed specifically at the Italo-Ethiopian situation.

The bill also will re-enact a number of neutrality provisions over which there has been no controversy, such as authorizing the President to close American harbors and territorial waters to bel-

Leaders Laugh Despite Stormy Session Ahead

British Concern Sues U.S. in Loss Of Gold Bullion

Action Says Seizure Cost Tobacco Company More Than $4,000,000.

The first attempt to collect from a Federal Reserve Bank damages chargeable to the Administration gold policy was made in a suit filed in New York yesterday.

The action was brought by the British-American Tobacco Co., which asked for $4,331,509.75. The money was lost, the suit charged, as a result of the executive order directing surrender of gold bullion. While Reserve Board officials here refused to discuss the suit for quotation, the opinion was expressed that the action was designed as an attempt to test the Government's action. While not directed specifically at the Government, the claim was against the Federal Reserve branch bank which acted as the Government's fiscal agent.

U. S. Counsel Study Case.

Counsel for the Federal Reserve Board were studying the case in reference to the law, effective last Tuesday at midnight, prohibiting suits against the Government for gold damages without the Government's consent. It was looked upon as a possibility that the court action was designed not only to test the gold policy, but to test this law as well.

The gold clause law, designed to prevent recovery suits, is sweeping in its nature, covering not only securities but coins and currency. The New York suit apparently alleges that loss was incurred because of depreciation in the value of United States currency.

The company's petition, according to the Associated Press, sets forth that early in 1933 it decided it could best protect the cost basis of its leaf tobacco by the immediate purchase of gold bullion, since it was engaged in competitive markets where payment was made in pounds sterling in gold, silver and on a non-metallic basis.

Duress Is Charged.

On February 7, 1933, according to the petition, the company paid £1,818,622 4s 10d for 1,018 bars of gold bullion, which it placed in a safe deposit vault in New York.

On August 23, 1933, the petition alleged, the company "under duress, compulsion, threats of imprisonment and fine by the United States of America," delivered the bullion to the Federal Reserve Bank and received for it $6,249,235.85 in Federal Reserve notes.

These notes, the petition declared, had purchasing power at least $4,331,509.75 under that of the gold.

Boat With 200 Aboard Lost; Wreckage Found

Canton, China, Jan. 2 (AP).—The discovery of floating wreckage confirmed today reports that the steamer Watachal, bound from Shuitung to Kongmoon with 200 passengers and crew, foundered on December 22, and all persons aboard drowned.

Authorities presumed that overloading caused the vessel to capsize suddenly, as no reports were received from her although she was equipped with a radio. Shuitung and Kongmoon are both in Kwangtung Province, near Canton, on the South China Sea.

Attempted Mutiny Reported by Captain

Havana, Jan. 2 (AP).—A story of an attempted mutiny on the high seas was brought here tonight by Capt. C. F. Bennett, master of the British freighter Baron Graham, who brought his ship back to Havana several hours after it sailed for Sagua, Cuba.

Two British seamen, William Morris and Robert M. Jones, were held by port police on charges of mutiny.

Paris 'Reveals' Points In Roosevelt Message

Paris (Friday), Jan. 3 (UP).—President Roosevelt, in his speech to Congress tonight, will demand that the Administration be left free to act in the Italo-Ethiopian crisis after expiration of present neutrality legislation, Genevieve Tabouis, political expert for the newspaper Ouevre, reported today.

The writer asserted that Assistant Secretary of State William Phillips, who is in Europe as a member of the United States delegation to the naval limitation conference, outlined the following points of the President's speech to Premier Pierre Laval:

1. Announcement of improved business.
2. Presentation of statistics showing unemployment has not decreased.
3. Defense of his agricultural policy.
4. Plea for a big navy.
5. A demand that Congress leave the Administration free to act after expiration of the neutrality legislation.

Citizens Duped In Red Attack, Gilligan Avers

Anti-communism agitation in the District public schools is in reality an "insidious attack" on the superintendent of schools, Dr. Frank W. Ballou, it was charged at the Board of Education meeting yesterday by Henry J. Gilligan, board vice president.

Gilligan flatly asserted the Federation of Citizens Associations' committee, which has led the recent attack on school textbooks, "has been playing into the hands of a very small group engaged in insidiously attacking the superintendent of schools," although the committee probably did not know it.

The board yesterday finally adopted the report of its special textbook investigating committee, absolving four questioned textbooks of any charge of Communist tendencies.

At the same time, Henry I. Quinn, board member, gave notice he would ask the board at its next meeting to call upon Congress to clarify or repeal the budget-act rider, which now prohibits school teachers or employes from "teaching or advocating communism." Meanwhile, he said, he would ask in the same motion that teachers be ordered not to mention communism in their classes.

Quinn said he had made a private investigation of several schools and had come to the conclusion that no

Bonus Passage Seen as Chiefs Join for Fight

Veteran Groups Oppose Inflation; 'Confusion' of Issues Hit.

United action by three powerful veterans' groups behind a single non-inflationary bonus measure last night apparently dealt a death blow to monetary expansion by means of the bonus, and presaged probable cash payment at this session of Congress.

In letters sent out to every member of Congress, heads of the three veterans' groups, united for the first time in bonus history, declared their "opposition to confusion of the bonus issue with any other matter," and asked that Congress support their joint measure.

The phrase "any other matter" appeared to be directed specifically at the inflation issue raised in bonus legislation sponsored by Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, whose cash-payment bill comes up for a House vote January 13. Patman conferred with leaders of the group yesterday, but came to no agreement.

Leaders to Confer.

This morning Ray Murphy, national commander of the American Legion; James E. Van Zandt, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Thomas Kirby, legislative representative of the Disabled Veterans of Foreign Wars, will call on Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee to discuss means of expediting their joint bill. Later they will confer with Speaker Joseph W. Byrns.

M. A. Harlan, commander of the Disabled American Veterans, who suggested the three-way conference of veterans' leaders, is ill at his home in El Paso.

Meanwhile, a lone veterans' organization took a stand against the bonus. Donald Hobart, commander of the American Veterans Association, which has consistently fought bonus legislation, wrote letters to 40 Senators pleading against bonus action, according to Associated Press dispatches from New York.

Bonus legislation agreed upon yesterday by Murphy and Van Zandt, who conferred by long-distance with Harlan, will be known as "The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Disabled American Veterans bill."

Vinson to Offer Bill.

It will be introduced in the House today by Representative Fred M. Vinson, of Kentucky, and Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, (Democrats), while the Senate measure will be sponsored by Senator Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, former national commander of the Legion. Joint authorship also may be offered to Senator Frederic Steiwer (Repub-

400-Lb. Dynamite Blast Opens Longest Tunnel in the World

By the Associated Press.

Indio, Calif., Jan. 2.—A 400-pound dynamite blast 2,000 feet underground tore through 5 feet of granite today to join two 9-mile sections of the longest tunnel of its circumference in the world.

The terrific blast completed the bore of the 18-mile East Coachella Tube, one of 37 tunnels to bring a water supply across the southern California desert to Los Angeles and 12 other communities.

Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and other officials pressed against a heavy guard chain at a safe distance as workmen shot the blast. It "holed through" another link of a 340-mile waterway that will carry water from the Colorado River into a $220,000,000 aqueduct in southern California.

"This is the most costly and perhaps the greatest water supply project ever undertaken," said Jones. He explained an average of $5,000,000 a month was being spent on the project, which already has cost $60,000,000.

The tunnel, when concreted, will be 16 feet in diameter, sufficient to carry an adequate water supply to 6,000,000 people.

Work on the project began three years ago. Jones said the RFC made the undertaking possible by the purchase of bonds from the metropolitan water district of southern California, which is building the system.

House Must Waive Rules for Session

By Robert C. Albright.

What may be a brief but spirited battle to prevent a night session of Congress to hear the President deliver a combination message on the state of the Union and a fireside chat with the Nation threatened last night, as the Capitol stage was set for a "first night" unique in Congressional annals.

The message was drafted, White House plans were complete, radio channels were cleared, and House leaders themselves had but one little matter to attend to before the President, attired in cutaway coat and striped trousers, appears on the House rostrum at 9 o'clock tonight before both chambers of Congress assembled.

That matter has to do with House rules, which must be swiftly waived either by unanimous consent or a two-thirds vote of members, before the night curtain goes up. Confidently, however, Speaker Joseph W. Byrns announced there will be no last-minute hitch.

Special Resolution.

For the Speaker has a trump card he will play if a partisan row develops and any member of the House tries to block the arrangements by refusing unanimous consent. The trump is in the form of a special resolution in the hands of Chairman John J. O'Connor of the Rules Committee giving the majority leader right to move a recess. The Rules Committee will report out the resolution this morning, and it will be called up immediately in event of a fight.

An apparently harmonious arrangement between majority and minority leaders to permit the President's plans to go through without contest, was threatened last night by Representative Robert F. Rich (Republican), Pennsylvania.

"We have had too much politics in Government already," Rich said, "and if I find on inquiry that this is just another political scheme of the President I most certainly am going to object."

Can Adopt Ruling

One objection alone is enough to bar a unanimous consent agreement, but leaders said it would not be enough to stop the night session. They said adoption of the special resolution waiving the rules, by more than a two-thirds vote, was a certainty.

Both houses will meet at noon sharp today, formally convening the second and last session of the Seventy-fourth Congress, with gavels tapped simultaneously in the Senate by Vice President Garner, and in the House by Speaker Byrns.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson said the Senate will recess almost immediately, to meet later in joint session with the House to hear the Presidential message. Speaker Byrns thinks the House can settle the rules controversy in about an hour, then recess until 8:30 p. m.

Senate to Recess.

Aside from setting a historical precedent—it will be the first appearance of a President before a Congressional nght session since the late President Wilson's war speech 18 years ago—it will be a gala state occasion, with members of the Cabinet and other State dignitaries present.

Admissions to the galleries were at a premium last night—only one gallery seat is allotted to each member. House Doorkeeper Joseph Sinnott was making special arrangements to handle the crowds. A colorful feature of the occasion will be appearance of all the Cabinet wives in the executive gallery.

The President's message, which will be relayed over radio channels to homes throughout the Nation, is expected to review the accomplishments of the Roosevelt New Deal, cover the Administration's pertinent neutrality legislation proposals, and touch briefly on his other hopes for the session.

Storms Break On President's Night Address

Republicans See Political Play; 'Radio Freedom' Made an Issue.

By Felix Bruner.

Two storm centers developed yesterday as a result of President Roosevelt's decision to address Congress—and, incidentally, some millions of radio listeners—at 9 o'clock tonight.

One storm involved charges by Republicans that the President, by talking at night when a large radio audience is assured, was seizing the opportunity to make a campaign speech out of his annual message upon the state of the Union.

The other, and one that may lead to a prolonged discussion, involved "freedom of the air."

Replying to charges by Henry P. Fletcher, Republican national chairman, that the President was bringing his message "down to the level of a political speech," Democratic leaders in Congress contended that it would be an important speech that the whole country would be entitled to hear.

Radio Heads Perplexed.

Radio executives were perplexed by the situation which has resulted in Republican demands for equal opportunity to broadcast. It has been customary for the radio chains to give equal time to opposing political parties or candidates for political speeches. The question which was perplexing them was: Is the President's talk a political speech, or is it an official utterance of the kind that the broadcasting companies would put on the air as a matter of course?

The National Broadcasting Co. attempted to solve the problem by promising the Republicans opportunity to broadcast from "time to time." The Columbia Broadcasting System, on the other hand, through its president, William S. Paley, asserted its right to exercise free editorial judgment.

Senator Robinson, Democratic floor leader, discussing the political aspects of the controversy, declared the Republican complaints were "an effort to make a mountain out of a mole hill." He said they were absurd."

Unjustified, He Says.

"It seems to me," he said, "that no one should desire to prevent the country from having the opportunity of becoming familiar with the President's viewpoints, and that anyone who takes that attitude can not justify it."

He said the speech was timed, "of course" to give it full publicity.

"While it is technically a message to Congress," he said, "it is an address to all the American people and the Nation has a right to hear what he has to say."

Representative Maury Maverick (Democrat), Texas., telegraphed the National Broadcasting Co.:

"Inasmuch as I believe they will do more good for the Democratic party than if I speak, I will be pleased to give up my time Saturday night, which ought to partially cover their demands. I do this for your convenience and for the benefit of the Democratic Party."

Fish Promises Reply.

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), of New York, announced he would reply to the President by radio from New York at 1:15 p. m. Saturday. He will speak from the Republican Club there. Fish will be in New York to meet with a group from the first and second judicial districts of that State on plans to promote the Presidential candidacy of Senator Borah.

Representative Snell, Republican leader, said he believed Fletcher had put the situation regarding Roosevelt's speech to Congress in the proper light.

Another Republican, Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, was inviting his friends to attend a "one-ring circus—no admission."

"It should be a great show," he said, "but I think it is degrading when a President of the United States makes an ordinary campaign speech out of his message to Congress."

Representative O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the Rules Committee, suggested that Fletcher and his associates "do not have to tune in unless they want to." He predicted that the American people would not be "terribly upset" by the President's plans.

Representative Taylor (Democrat), of Colorado, said he believed the people would appreciate the opportunity to hear the speech.

Publisher Favors Plan.

David Stern, New York and Philadelphia newspaper publisher, after a call at the White House, said he had told President Roosevelt that in view of "the incontrovertible fact that 85 per cent of the press is conservative" the President was "doing the right thing" by taking a choice spot on the air.

In a telegram to Fletcher, M. H. Aylesworth, of the National Broadcasting Co., said:

"In accordance with the established policy of the National Broadcasting Co. of making its facilities available to responsible speakers for discussion of both sides of public questions affecting the national welfare, we are glad to afford the representatives of the Republican Party whom you may select the facilities of the National Broadcasting Co. for such discussions from time to time."

In New York, Paley, speaking for the Columbia Broadcasting System, said, according to the Associated Press, that his company refused to "accept the principle that all broadcast activities of the Government are to be mathematically balanced by its opposition." He promised to give consideration to any Republican requests for time on the air.

Promises G. O. P. a Chance.

Paley said:

"After the President has delivered his address to the Congress and to the people, if the Republican Party desires to request that we allot time to certain speakers for the purpose of combating such portions of his address as leave them in disagreement, we should be glad in fairness and in the exercise of our best editorial judgment to allot such available time as we believe befits the circumstances."

In a telegram to Fletcher, Paley said, "The Columbia Broadcasting System will continue to distinguish between the office of the President and the Government, on the one hand, and the political parties and their candidates on the other, without regard to whether a candidate is in office or not."

Paley said his concern objected "to surrender into the keeping of others the exercise of that editorial judgment and responsibility which we believe devolves upon us and which we gladly accept and seek to discharge." He said he believed a demand such as that made by Fletcher would be generally rejected by newspapers.

Paley denied that the C. B. S. is dominated by the Administration and listed a number of prominent Republican speakers who have used the network.

On the Hustings

IN political circles the opinion is general that the Republicans are howling into the wind when they protest against President Roosevelt's publicity coup of addressing Congress tonight at an hour when the largest possible audience would be available to him. The Republicans might as well protest because Mr. Roosevelt has a resonant ring in his voice or an engaging smile.

It is a part of the political game for the opposition party's publicity directors to set the mimeograph machines going with statements that the President is a publicity-seeker; a limelight boy, a reacher for the brass ring. For some reason they think they are hurting him with the country. But actually they are advertising his address and giving evidence of how irritating he can be when he out-wits them. The Democratic leaders frankly admit the hour was chosen to give the President the widest publicity.

Elections are not won or lost because a President makes a speech at 9 o'clock at night that all other Presidents have made at 12:30 p. m. What the Republicans should do is to undertake to analyze what Mr. Roosevelt says tonight, challenge the accuracy of his claims and cite the omissions. When the opposition does the job it should do, there is no need to worry whether its work will get publicity.

But it is hackneyed and futile political tactics to try to build opposition to Mr. Roosevelt on the ground that he is breaking precedents. The country likes a President who breaks precedent. The fact that President Roosevelt has been a smasher of precedents is one reason for his personal popularity. There is no doubt that the President personally is stronger with the country than the New Deal. One reason may be that Americans in general are more interested in personalities than in issues.

* * *

But whatever the reason, Mr. Roosevelt's managers are certain that his prospects are not as poor as might be indicated by the Literary Digest straw vote as to whether the country now approves the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal. The latest figures in that poll show 541,845 persons voting "yes" and 828,929 in opposition to the New Deal. Thus 60.47 per cent of those voting indicated opposition to the New Deal.

Even more significant is that majorities have been cast in this poll by voters in 36 States. Aside from Utah all the States where the New Deal has reached a majority are in the traditionally Democratic South or are borderline States. In New York, appearing for the first time in the poll results, the vote stands at 17,586 for the New Deal to 33,094 against.

* * *

Al Smith may turn up his nose at White House invitations, but Senator William E. Borah accepts them promptly. He enjoyed a place near the head of the table last night at the state dinner in honor of Vice President and Mrs. John N. Garner. He came to the dinner, however, in his role of dean of the Senate—not as an aspirant for Mr. Roosevelt's job.

Reports to the clerk of the House yesterday indicated that the large sum of $1,092,063 was spent last year by the Republican and Democratic national committees and the American Liberty League. The Democratic expenditures totaled $502,924, or approximately the same sum spent by the two opposition agencies. Who mentioned "cheap politics?"

* * *

The reports on campaign contributions during the last year include one for $2,500 to the Republican national committee from Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, daughter of Andrew Mellon and wife of the son of the former Democratic Senator from Maryland. Young Bruce, while not contributing to the Democratic fund, is a stanch member of that party.

Further evidence of the discord over politics in otherwise happy families was the report of a contribution of $6,500 to the American Liberty League by W. L. Clayton, Houston cotton broker, and of $7,000 by Mrs. Clayton to the Democratic national committee.

Members of House and Senate returning to Capitol Hill will be confronted with mute but painful evidence of the rising cost of living. Luncheons that cost 35 and 50 cents in the Senate restaurant two years ago and 45, 55 and 75 cents in the last session, yesterday were listed at 50, 60 and 85 cents. Senators and Representatives will learn how it feels to be a consumer.

Night Session Opposed

they know precisely what is in the message. Legislative plans meanwhile were taking shape on a half-dozen fronts, with neutrality plans and the bonus drive leading the van.

Officials of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans will confer with Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee this morning on means of speeding their joint cash-payment bill to passage, ahead of the inflationary Patman measure, now scheduled for a vote January 13.

Other issues that will absorb the attention of members in what the President hopes will be a short session are:

Social security, with Townsendites raising a minority voice in both chambers for $200-a-month old-age pensions, but running into a stone wall of Administration opposition. Some amendments to administrative provisions of the social security act.

Appropriation Bills.

Appropriations, prime business of the session. The House Appropriations Committee has two bills ready for the House mill, covering independent offices and Treasury-Post-office. Aside from $500,000,000 more for public works, a question mark still hovered over the relief budget.

Investigations, running the gamut of lobbying, munitions and relief expenditures.

Farm relief and substitutes for processing taxes, hinging on whether or not the Supreme Court invalidates the AAA.

Bonus Approval Likely.

With the three veterans' organizations united at last behind a single noninflationary measure, rapid approval of the bonus, possibly over a Presidential veto, but without currency expansion, appeared likely.

"Of course, I can't speak for the President," Senate Majority Leader Robinson said yesterday, "but it seems to me it should be possible to reach an agreement that will meet with Executive approval."

Robinson, last of the leaders to return to the Capitol, discussed in detail the legislative prospects of the session, but registered uncertainty on the course of relief, farm and social security legislation. He spoke with finality on Townsend plan prospects, however.

"No plan similar to the Townsend proposal can be passed," he said "and pressure for passage may interfere with execution of reasonable old-age and unemployment pension arrangements."

After perfunctory sessions of both Houses today and the President's message to Congress tonight, both houses probably will adjourn over the week-end.

Shortly after the Senate convenes at midday, Elmer A. Benson, Minnesota Farmer-Laborite and successor to the late Senator Thomas D. Schall, will be sworn in. Memorial note will be taken of the deaths of Senators Schall and Huey Long.

After the Speaker's gavel taps in the House, three new members will receive the oath. Acting in his capacity of floor leader for the first time since his illness, Representative William Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, then will seek unanimous consent for a recess until the President speaks. Should consent fail, Representative O'Connor will attempt to whip through his special rule.

Representative Main Arrives.

While leaders discounted chances of Townsend-plan action this session, Representative Verner W. Main, Michigan Republican, recently elected on a Townsend $200-a-month pension platform, arrived at the Capitol.

"I have no illusions about my ability or sphere of influence among public officials who serve the Nation at its Capital City," he said in a formal statement.

"In co-operation with other Congressmen like-minded with myself, I hope to promote forward-looking humanitarian legislation that will promote the progress and prosperity of the whole body politic. I believe the Townsend plan is the outstanding program along that line."

ligerent submarines, forbidding American citizens to travel on ships of belligerents and subjecting the Nation's munitions industry to a license system.

Some of these provisions are now in substance a part of the existing law. A new provision in the Administration bill, it is reported, would authorize the President to close American harbors against all ships of any belligerent if he finds that any ship registered with that belligerent has used the American flag as its own.

Use of the American flag by British commercial ships for deceptive purposes during the World War was cited by Germany as a reason for undertaking ruthless submarine warfare. Germany contended that guarantees of safety could not be given American vessels on entering a war zone because due to the British practice of hoisting an American flag it was impossible to know whether a vessel actually was registered in the United States or was a fleeing British commercial ship.

Roosevelt Talk Jan. 19 Starts New Deal Drive

President to Speak in N.Y. 6 Days Before Smith Appears in D. C.

By the Associated Press

The imminence of a disputatious Congress and quickening maneuvers for advantage in the Presidential campaign charged the Capital last night with an atmosphere of politics.

President Roosevelt's decision, announced yesterday, to speak in New York January 19, six days before Alfred E. Smith addresses the American Liberty League dinner here, reinforced the impression that the New Deal plans aggressive tactics.

The occasion will be dedication of the Theodore Roosevelt Natural History Museum Memorial. By that time, the Republican leadership will have ripped into the President's two opening messages to Congress and his Jackson Day dinner speech next Wednesday.

Leaders Look for Cue.

He will have opportunity again to praise policies of "Teddy" Roosevelt, a cousin, who in his day caused a split in the Republican Party not unlike what appears threatened to some extent now for the Democrats.

Party leaders look for this talk, combined with the previous statements, to reveal fairly fully the hand to be played by the New Deal at least until convention time. The severity of Smith in opposition may be considered a measure of possible party bolts.

It also was announced yesterday that President Roosevelt will visit Temple University in Philadelphia and Harvard University in Boston on Washington's Birthday, February 22.

At Temple he will receive an honorary degree at the Founder's Day celebration. Proceeding north at once, he will attend the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Fly Club that night. He was a member when an undergraduate there and his son, Franklin, jr., belongs now.

Visit to Hyde Park.

The following days will be spent by the President at his Hyde Park, N. Y., estate until the return here February 27.

While the President is addressing the $50-a-plate Jackson Day dinner here on January 8, Mrs. Roosevelt will be honor guest at a $10-a-plate affair by the five local Young Democrat Clubs. Of these charges, $45 and $7.50, respectively, will go into the party chest.

Whatever comfort the G. O. P. takes from the Democratic quarreling and financial difficulties is offset by differences in its own ranks between the Old Guard and Senator Borah. The prospect of a strong Borah nomination movement only yesterday caused deferment of plans to set up a "Middle-Western Progressive committee" to support Roosevelt.

Strong Eastern Sentiment.

George W. Kline, Nebraskan behind the plans, said he had found strong Eastern sentiment for the Idaho Senator and "many Progressive Republicans would get behind him if he is the nominee."

"If he doesn't win," he said, "they'll be for Roosevelt."

If he does win, then anti-Borah men in the party naturally must confront a decision akin to that facing anti-New Deal Democrats.

Confidence that Philadelphia will be selected as the Democratic national convention city was expressed yesterday by J. David Stern, New York and Philadelphia publisher, after a talk with President Roosevelt.

Congress Today

With the crack of two gavels, House and Senate will convene at noon today for the second and last session of the Seventy-fourth Congress. Swearing in of members and the usual opening preliminaries will follow. Recesses are planned by both Houses until about 8:30 p. m., when Senators and Representatives will assemble in the House chamber to hear the President's message at 9. Broadcasting companies will relay the speech throughout the Nation. A tempestuous afternoon prelude to the address may be heard in the House, where some Republicans expect to contest the irregular night session program.

Guffey Coal Act Hit By McCarl's Ruling

By the Associated Press.

Comptroller General J. R. McCarl has ruled the Government can not require that contractors furnishing "provisions" use nothing but coal produced in compliance with the Guffey coal control act.

That statute authorizes the Government to require use of coal produced in accordance with the law under contracts for "any public work or service." But McCarl said this term cannot be construed to include contracts for the furnishing of supplies or other materials.

The ruling was made in a case where the Government had rejected a bid from a dairy company when it struck out the clause in the proposed contract the requirement that code coal only be used.

The Guffey law, which sets up a code of the old NRA type for the bituminous industry and has a tax enforcement system, is under attack in the courts.

GuildHitsPresident On 'Sabbath' News

The Washington Newspaper Guild yesterday filed a resolution of protest with President Roosevelt against the release of any important news pronouncements on Sunday on the ground that it necessitated press association men's working seven days a week.

The White House made public a resolution adopted by the Washington guild after the President tentatively had scheduled a press conferance on Sunday afternoon on the annual budget. It was indicated at the White House that the conference will be held.

The resolution pointed out the guild has no objection to release of news pronouncements with Monday release dates so long as they are made available to the press before Sunday.

It called the attention of the President to the withdrawal of the five-day week by press associations and newspaper publishers after the Supreme Court ruling on the NRA.

Group on Wild Life Holds Meeting Today

A citizens committee appointed by President Roosevelt to arrange for an international conference on conservation of wild life will hold its first meeting today.

It first purpose will be to draw up a program for the larger meeting which is to assemble February 3. Representatives from Mexico and Canada will be invited. The committee includes F. A. Silcox, chief forester, chairman; Secretaries Ickes, Wallace and Roper, and Jay N. Darling, former chief of the Bureau of Biological Survey.

Army Refuses Pursuit Planes Of New Design

Craft Offered in Competition Unsatisfactory; New Contest Planned.

The War Department yesterday rejected two new-type pursuit airplanes which were submitted in a competition for new equipment to build up the flying units of the General Headquarters Air Force.

At the same time, it was announced a series of midwinter flights would be conducted in New England by Air Corps pilots for experience in "cold weather operations."

The rejection of the new pursuit planes came at a time when observers were awaiting announcement that the Army would wind up its extensive procurement program, inaugurated last month, with a $5,000,000 order calling for the production of about 100 new ships' engines and spare parts.

New Bids Ordered.

Following a series of conferences, however, between Maj. Gen. Oscar Westover, new chief of the Air Corps, and Maj. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commander of the General Headquarters Air Force, Assistant Secretary of War Woodring revealed that the War Department would call off the competition and a call would be issued for new bids. The opening date in the new competition will be April 15.

Woodring's statement said that "not one of the airplanes submitted in the competition completely met the desired attainments of the modern military plane."

"During the past 12 months the design and construction of pursuit aircraft has experienced an unprecedented advancement permitting the employment of new tactics which greatly increases the effectiveness of the combat airplane," it added.

"After exhaustive tests as to air worthiness and ability to meet the present-day military requirements, a new pursuit airplane will be selected for manufacture and delivery to the service," it was announced.

Better Plane Expected.

"It is felt that by this postponement, an airplane of superior performance and increased efficiency will result. This will greatly increase hte effectiveness of the Air Corps in national defense," a spokesman added.

Officers did not disclose the names of the companies which had submitted planes in the tests, but it was learned they belonged to the Curtiss Airplane Co. and the Seversky Co., both New York concerns.

The "cold weather" tests will be made from Concord, N. H., and Burlington, Vt., with a base at Mitchel Field, New York, from February 1 to 15.

56 Planes in Test.

Fifty-six airplanes, under command of Col. M. F. Harmon, of Barksdale Field, La., will take part in the flights designed to test the ability of combat units to operate in extremely cold weather without heated hangars or other airport facilities. Several of the planes will be equipped with skis for landings in the snow, Air Corps officials said.

Officers hope to gain valuable experience in supplying and repairing airplanes which are operated far from their base.

"Barring adverse weather, the entire General Headquarters Air Force can be concentrated in any part of the United States within 24 hours if proper advance preparations and supply matters are arranged," an officer said yesterday.

Heart on Wrong Side, Woman Escapes Death

Perth Amboy, N. J., Jan. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Mary Krasko, 20, is alive today because her heart is on the right side of her body.

Dr. Cyril Hunter said if her heart had been on the normal side the gunshot wound might have caused instant death.

Bonus Passage Forecast

lican), Oregon, it was learned last night.

While the organized veterans conferred, Representative Patman called 14 members of his own bonus steering committee in session at the Capitol. A resolution was adopted, suggesting that members opposed to the Patman measure might move to strike out inflation features when the bill comes up to a vote. A meeting of signers of the Patman bonus petition has been called for this morning, and Patman will make a radio address tonight.

"The committee has extended the olive branch," Patman said following his steering group conference yesterday.

"Will Not Change."

"If the House votes to discharge the Ways nad Means Committee and the bill is considered, we will not change our views. But if a majority of the House sees fit to amend the bill by striking out the method of payment, we will abide by the decision and support the bill to final passage. However, we reserve the right to oppose the imposition of taxes or the issuance of nontaxable interest - bearing bonds for the purpose of paying this debt."

The Ways and Means Committee can prevent a direct vote on the Patman bill if before January 13 it amends the measure by writing in its own bonus recommendations. Such strategy may be discussed at today's conference between Murphy, Van Zandt, Kirby and Doughton.

The joint measure sponsored by the three veterans groups, while not actually appropriating funds, authorizes immediate cash payment. If it passes and becomes law, appropriation legislation probably would follow shortly. Taking into account those veterans who will not cash their certificates, and possible borrowings against the United States Life Insurance Reserve accounts, direct appropriations for the bonus need not exceed $1,000,000,000, one veterans leader said.

"Legislation Likely."

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson, just returned from Alabama, said bonus legislation this session appears likely.

"Details of the bonus present some difficulties," he said, "but conferees may work out a bill the President may be expected to sign."

Hobart, in the American Veterans Association's letter to Senators opposing bonus payment, hit at two of the veterans' groups backing the new joint bonus legislation.

"I believe," he said, "we are facing in this country a growing threat of mob rule by pressure groups best exemplified by the attempt of the combined forces of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars, representing as they do less than 1 per cent of the population of the country, to impose their will on the American people through the bringing of vast pressure and the fear of political reprisals on our legislative body."

Germany Tells League to Mind Its Own Affairs

Reply Made to McDonald's Criticism of Jewish Persecution.

By the Associated Press.

Berlin, Jan. 2.—An official German News Agency statement tonight suggested to the League of Nations that it give attention to the majority problems of its own members before concerning itself with how Germany treats portions of its population.

The statement, a commentary on a report of German immigration conditions by James G. McDonald, American, who resigned as League high commissioner for refugees from Germany December 29, was sharply worded.

Replying to McDonald's urging that the League act to halt "persecution" of Jews in Germany, the commentary raised the question of the condition of Germans living in other countries as minority elements.

"Hundreds of thousands in the World War in defeated countries, who found themselves without countries or without means of existence after the war, have no one in the world to take compassion on them," the statement asserted.

"German opinion," it said, "is that the League has every cause to concern itself with how minorities and confessions are treated within League states before it claims the right to occupy itself with how Germany, from the material and moral experience of her collapse, is rebuilding herself.

"Seventeen years after the end of the World War, an authoritative office of the League Secretariat remembered its duties to humanity.

"Because Germany finally seeks a compromise of abuses to foreign elements, people in many parts of the world think they are authorized to make disapproving criticisms and corresponding suggestions to Germany.

"The same people, however, have been and remain silent about developments, not expressly compatible with international obligations, concerning the German people from the time of Versailles Treaty up to the recent ejection and deprivation of citizenship of persons in Eupen-Malmedy from their country.

McDonald announced his resignation in New York last Sunday after serving since October 26, 1933, in "retraining, reconstruction and resettlement" of refugees from Germany.

Acquiring first-hand information as to conditions in Germany, he traveled widely over Europe and South America to make arrangements with various governments for the rehabilitation of refugees.

In a public report he said that approximately 30,000 Jews from Germany had found shelter in Palestine. Most of the refugees, however, settled in France.

Charles D. Davis, patent attorney who died Christmas Day, left an estate valued at $111,000, it was shown yesterday when a petition for an appointment of an administrator was filed in District Supreme Court. Mr. Davis, who had been a life-long resident of the District, left a will but neglected to nominate an executor to carry out its provisions.

The estate consists of the home at 3723 Morrison street northwest, and other real estate having an assessed valuation of $37,620 and personal property, consisting of cash, stocks, bonds and other securities.

Two sisters, Mrs. Martha Vaughn and Mary A. Davis, both living at the Morrison street home, were given that property, and were named with two brothers, William R. Davis and John F. Davis, to share equally in the remaining portion of the estate. William H. Davis filed the petition asking that he be appointed administrator and Attorney Godfrey L. Munter represented the estate.

Shake-up of U. S. Agents Is Announced by Hoover

By the Associated Press.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, announced yesterday a sweeping reassignment of Federal agents as a result of the resignation of R. George Harvey as agent in charge at Philadelphia.

Reed E. Vetterli, in charge at St. Louis, to control the Philadelphia office. J. E. Newman, in charge at San Francisco, will replace Vetterli at St. Louis. W. L. Listerman, in charge at Trenton, N. J., will replace Newman at San Francisco. E. L. Richmond, special agent attached to the Washington headquarters, will be placed in charge at Trenton.

Army Air Maneuvers To Test Winter Flying

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 2 (AP).—Air Corps officers today discussed plans for annual winter maneuvers of the Army Air Corps to be held over New England States February 1 to 20. Pursuit, attack and bombardment units are to take part in the maneuvers. The purpose of the operations is to determine suitability of equipment under sub-zero weather conditions.

The bases are to be Mitchel Field, N. Y., with Concord, Mass., and Burlington, N. H., as supply points. A bombardment squadron from Langley Field, Va., and a pursuit and attack squdron from Barksdale Field, La., are to participate.

Books of Distinction To Be Lecture Subject

Miss Frances S. Osborne, librarian of the Southeastern Branch Library, will speak in the community room of the Northeastern Branch at 8 o'clock tonight. Her subject will be "Books of Distinction for This Winter."

Miss Catherine M. Houck will then discuss travel books. Among those books which the two speakers will review are Lindbergh's "North to the Orient," and Lin's "My Country and My People."

Wreckage of Car Hit by Train and the Victim

ice-covered hillside in the 5300 block of Manning place northwest, was ground to bits beneath the wheels of a Potomac Heights street car. The boy was hurled into the air and dragged several feet.

At the top of the hill, watching in helpless horror, stood Mr. and Mrs. Miller. The family had been out walking, little Donald pulling his sled behind him. He begged his father to allow him "just one coast" down the hill.

The boy's father seeing the car tracks at the bottom, at first refused. But then, two street cars, traveling in opposite directions, passed. The father, believing they operated on 15-minute schedules, consented to the slide. Mrs. Miller collapsed as her son was hurled to his death. Motorman W. Lynn Moore, 36, said he was powerless to stop his car in time to avoid the accident.

Either blinded by rain, or his attention momentarily diverted to a sidetracked freight train, Dr. Miller drove his automobile across a Beltsville, Md., crossing into the path of a Baltimore & Ohio express train.

Hurled Down Tracks.

His mangled body was found several hundred yards down the tracks. the 70-mile-an-hour New York-to-Washington flier stopped about 1 mile farther to dislodge the wreckage of the automobile. The locomotive's cowcatcher was ripped off.

Prince Georges County police last night were trying to locate a Baltimore man who they believe could furnish an eyewitness story. Railroad officials said they also had the name of a woman who witnessed the accident.

Dr. Miller was connected with the Bureau of Animal Industry and had been to the Beltsville Experimental Farm on a routine inspection.

George S. Phillips, of Berwyn, Md., acting coroner, who swore in a jury for an inquest January 15, said the train was driven by Engineer C. W. Reading. J. W. Countess was the conductor, he said.

The Bladensburg Rescue Squad responded and removed the body to Gasch's undertaking establishment at Hyattsville. County Policeman Arthur Brown took charge of the investigation.

Dr. Miller, a life-long resident of Washington, with 30 years of service in the Department of Agriculture, leaves his wife, Mrs. Bertha Miller; two brothers, Roy Miller, of Philadelphia, and Ray Miller, of Washington; a sister, Miss Carrie Miller, of Pennsylvania; two daughters, Miss Pearl Miller and Mrs. Katherine Chappelle, both of Washington; his father, William E. Miller, of Robesonia, Pa., and a grandson, Daniel, 3.

Girl Slips Under Train.

Miss Orme was injured soon after she left her home en route to high school in Rockville, Md., where she is a senior. She was standing near the Boyds Railroad station waiting for B. & O. train No. 78, a local. She took this train each morning and was familiar with its schedule.

As the train approached, Miss Orme apparently stepped out to the edge of the waiting platform. The train, however, was shunted onto a siding to permit the National Limited to pass. As the train was switched, according to witnesses, one of the cars came near where Miss Orme was standing.

She apparently attempted to step back, lost her footing on the icy platform, and fell beneath the wheels. The train crew placed her aboard and took her to Rockville. Later she was taken in an ambulance to Georgetown Hospital, where her leg was amputated below the knee.

Miss Orme is the daughter of J. Homer Orme, a B. & O. station agent at Barnesville, Md. She is the niece of Deputy Sheriff Charles Orme, of Montgomery County. The train was in charge of Engineer J. H. Moxley and Conductor H. A. Baer, both of Baltimore.

The rain that descended on the snow-blanketed hills in nearby Maryland early yesterday sent scores of autos skidding off icy roads before extra crews of workers from the State roads commission could haul sand to the major "ice traps."

On the Baltimore boulevard alone several dozen cars were ditched between Washington and Laurel, Md.

Many Stalled in Montgomery.

Similar conditions were reported in Montgomery County, Md. Long lines of automobiles, many of them from Washington, were stalled for hours along the East-West highway from Sixteenth street to Connecticut avenue northwest.

Tow trucks were at a premium. Some of the trucks themselves became ditched in attempting to aid stranded cars.

In Virginia, the Associated Press reported, icy highways presented traffic hazards between Washington and Richmond. Scores of cars were marooned at the foot of a steep hill between Ashland and Richmond. In Norfolk, one man was killed when he slipped and fell, fracturing his skull. A number of minor accidents were reported on highways leading from the Capital.

Bus Goes Off Road.

A Great Eastern bus slipped from the highway near Bottom's Bridge. No one was injured, however.

Atop Draper Mountain, near Pulaski, Va., another bus was stranded with passengers. A westbound bus from Washington slipped into a ditch near Pulaski and remained throughout the day. A special bus from Memphis to Washington, carrying delegates from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, conference in Memphis, skidded from the road. The driver and 33 passengers walked several miles for aid.

City 61st in Traffic Toll.

Washington ranked sixty-first among 86 leading American cities in its 1935 traffic fatality rate, the Commerce Department reported yesterday. The Capital was sixty-fifth in 1934.

With 115 deaths from traffic accidents, Washington's death rate was 22.1 per 100,000 of population as compared with 23.5 in the year previous.

A United Press survey showed 149 persons were killed in automobile accidents throughout the country in the first 40 hours of 1936.

Husband Slayer Pleads Insanity on West Coast

San Francisco, Jan. 2 (AP).—Mrs. Amy Dumbrell, 50, pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity today when arraigned on a charge of slaying her husband, John H. Dumbrell, retired broker, in a quarrel over a "red-headed telephone operator." Mrs. Dumbrell, who accused her husband of having an "affair," will be tried February 17.

Mountain Climbing Talk.

Miss Hettie Dyhrenfurth, noted woman mountain climber, will address the National Geographic Society at Constitution Hall tonight. Her subject will be "Conquering the Karakoram." She has done much climbing in Asia and established a world's record on Queen Mary Peak in the Karakoram. There will also be a sound film, "Demon of the Himalayas."

Single Vote Ties Up Cincinnati Ballot

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Jan. 2.—Cincinnati, claimant to the title of "the best-governed city," sailed an uncharted, uncertain political course today, minus a mayor, and with the decision on its future resting with the Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow, a follower of the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit radio priest.

For the first time in the ten-year history of charter government here, the city was without a titular head. Mayor Russell Wilson left office when his term expired automatically yesterday, and through 15 ballots the Rev. Mr. Bigelow, lone Independent member of council, deadlocked efforts to name a successor.

Four charterites voted for Wilson; four Republicans cast their ballot for James G. Stewart, temporary chairman of the meeting, while the Rev. Mr. Bigelow, the ninth member, nominated and voted for himself.

Added Child Aid Urged on Kiwanis

Taking office yesterday as president of the Washington Kiwanis Club, Bynum E. Hinton urged increased activity in the assistance of the underprivileged children and called upon members to co-operate in the coming convention here of Kiwanis International.

Other officers inaugurated were George P. Mangan, first vice president; Albert B. Van Voorhees, second vice president; George H. Winslow, secretary emeritus; Edward D. Shaw, secretary, and Bruce Baird, treasurer. Hinton received the president's emblem from his predecessor, Harold N. Marsh, presenting him in turn with the past president's badge and a set of golf clubs.

Dr. Herman S. Hoffman presented 27 members with special service bars in recognition of perfect attendance. They are:

Dr. George A. Baker, 16 years; Arthur F. Steinberg, 13 years; Z. D. Blackistone and Fred W. Quinter, 10 years; James B. Edmunds, Edgar Morris, Charles W. Pimper and Dr. O. U. Singer, 9 years; Edward F. Hill, John F. Sheiry and William F. Smith, 8 years; Frank T. Mitchell, 7 years; Charles W. Easterday and George W. Winslow, 4 years; Robert P. Fleming, F. Kempar Mohler and Edward D. Shaw, 3 years; Lewis T. Breuninger and Charles F. Roberts, 2 years; Ralph C. Baker, William P. Herbst, Claude D. Jones, Harry G. Kimball, George P. Mangan, John E. Moore, William R. Schmucker and Albert B. Van Voorhees, 1 year.

New England's Oldest Doctor Is Nonogenarian

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 2 (U.P.).—Dr. Edward H. Stevens, New England's oldest general practitioner, celebrated his ninetieth birthday anniversary today by making his usual rounds—visiting patients whose parents and grandparents he had treated in the "horse-and-buggy" days.

Formerly of Skowhegan, Me., Dr. Stevens graduated from Harvard Medical School in 1867 after one of his legs had been shattered by gunfire in the battle of Mobile Bay during the Civil War.

He has had the same chauffeur for 30 years.

Holiday Excursionists Fogbound in New York

New York, Jan. 2 (AP).—Fogbound at Quarantine, 3,515 passengers on cruise ships were held for hours beyond the time they should have docked today. Included were many school teachers who were supposed to be back in classrooms. Tugboats were hastily summoned to guide the liners through the mists, while 200 customs inspectors fretted over being held at their stations.

Included in the fogbound ships were the Bremen with 1,350 passengers; the Georgic with 930; the Champlain with 750, and the New York with 460. All docked later, some from two to four hours after time set for their arrival.

2 Aged Men Near Death As Fire Razes Hospital

Cleveland, Jan. 2 (U.P.).—Two aged men were near death and 14 other inmates of the Joanna Private Hospital were treated at hospitals for shock and exposure suffered when a two-alarm fire swept the two-story frame building tonight.

Joe Petrolanski, about 90, and John Clarke, 76, were taken to Glenville Hospital critically burned. None of the others, most of whom were wards of the Cuyahoga County relief administration, were burned.

The fire started in the second floor laundry room of the wooden house. Cause of the fire was not learned immediately.

Father, Three Children Found Dead in Home

Anderson, Ind., Jan. 2 (AP).—The bodies of Theodore Smith, 35, a foreman at the Delco-Remy plant here, and those of his three young children were found tonight in their farm home 4 miles southwest of here.

Dr. S. J. Stottlemeyer, coroner, said circumstances indicated Smith had slain his children and then had killed himself with a 12-gauge shotgun.

Plans for Pan-American Annex Are Modified on Ickes' Protest

Modification of landscaping plans may remove Secretary Ickes' objections to construction of an annex by the Pan-American Union, a project which he says will spoil the view from his $10,000,000 Interior Building, now half-way completed.

John Nolen, jr., chief planner of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, revealed that landscaping designs for the Pan American's proposed building at Eighteenth street and Constitution avenue are being altered for the sake of harmony with surrounding buildings. The new home of the Interior Department will be located between Eighteenth and Nineteenth, C and E streets northwest.

"No architectural changes are contemplated for either the Pan American annex or Interior Building," said Nolen. "Several alternative studies are being considered."

Groundbreaking for the annex, which will occupy a triangular site opposite the Navy Building, is scheduled to begin this spring. Costing $650,000, it will be a fraction the size of the Interior structure. Construction is due to start about the same time on the new home of the Federal Reserve Board at Twentieth street and Constitution avenue.

The planning commission, its coordinating committee and the special committee appointed last year to harmonize building in the "northwest rectangle" are endeavoring to harmonize all three developments, Mr. Nolen declared.

3d Rescue Unit Joins Redfern Hunt in Guiana

Dutch Party Already Off on River Trip; Other Searchers Unreported.

By the Associated Press.

Georgetown, British Guiana, Jan. 2.—A Dutch expedition has joined the search for Paul Redfern, missing since 1927, when he set out on a flight from the United States to Rio de Janeiro, it was reported today from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana.

The new expedition, the third to enter the Guiana jungles after various reports that a crippled white man was living as a "god" in a little-known Indian tribe, was headed by H. van Leynden, leader of the Dutch section of a boundary commission.

In Van Leynden's company were a doctor and a wireless operator. The expedition is on its way up the Corentyne River, separating British and Dutch Guiana, intending first to contact the commission marking out the British-Dutch-Brazilian boundary deep in the jungle and near the territory where Redfern is believed to be. Meanwhile nothing has been heard from the two expeditions that went into the jungles in December in search of the missing airman.

The first, backed by Edward Sill, Georgetown merchant, and including Art Williams and Harry Wendt, American fliers, and a native Indian who says he saw a white man in an Indian village, was reported by Wendt to have flown over the village, but to have been unable to land within a two weeks' journey by canoe and foot. Nothing has been heard from them since Wendt left Paramaribo with supplies for his party. They expected to be at least a month before returning to the plane.

The second party, including J. H. Roch and G. Pacht, went into the hinterland about the same time as Williams and Sill, traveling up the Surinam River and planning a cross-jungle hike of about ten days. They promised on December 8 to return with Redfern within 100 days.

Roch claims to have met Redfern in the Indian village while he was in the employ of a Brazilian rubber company.

Over-Counter Rule On Oil Is Attacked

By the Associated Press.

The constitutionality of the Government's attempt to regulate the over-the-counter market was attacked in the District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday by J. Edward Jones, of New York, oil royalty dealer.

Jones asked that the Securities Commission be restrained from trying to force him to register as an over-the-counter dealer and Justice Jennings Bailey ordered the Government to show cause on January 8 why it should not be so restrained.

Jones' attack came a few days after announcement by the Securities Commission that it was embarking on its first step to regulate over-the-counter markets.

Jones already has challenged the constitutionality of the SEC in another case, which he has asked Supreme Court to review. Litigation arose out of Jones' original registration of some securities with the Commission, then an attempt to withdraw the registration. This the Commission opposed.

King George's Chaplain Defends Mercy Killings

London, Jan. 2 (U.P.). — King George's chaplain, Canon Peter Green, tonight defended euthansia, or "mercy killings," under certain circumstances.

In an article in the publication, Social Welfare, Canon Green said if he were suffering an incurable disease, "I would make a will, say good-by to my friends, receive the last sacraments and take a dose of painless poison in a cup of tea so that I should die with a clear mind and I and my friends should be spared much needless distress."

Woman Robbed of $10 In Holdup at Grocery

Mary Bolinski, proprietress of a grocery store in the 1000 block Third street northwest, was held up and robbed of $10 shortly after noon yesterday by an armed colored man.

According to police, the bandit entered the store, went behind the counter and took the money from the cash register. He escaped on foot.

Young Bull Is Shot Near Airport; Fled D. C. 3 Months Ago.

Tracked through the snow and hunted down after eluding capture for three months, a 6-month-old 400-pound bull went to his last round-up in Arlington County yesterday, but a short distance from Arlington Memorial Bridge.

The beast, which escaped from Washington October 8 while being unloaded from a truck in front of a wholesale meat market, was shot down by a hunting party which included Lieut. Edward Duncan, of the Arlington County police; Homer Bauserman, filling station proprietor and expert with the rifle, and four employes of Walter Brown & Son, the concern from which the bull escaped last autumn.

At the time of his dash for liberty, the calf created a near-panic among motorists and pedestrians when he bolted across Water street southwest over Highway Bridge into Virginia. There he found refuge in the wooded 200-acre tract bordering the Mount Vernon boulevard, between Washington-Hoover Airport and Arlington Memorial Bridge.

Efforts to capture him proved futile, and a legend of the wild bull grew up near the neighborhood where he disappeared.

Cincinnati Possemen Find Tracks, Seared Citizens, but no Quarry.

By the Associated Press.

Cincinnati, Jan. 2.— lion hunt at Cincinnati's back door grew in enthusiasm tonight, but not in results.

Fifty men—county officers armed with high-power rifles and residents lugging ropes and arms from .22 rifles to shotguns, beat through brushwood and tramped slush-covered hills in a vain search for the elusive beast.

For three days they have searched, and found nothing but impressive tracks, two badly scared residents of eastern Hamilton County, and evidence of barnyard forays.

Scientific opinion, as represented by the Cincinnati zoo — which hasn't missed any of its charges—is that the animal is a puma, variously known also as a cougar or mountain lion, rather than an African "king of beasts."

Two men who said they saw it briefly called it tawny, bigger than a dog.

A taxidermist who had a mountain lion said his died, and offered its pelt to prove it.

Thus the opinion grew officially that the animal is a puma somehow strayed from native haunts in mountainous regions to the south.

The safari found a small-mouthed cave today and stood tense, as one hunter bravely crawled in. But there was no lion.

$100,000 Explosion Ruins Elmira Bank

By the Associated Press.

Elmira, N. Y., Jan. 2.—An interior explosion, believed by police to have been caused by a leak in a gas main, destroyed the three-story Elmira Savings Bank tonight with a loss estimated at more than $100,000.

Apparently nobody was in the building at the time.

Windows in nearby hotels and business houses were shattered by the explosion.

Vaults of the bank, containing all currency and papers, were untouched.

The Elmira Savings Bank is capitalized at approximately $1,000,000. Its president is Seymour Lowman, former lieutenant governor and former Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury.

Dillinger Aid Quizzed In Policeman's Killing

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP).—Clyde Steinbarger, 38, reputed Dillinger aid, identified by Indiana State Police as a former convict, was seized today for questioning in the slaying of two Indianapolis policemen and more than 100 robberies in four Indiana counties.

His arrest was made by two Indiana police accompanied by Sergt. Frank Freemuth and a detective bureau squad after Steinbarger had been trailed to an apartment.

Long Faction Protests Reported 'Spies' of U.S.

New Orleans, Jan. 2 (AP).—Candidates on the ticket of the Huey P. Long faction tonight called a mass meeting tomorrow to protest against what they called the "unconstitutional" action of the Federal Government in sending "spies" to Louisiana to investigate its election machinery.

Representative J. Mark Wilcox (Democrat), Florida, spent several days here recently as a member of a Congressional committee studying the coming January 21 primary in which Louisiana will elect two Senators, a Governor and other State officials.

The mass meeting call, issued in a paid advertisement, said, it was "in protest of the unwarranted, illegal, and unconstitutional invasion of the sovereign State of Louisiana by Federal agents and spies.

Woman Robbed on Way To Bank; Loss, $10,380

Camden, N. J., Jan. 2 (AP).—A gunman held up a woman in front of a bank in Camden's main business street and fled with $10,380. All but $1,450 was in cash.

He snatched two bags from Mrs. Samuel Shane, wife of the owner of an automobile license agency, and jumped into an automobile carrying three confederates. Mrs. Shane said one fired a shot.

Mrs. Shane was entering the bank to deposit the money.

Appeals Court Rules Against McNeil Release

Move for Freedom on Bail Denied; Was Convicted in Bank Fraud.

The United States Court of Appeals late yesterday refused to order the release of Benedict McNeil, erstwhile officer of the defunct Park Savings Bank, on bail pending the outcome of an appeal now awaiting action by the Appellate Court.

McNeil was convicted by a jury in the District Supreme Court of conspiring with his father, Alexander McNeil, and Robert Stunz, former executive officer of the bank, both of whom are now dead, to steal and embezzle $50,000 from the bank. He was sentenced to serve from eight months to four years by Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

Attorneys representing McNeil, who had severed his connection with the bank several years prior to his indictment, broke all records for preparing a speedy appeal when they filed with the United States Court of Appeals their arguments for a new trial within a few days of the date of his conviction.

McNeil was ordered to jail by Justice Letts immediately after his conviction. Since then his attorneys have strenuously sought to obtain his freedom on bail.

Stunz, who is described as having taken over $1,000,000 from the bank, committed suicide in the basement of his Kalmia street home after national bank examiners had ordered the bank closed. John Cooke Grayson, former Treasury official, is now awaiting trial on a charge of conspiring to defraud the Government in connection with the collapse of the bank. His trial is set for January 13.

Boy Scouts Plan Adult Movement

By the Associated Press.

New York, Jan. 2.—James E. West, celebrating his twenty-fifth anniversary as chief executive of the Boy Scouts of America, predicted today that another quarter century would see economic depressions eliminated and crime waves flattened by a public-spirited citizenry.

To aid the Nation in reaching this goal, he said, the Boy Scouts are inaugurating a "senior scouting program." Former members on becoming 21 will be organized to fight for government "for the good of the people, not for what they can get out of it."

West stressed the point that the adult organizations would, unlike scouting, be purely local. This, he said, would keep them out of national politics.

He elaborated on scouting's plans for the future after a surprise staff meeting during which congratulations from President Roosevelt and many other notables were read.

Canadian Treaty Cuts Michigan Rum Prices

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 2 (AP).—The Michigan State liquor monopoly reduced prices of 42 brands of whisky from 10 to 85 cents a bottle today as a result of the new reciprocal trade treaty with Canada.

Twenty of the brands affected are imported, and the others are from American distilleries which are seeking to meet the increased competition, the commission said.

Novelist, Aviator Found In Desert After Crash

Paris, Jan. 2 (AP).—The air ministry announced tonight that the French novelist and aviator, Antoine de Saint-Exupery, who disappeared three days ago on a flight from Paris to French Indo-China, has been found alive with his pilot. They were found 90 miles east of Cairo, after having crashed on the night of December 29 while trying to find a landing field.

They were reported exhausted from three days' wandering in the desert.

Peace Congress Denies 'Red Inspired' Charges

Cleveland, Jan. 2 (AP).—Statements from the American Legion and William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that the Congress of the American League Against War and Fascism is "communist inspired" drew denials from league and labor leaders here tonight. The congress opens a three-day session here tomorrow.

3 Die in Fire In Northwest; Trash Blamed

More Than Six Injured As Blaze Halts Rescues in M Street.

The three-alarm fire which early yesterday morning took three lives at 1017 M street northwest, originated in a mop closet or trash basket at the foot of a first-floor stairway, Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber said last night.

After investigating the blaze, police and the coroner's office said that certificates of accidental death would be issued in the cases of all three victims. Damage wrought by the fire was estimated as exceeding $10,000 by Lauber.

More than half a dozen persons were injured or overcome by smoke, but further casualties were prevented by Second Precinct Policemen Jacob Rinker and John W. Hanrahan, who discovered the blaze and saved two women as they jumped from second-story windows.

The dead are:

Mrs. Florence Bevans, 32.

Flames Barred Exit.

Bodies of the three victims were found huddled under a third-floor window they apparently had been unable to open after being weakened by smoke.

Flames swept a narrow wooden stairway, the only entrance, and prevented those trapped on the upper floors to leave, and kept rescuers from entering the burning dwelling.

Occupants, clad in night clothes, clung to window sills and ledges on the second and third floors until firemen could raise extension ladders and lower them to safety. Those rescued were given shelter in the neighborhood homes.

Policemen Rinker and Hanrahan were patrolling their beat near the apartment house when they noticed smoke pouring from the windows.

Flames enveloped the Courembis Bros. restaurant on the street level of the building, they said.

Leaping Woman Caught.

An unidentified woman was caught by Rinker as she threw herself from a second-story window. Hanrahan caught Mrs. Irene Achouries when she also leaped from the second floor.

Rinker was overcome by smoke and was admitted to Emergency Hospital for treatment. Hanrahan, although cut by flying glass, remained at the scene and assisted firemen in bringing other occupants from the house.

The entire rooming house was in flames when the first group of fire trucks arrived. Second and third alarms were sounded in quick succession when it seemed the flames would spread to adjoining homes.

Everyone was believed out of the burning building when Mrs. Maimie Mercer, 1211 Eleventh street northwest, mother of Glines, appeared at the scene and urged firemen to save her son. She was assured by residents that everyone had been taken out and was treated at her home for hysteria.

Mrs. Bevans, Mrs. Mercer told police, had been living with her son at the Mercer home until a week ago. Mrs. Mercer said she asked Mrs. Bevans to leave when her son, Glines, refused to stop going with her.

Evidence of Drinking.

Officers who investigated the fire said there was evidence Glines and Mrs. Bevans had been drinking before they were trapped in their room.

Pete Courembis, proprietor of the restaurant and the rooming house, injured his hip coming down a ladder from the second floor. His son, John, climbed to the ground.

Ellis Anadale, 43, 1335 Tenth street northwest, who was visiting, suffered burns to his hands and face as he tried to help Miss Ruth Deitrich, 38, from the building. Miss Deitrich was burned on the foot.

William C. Pugh and his wife, Madeline, were overcome by smoke, but refused hospital treatment.

Missing Bonds Probe to End; Witness Found

Mrs. Fuller to Return to Testify in $7,000 Securities' Loss.

The District grand jury's investigation of the disappearance of bonds worth $7,000 from Henry O. Hart, one-time confidential accountant for G. Bryan Pitts, former head of the ill-fated F. H. Smith Co., will be concluded today, it was learned last night, when the United States marshal's office announced Mrs. Lucille Fuller, who has been sought for interrogation, had been served with a subpena in Miami, Fla.

Mrs. Fuller, it was said, was reached late yesterday. She agreed to entrain immediately for Washington so she could tell the jurors what, if anything, she knows about the missing bonds.

Hart lost the bonds while confined to a local hotel suffering from an illness. When he recovered, he discovered the bonds were missing from an inside coat pocket. They later turned up in the possession of a Baltimore attorney, who notified the police when he suspected they were stolen.

The bonds formed a portion of a $40,000 fee given Hart. They were reported missing almost a year ago. At one time the bonds were pledged with a Florida bank to secure a $2,500 loan to Hart. One group of the bonds matured in 1933 and the others matured in 1934, but no effort has been made to cash them, Charles B. Murray, assistant United States attorney in charge of the investigation, said. Mr. Murray intimated there was hardly enough evidence before the grand jury to warrant the return of an indictment.

Announcing the Reorganization of the

Barber & Ross Company

Which for nearly a full century has served the Metropolitan area of the Nation's Capital

With adequately expanded financial resources, increased physical facilities and greatly augmented inventories, Barber & Ross Company is in the very best possible position to serve the public.

The reorganization advantages are many and important. Right here, at hand, is to be had everything builders require—ready for the prompt execution of contracts—no matter how large or how small—and for the supply, as well, of those innumerable accessory items for which builders and the public generally have use—conveniently available now in complete assortment.

With the widened buying power, its representation of the largest and best-known manufacturers of building supplies—together with an economical readjustment of overhead, the Barber & Ross Company is equipped to give estimates on all materials and work that will be interestingly low in price—and backed by prompt service which can be definitely relied upon for efficiency. Pre-eminent in its field—the Barber & Ross Company solicits the opportunity to demonstrate to contractors and the general public the scope and quality of its reorganization service.

Tommy Touhy, Last of Doomed Gang, Captured

Police Nab Him in Chicago, Gravely Ill of Malady Thought Incurable.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—The law claimed a victory in a race with death today with the capture of Tommy Tuohy, last of the "terrible Tuohy" gang, reportedly doomed by an incurable disease.

Without the firing of a shot six squads of local and Federal officers seized the 44-year-old founder of the gang once known as "Al Capone's headache," in bed at his hide-away apartment on the North Side.

Palsied by his ailment—variously reported as tuberculosis and cancer—Tuohy tremblingly obeyed when the officers awakened him with the command: "Come out with your hands up." He did not even raise his hand toward the pistol he had nearby.

Because of his physical condition, authorities began at once to arrange for a speedy trial to guarantee he would serve some time in prison before his malady takes its toll. They indicated he probably would be taken to Minneapolis after a "show-up" appearance here. Federal prosecutors there said they would institute removal proceedings at once on an indictment charging he led the gang which robbed a mail truck of between $40,000 and $50,000 there two years ago this month.

For 30 months Touhy had been sought. Among the many crimes in which authorities suspected him of complicity was the $105,000 mail robbery at Charlotte, N. C., in 1933.

Regarded as one of the most dangerous mobsters who rose to affluence during the prohibition era, Touhy had been living in a $37.50 a month apartment with his family on the Northwest Side since October 24.

Word that his arrest was imminent flashed prematurely from police headquarters several nights ago, but the clew then proved false.

Tommy's wife, Jessie, his two daughters, Eleanor, 21, and Mrs. Eddie Ryan, 24, and the latter's husband were taken in custody along with him today.

Ship Is Dispatched In Ellsworth Hunt

Dunedin, New Zealand, Jan. 2 (AP).—A steamship dispatched by the British and Australian governments sailed today for the Antarctic to search for Lincoln Ellsworth, American explorer missing for more than a month with his pilot.

Two airplanes were aboard the vessel, Discovery II, along with large supplies of food and medicine.

The 1,036-ton ship will go the Bay of Whales, in the Ross Sea.

If Ellsworth and his pilot, Herbert Hollick-Kenyon, have not been found by then, the two airplanes aboard the Discovery II will be used for searching flights.

Ellsworth and Hollick-Kenyon have not been heard from since November 23 after they started out on a flight over Antarctica.

(Another search was being made for the missing men by the Wyatt Earp, supply ship of Ellsworth's expedition. It recently went to Chile to take aboard an airplane.)

Other Norris Fined $100 for Perjury

Lincoln, Nebr., Jan. 2 (AP).—Grocer George W. Norris, who sought to oppose Senator George W. Norris in Nebraska's 1930 Republican senatorial primary, was sentenced today to three months in jail and fined $100 for perjury before a United States Senate committee.

He filed notice of appeal, was released under $1,500 bond, commented he had "no thought of ever entering politics again" and returned to his home in Alva, Okla.

The 36-year-old former Broken Bow, Nebr., grocer, told the court he testified falsely when first called before the committee, but said he later corrected his testimony, admitting he received $550 for agreeing to oppose the veteran Republican independent Senator.

W. E. Shuman, attorney for the grocer, said the case would be carried to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary.

Dillinger Aid To Carry Fight To High Courts

Conviction Upheld, Piquett to Resist Campaign on Legal Crooks.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Louis Piquett, first target in the Government's campaign to eliminate lawyers it suspects of being criminal in fact as well as name, today elected to continue his fight against a two-year penitentiary term.

Shortly after the United States Circuit Court of Appeals upheld his conviction on charges of harboring a Dillinger mobster, Homer Van Meter, Piquett's counsel disclosed he would carry the case to the United States Supreme Court if necessary.

"We expect to file a petition for a re-hearing," said John Elliott Byrne, attorney for Piquett. "If that is denied, we will then appeal to the Supreme Court."

Piquett, free on $20,000 bond, could not be reached for comment.

He was indicted for harboring John Dillinger shortly after the Government stressed the necessity of ridding the legal profession of barristers who rendered extra-legal aid to public enemies. Tried last January, he won acquittal on his plea that his relations with Dillinger were those of lawyer and client.

Several months later he was convicted of harboring Dillinger's aid, Van Meter. He was sentenced to two years in prison and to pay a $10,000 fine.

In his appeal, Piquett argued he was tried twice for what amounted to one breach of the law. The Appelate Court held the trials were based on "separate and distinct offenses."

The prosecution charged him with arranging a $3,000 face-lifting operation for Dillinger on May 28, 1934, and $5,000 worth of the same surgery for Van Meter six days later.

The State Supreme Court was expected to make a decision in the disbarment case against Piquett at its February session. C. P. Denning, secretary of the Chicago Bar Association, said the grievance committee had recommended the disbarment on the strength of Piquett's conviction for sheltering Van Meter.

Convict Caught After Guard's Murder in Taxi

Prisoner Says Companion Shot Official After Court Hearing.

By the United Press.

Providence, R. I., Jan. 2.—Antonio Repucci, one of two fugitive Massachusetts State prison convicts sought in connection with the taxi-cab slaying in Boston more than a week ago of a prison guard, was captured at gunpoint in a bus terminal here late today.

Repucci and Edward Guarnelli, both of whom had been serving 10 to 12 years for burglary and larceny, had been sought since December 23 for the slaying of Walter R. Doucette, 43-year-old father of six children.

Doucette was fatally shot in Boston's north end while returning the desperadoes to State prison from a Dedham court. Guarnelli is still at large.

Seized Near Bus.

He had been trailed by Boston police since Tuesday night when it was learned he had left Franklin, Mass., presumably to visit relatives or friends.

After his capture, Repucci waived extradition and was brought back to Boston to face trial on a first degree murder charge. The convict readily admitted his identity, but denied firing the shot which killed Doucette. "Eddie (Guarnelli) did it," police quoted him as saying.

The guard, overpowered by the desperadoes and shot with his own service pistol which later was discarded in an Everett (Mass.) cafe by Repucci, died at a Boston hospital several hours later of an abdominal wound.

Indictment Returned.

Coincidentally, Repucci was captured several hours after a Boston grand jury had returned a first-degree murder indictment against him and Guarnelli.

Authorities said Repucci had been driven here in an automobile New Year Eve and had been under constant surveillance since that time by Boston and local police.

Repucci, it was said, realized it was getting "too hot" for him to remain in Providence and was about to flee from the city when captured.

He, together with his confederate, had been sought in eastern Massachusetts, northern New England and Cranston. Search even had extended to Norfolk, Va., when it was believed the fugitives had stowed away on a steamer.

Army Air Corps Rejects Bids for Pursuit Planes

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 2 (AP).—The Army Air Corps today announced bids on two types of pursuit planes by the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., and Alexander de Seversky, Farmington, Long Island, were rejected.

No reason for the rejection was given. Both planes submitted by the manufacturers underwent rigid tests and were the subject of a conference by a special pursuit plane board, which met here last October.

April 15 was set for submission on new bids for pursuit planes for Air Corps contracts.

Planes Scour California Air Route for Lieut. John T. Helme.

By the Associated Press.

March Field, Riverside, Calif., Jan. 2.—Mountains and deserts of southern California were searched today for Lieut. John T. Helms, who vanished Monday flying an Army pursuit plane from San Francisco Bay to this post.

Among those anxiously awaiting word was Toby Wing, blonde movie actress, in Chicago, who corroborated reports of an engagement, saying she and Helms "had an understanding about marriage for months."

Lieut. Helms, 26, is one of the most popular officers of the Headquarters Post here of the first wing, G. H. Q. Air Force.

For three days squadrons of airplanes and an Army blimp from Sunnyvale, Calif., have been flying over the route he was believed to have taken, the San Joaquin Valley, via Fresno and Bakersfield, across the Mojave Desert and the San Bernardino Mountains. A thousand men from Civilian Conservation camps in southern California were ordered to search the mountains and lonely desert stretches.

Plant Matter Makes Energy, Science Told

Specimens Gain Weight When Sealed; Evolution Thought Speeded.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, Jan. 2.—New proof that the energy of sunlight is transformed into solid matter was presented today to the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Dr. Earle Augustus Spessard, of Hendrix College, Conway, Ark., told association members of an experiment in which green plants, sealed, so they could obtain no plant food, in an airtight glass tube for 10 months gained weight as a result of having been exposed to sunlight.

Conversion of matter into energy is a commonplace, as in the burning of coal to heat a building, he said. The reverse process, making of matter from energy, is, however, a question in dispute among scientists. United States Department of Agriculture chemists have worked out a few of the processes by which plants grow but have not yet proved the actual creation of matter.

Dr. Spessard emphasized that he did not want to claim definite proof of such creation, which would substantiate recent theories that the universe is deathless. His results showed definitely, however, that plants receiving no other stimulus except sunlight actually gained weight, he said.

To See in Dark.

Science today gave man an eye to see in the dark—a foot-long vacuum tube on which the invisible infra-red and ultra-violet rays that fill the air form a visible, living, moving, continuous image.

The new tube was shown for the first time at a general meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by its discoverers and inventors, Dr. V. K. Zworykin and Dr. George A. Morton, of the Radio Corporation of America laboratories.

They have realized one of man's oldest and apparently most impossible dreams. Briefly, they have taken beams of electrons and focused them just as the lenses of the human eye focus light. Like light, the electrons carry optical images.

Then, inasmuch as the eye cannot see even focused electrons, the two scientists have made a mechanical retina which sees the electron images exactly as the retina of the eye sees images in light.

Round Glass Sheet.

This mechanical retina is a round sheet of glass, 9 inches in diameter. Over it is spread a fluorescent chemical which converts the electron images into visible images in ordinary light.

The tube, including its artificial retina, is inclosed in a telescope, about the size of a large camera. The telescope is pointed at objects in the usual manner. The observer looking into its receiving end sees the artificial retina and thereon the scene brought in on the invisible rays. This scene is greenish-black and white, without other colors. But it is as sharp and distinct as visible light.

This first telescope is only a comparatively crude demonstration machine to show science that another "insoluble" problem has been solved.

Nevertheless, many practical applications appear to be immediately realizable. An airplane with such a telescope could guide itself into a secret landing field by an infra-red, or black light, beacon, so dark as to be invisible to persons near it on the field.

The infra-red rays make it possible to see some distance into living tissues, particularly the human body. With an infra-red microscope a physician could look directly at the blood running through veins and arteries about an inch below the skin.

Evolution "Speed-Up.

A possibility that evolution can be speeded up in man was suggested today to members of the association by Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

One of the world's foremost paleontologists, Dr. Merriam suggested in his address as president of the American Society of Naturalists that a more complete knowledge of the physical and biological laws of science might make it possible to "accelerate evolution."

Scientists must conclude that if evolution is to stop where it is that man must reconcile himself to sacrificing his liberty in exchange for equality and efficiency in human relations, Dr. Merriam declared, adding his belief that it was doubtful if such a sacrifice would be tolerated.

New Deal Hailed.

The New Deal was hailed today before the association as an inevitable social revolution growing out of maladjustments of society.

Just as Marquess of Queensberry rules made prizefighting a fair game, so are new economic rules for business bringing about an era of more equitable competition, Dr. Joseph Mayer, of the Brookings Institution, Washington, told the economics section of the association.

Dr. Edwin Grant Conklin, Princeton University biologist, today was elected president of the association for 1937.

Dr. Conklin, who did not attend the convention, will take office in December, succeeding Dr. Karl Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Fourteen vice presidents were also chosen, one for each of the divisions of the association.

Heads Air Station.

LIEUT. COMDR. KNEFLER McGINNIS.

'Crack' Pilot Will Command Anacostia Post

Lieut. Comdr. McGinnis to Take Over Station Until Next Spring.

Lieut. Comdr. Knefler McGinnis, crack long-distance pilot and holder of a number of world records, was detailed yesterday to command the Naval Air Station at Anacostia until next spring.

As leader of a squadron of the Navy's flying boats, McGinnis pioneered the Pacific crossing by flying from San Francisco to Honolulu in January, 1934.

In his new post here he will succeed Commander Alfred Montgomery, who has been ordered to duty on the staff of Vice Admiral Henry V. Butler, commander of aircraft of the battle force.

Montgomery has been in command at Anacostia since July, 1934. Prior to that he was attached to the office of the Chief of Naval Operations in the Navy Department. Born in Omaha, Nebr., in 1891, Commander Montgomery entered the Naval Academy in 1908.

A native of Indianapolis, Ind., Lieut. Comdr. McGinnis went to Annapolis in 1912. He was on duty in the Bureau of Aeronautics from 1921 to 1924.

Stokowski

Outwardly there was no indication of unfriendliness such as marked Stokowski's threat to quit a year ago. At that time he cited "deep-lying differences" between himself and the board of directors. His announced resignation, later withdrawn, caused prolonged controversy and a reorganization of the orchestra's management.

His personality frequently exercised itself at concerts. He has been known to chide his auditors for being tardy and for their applause, although recently he smilingly acknowledged such applause, saying he was pleased because it was spontaneous.

Stokowski, who long has felt that a symphony orchestra should be heard and not seen, made the experiment tonight.

He took his musicians out of the shell in the Academy of Music and put them behind it. The ballet for Igor Stravinsky's "Rite of Spring," occupied the stage.

Drapes and hangings concentrated the sound behind the shell. Three sensitive "velocity" type microphones with as many amplifiers were installed. These were connected directly with giant sound projectors concealed behind the cyclorama on the stage so they were invisible to the audience.

The purpose of setting up three individual channels for the transmission of the sound was to provide the full tone color perspective of the large symphony orchestra. It produced, too, some of the mass tonal effects for which Conductor Stokowski has been striving.

Prosecution Ends Case In Morro Castle Trial

New York, Jan. 2 (AP).—The Government rested today in its prosecution of Acting Capt. William F. Warms and others for alleged negligence in connection with the burning of the liner Morro Castle with a loss of 124 lives. The jury was excused until next Monday. The trial began November 12 and the Government called 86 witnesses.

The last witness, Carmine S. Bellino, accountant and special Department of Justice agent, testified that, according to the records, 134 of 231 members of the Morro Castle's crew were apparently not assigned to fire stations on the vessel.

Post's Attitude On Lindberghs Meets Acclaim

Commendation of The Washington Post's decision to print nothing further regarding the private lives of the Lindberghs was expressed yesterday in a series of brief interviews with persons prominent on Capitol Hill and in educational, church and civic affairs of Washington.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, said:

"I approve most heartily of The Post's stand on this matter. It has set an example every newspaper should follow. The press has become an inquisitor, prying into the affairs of everyone. The way it hounded the Lindberghs certainly should be condemned."

Most Gracious Action.

Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, in commenting on The Post's policy in regard to the famous flier and his family, said:

"Your action is one of the most gracious things journalism could do. It's about time the wishes of that man (Lindbergh) and his family should be respected. He has gone to England to get away from all this because of his baby. He wants that little baby to become a typical American boy, not a rich man's son. Again let me compliment The Post on its decision. I wish papers all over the world would make a similar one."

Senator Joseph T. Robinson (Democrat), of Arkansas, declared:

"I heartily approve of The Post's attitude. Undoubtedly the Lindberghs have been greatly harassed by the actions of publicity agents. It seems to me their troubles have been augmented thereby. The Post has taken a wise position and a very human one."

Entitled to Own Lives.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of the Diocese of Washington, said:

"The Lindberghs certainly should be permitted to live their lives unhindered."

Representative Florence P. Kahn (Republican), of California, in praising the decision of The Post, said:

"That stand should have been taken months ago by every newspaper. It would have saved the Lindberghs many heartaches. They are entitled to that much consideration."

Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, declared:

"It was exactly the thing to do and I commend The Post for it. It would be a great blessing for the Lindbergh family if all the papers would do the same thing."

Commended by Randolph.

Representative Jennings Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, said he wanted to commend The Post for its attitude, and added:

"I believe the American people feel strongly on this matter, especially in view of the developments and tragedy in the Lindbergh home and that the policy The Post has adopted will be followed by others."

Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, pastor of the First Baptist Church and executive secretary of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches, in stating his "hearty approval" of The Post's stand, said:

"It is the logical course to pursue if the Lindberghs really desire not to be noticed. It seems to me that in the past the newspapers have adopted a most unfortunate procedure, but I hope now they all will follow a more fortunate one so the flier and his family may secure the privacy they seem to desire."

Shock to Sensibilities.

Miss Bertie Backus, assistant superintendent of schools in charge of character education, said, in referring to The Post's policy concerning the Lindberghs:

"It's a wonderful thing. I'm only sorry it comes so late. It's too bad we've had to have this shock (voluntary exile of the Lindberghs) to our pride and sensibilities to bring us to this awakening."

Thomas E. Lodge, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said:

"Col. Lindbergh is a national hero. The Lindberghs and the Morrows are highly regarded and their activities create current news in which the public is interested. It is difficult to distinguish between personal and scientific items, but the families are entitled to a quiet and peaceful life while not engaged in scientific or aviation pursuits. The Post's assistance to the families in this respect is admirable."

Idea Called Good.

Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner, in commenting on The Post's attitude toward the Lindberghs' private lives, said he "believes the idea is a good one."

Representative Hatton Sumners (Democrat), of Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, scored the press "for keeping that man (Lindbergh) disturbed when he is only trying to lead a normal life." He found much to commend in The Post's attitude, saying:

"It is never too late to try to right things. Throughout the whole affair Lindbergh has acted sensibly, while the American people have acted foolishly."

H. Winship Wheatley, sr., president of the District Bar Association, in approving The Post's stand, said:

"Those poor people (the Lindberghs) have suffered enough through publicity."

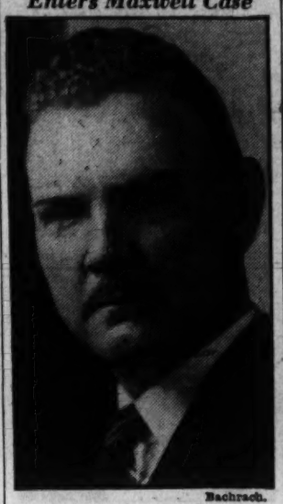
Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Force, said he "commends very highly" The Post's decision to leave the flier and his family in peace and advised that "too much publicity is sometimes harmful."

Italian Defeat in Africa May Jeopardize Austria

Vienna, Jan. 2 (AP).—The newspaper Heimatschuetzler of Vice Chancellor Ernst von Starhemberg today said a defeat of Italy in Africa might throw Austria into the hands of either Russia or Germany. Such a result would be catastrophic for Europe, the paper asserted.

This viewpoint is reflected by the impressio n given in semiofficial circles that Austria these days is largely the helpless victim of external forces quarreling about her.

Enters Maxwell Case



Bachrach.

CHARLES HENRY SMITH.

Attorneys Chart Campaign to Save Virginia Girl From Prison.

By Virginia Lee Warren

Charles Henry Smith, an outstanding Virginia criminal lawyer, has been retained by The Washington Post to attempt to gain a new trial for Edith Maxwell, the 21-year-old school teacher of Pound, Va., who faces a 25-year term in prison for the alleged killing of her father.

Mr. Smith has a brilliant record of accomplishments before the Virginia Bar, never having lost any of the 34 first degree murder cases he defended and having obtained acquittals in 30 of them.

The most sensational case in which he participated was the defense of Herbert Campbell, a Virginia real estate dealer, who was tried in the District for the murder of Mary Baker, a Navy Department clerk.

Two Weeks' Court Fight.

In that case Smith had as his adversary William H. Collins, one of the most successful prosecutors who practiced before the District courts. Each went into the case with a record of 20 consecutive wins; and Smith finally emerged victorious after a two weeks' court battle.

Smith conferred in Richmond yesterday with Earl Maxwell, the brother of the girl, and M. J. Fulton, one of the defense attorneys, and they perfected the preliminary stages of future strategy, which they hope will result in a new trial for the girl.

The selection of Smith was made after a canvass of outstanding Virginia lawyers. Names were submitted to Edith Maxell, and finally, W. W. G. Dotson, Edith's uncle, and one of the defense counsel, invited Smith to participate in the case.

Contributions Pay Costs.

The costs of the appeal will be defrayed by the contributions received in the defense fund being raised by The Post in an effort to see that justice is done for the girl who allegedly killed her father with a slipper while resisting an attack by her drunken parent.

In Richmond yesterday Fulton and Smith discussed the aspects of the case which they will handle. Smith, it is expected, will prepare the strictly criminal aspects of the appeal, while Fulton will handle the constitutional angles.

Fulton, who has been retained by the National Women's Party, is expected to concentrate on an attack on the constitutionality of Virginia statutes, which deny women the privilege of sitting on juries.

One of Smith's outstanding accomplishments before the bar occurred in the Campbell trial, when he astounded the courtroom by accepting a challenge of the prosecution to prove that the science of ballistics is infallible.

In that case the strongest piece of evidence was a gun admittedly owned by Campbell, which Col. Calvin Goddard, a ballistics expert, asserted was the murder gun.

Tests were devised to prove the infallibility of the science and Goddard failed to bring the results of his tests into court. Campbell was acquitted by the jury on the first ballot.

Earl Maxwell conferred again last night with Smith in his office in Alexandria. The girl's brother is en route to a distant city, to develop some important evidence, the nature of which he would not disclose.

In addition to his career at the bar, Smith also served three terms in the Virginia House of Delegates. In his last term he was Democratic floor leader of the House.

Smith was educated in Washington and Lee and Richmond universities, and has been practicing before the Virginia and Federal courts for the past 18 years.

Delegates of 19 Nations In Labor Parley in Chile

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 2 (AP).—Delegates of 19 nations and high Chilean officials inaugurated the first American labor conference in the Congressional Hall of Honor here today. President Arturo Alessandri welcomed the delegates through his foreign minister, Dr. Miguel Cruchaga. Walter Riddell, the Canadian delegate, replied.

Harold Butler, director of the International Labor Bureau, said he was confident the conference would "strengthen and universalize the work of the International Labor Organization for the Promotion of Social Justice.

Ethiopians Fail In One Assault, Fear 2d Loss

Mulugheta's Forces Beaten Back in North, Kassa Silent on Orders.

By the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Jan. 2.—Serious setbacks to one large Ethiopian army hurled against the Italians in the north and failure to hear from the commander of another army were reported today in authoritative circles.

These sources said the forces of Ras Mulugheta, Ethiopia's minister of war, which began a drive Saturday against the enemy, are meeting stern resistance.

There was no report on the movements of Ras Kassa, another military leader, who heads a large army in the north. Ras Kassa has failed to communicate with the government since the offensive started, it was learned. Emperor Haile Selassie three times ordered him to the front.

Anxiety was expressed over the large amount of new guns and ammunition sent Kassa. Emperor Haile Selassie is directing the military movements from his headquarters at Dessye.

Victories Announced.

Although the government publicly announced victory by Ras Seyoum in the Tembien area, and by Ras Ayele in the Scire sector, nothing was made public about the movements of Ras Mulugheta.

A government communique said 28 Ethiopian warriors being treated for wounds in a Swedish ambulance were killed on the southern front during an Italian bombardment. At least 50 Ethiopians were wounded, it was said, and Dr. Hylander, chief of the Swedish Red Cross unit in Ogaden Province, and one of his assistants were injured.

The communique said:

"Twelve Italian airplanes appeared at 7 a. m. Monday, dropping pamphlets signed (Marshal Rudolfo) Graziani, charging Ethiopia violated the convention of 1929 by decapitating a captured Italian aviator and declaring the punishment the Ethiopians were about to receive would be merited.

"They flew over the Swedish Red Cross at 7:15 a. m., Monday, and suddenly began an intensive bombardment.

Tent Destroyed.

"One of the first bombs dropped on the tent, where Dr. Hylander and an assistant were in the middle of operations.

"The tent also was machine gunned, and two trucks, medicines, surgeons' instruments and an operation tent were destroyed.

"The bombs were of greatest caliber and gas projectiles also were found, but we were unable to estimate the number dropped because of the confusion."

The official report disclosed that no Swedes were killed, as first reported.

The Ethiopian government issued a statement denying an Italian charge that two Italian aviators were decapitated when their plane was forced down at Daggah Burn, asserting "this is an odious lie, designed to cover an act of veritable piracy."

Pair Held in Her Death

Mrs. Page Dies; Widow of Noted Virginia Rider

Mrs. Page, who was 60 years old, had been seriously ill for about two weeks. Death was attributed to leukemia.

Mr. Page was one of Virginia's most famous horsemen. Shortly before his death several years ago he attracted Nation-wide attention by winning the Belmont Park United Hunt Cup with Gold Plate, a 16-year-old mount he trained for the event.

In recent years Mrs. Page had been living on the Page estate, Rocksavage, near Bluemont, Va. She was prominent in Virginia riding circles and was well known both for her horsemanship and for her philanthropies.

Mrs. Page was born in Charles Town, W. Va., February 1875 to Dr. and Mrs. Stephen Dandridge Kennedy. She married Mr. Page in June, 1917.

The only immediate survivors are a brother, A. K. Kennedy, of Warrenton, Va., and Mrs. Mason.

Funeral services will be held in St. James Church in Warrenton at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Swedish Press Urges Protest Upon Bombing

Government Considers Action as Indignation of Public Rises.

By the Associated Press.

Stockholm, Sweden, Jan. 2.—Newspapers unanimously demanded tonight that this country get satisfaction from Italy for the bombing of a Swedish ambulance unit in Ethiopia after the government took under consideration the question of making a formal protest.

Indignation against the bombing, which led Tuesday to the placing of a police guard about the Italian legation, appeared to be rising.

Fresh expressions were heard after the publication of an interview with Marchese di Soragna, the Italian Minister, who was quoted as saying:

"I cannot understand the aggressive and hateful atmosphere which has been aroused by the Dolm incident (bombing). Members of the Swedish ambulance unit in Ethiopia cannot expect to be as safe as if they were walking the streets of Stockholm.

(An Ethiopian communique today said two Swedish doctors were injured and 28 Ethiopian soldiers undergoing treatment for wounds were killed when the ambulance unit was bombed.

Held Retaliation.

(The act was described in Rome as one of retaliation for the decapitation of a captured Italian pilot. Italy, it was said, does not think an explanation to Sweden is necessary.)

Officials were flooded with applications from doctors and others seeking to serve in the Red Cross unit.

Prince Carl has called upon the International Red Cross to investigate the incident. Red Cross officials said they were advised by the Swedish consul in Addis Ababa:

"The camp and ambulance lay far from all troops and was distinctly marked with a red cross, which also was on their flags."

In a telegram to Prince Carl, King Gustav said he was "deeply moved by the report of our ambulance's sad fate in Ethiopia" and expressed "heartfelt sympathy."

The newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said in an editorial: "Those who knowingly broke the League Covenant and the Kellogg Pact are not likely to stop at a purely humanitarian convention like the Geneva Red Cross convention."

A communique issued by the Swedish Red Cross executive committee and signed by Prince Carl termed the bombing "a revolting act."

The Italian legation has been closely guarded since Tuesday, but police said there have been no demonstrations. A flood of protesting telegrams and letters has been delivered to the legation daily and phone calls were so numerous that special arrangements were made to cut off most of them.

Steamship Fare War Is Expected in Atlantic

Liverpool, England, Jan. 2 (AP).—The possibility of a fare war by Atlantic steamship lines was seen by shipping circles in reports today that the Cunard-White Star Line has given notice of its withdrawal from the North Atlantic Conference which fixes fares and classification of vessels.

Cunard officials would neither deny nor confirm the report.

teacher now was even discussing communism.

"Out of fear, they are not teaching the subject in any manner whatsoever," he said. "That, to my mind, is a terrible condition. Although they have been advised by the corporation counsel that they can teach about it, still when any child asks them about communism, they are telling the children that they cannot touch the subject.

"One teacher told me that in past years when children had brought up the subject, she had always taken advantage of the opportunity to drive home the benefits deriving from our form of government. Now she doesn't even do that."

Only Spurs Curiosity.

Gilligan said.

"I cannot conceive of any more effective method of arousing the curiosity of young students as to communism than the course pursued by those who have been agitating this question before this board."

Quinn asked Dr. Ballou whether any complaint from any parent had ever been received about a school child here being "indoctrinated with communism by any textbook or teacher."

"None whatever," Dr. Ballou responded.

Nor had there been any complaints in the past from teachers or Parent-Teacher Association Quinn brought out.

Gilligan, ill most of the time that the communism issue was thrashed out by the board last fall, brought a long-prepared statement to the board. He stressed his confidence in the superintendent. He bluntly said, underlining his words in his written statement, that the member of Congress (Representative Thomas L. Blanton, of Texas) who said he believed 5 per cent of the teachers leaned to communism had made a statement that was not "true."

Speaking of the rider, he added:

"To the aim, I have no objection personally. To its need and the manner of its incorporation in the act (underlined), I strongly object. To the requirement of the Comptroller General, I bitterly object. His opinion is based on the theory that every employe in the school system is presumed guilty of violating the amendment until he proves himself innocent."

Resentment over "insinuations" against Dr. Ballou's faithfulness was also strongly expressed by George M. Whitwell, board member. He called Dr. Ballou a "fine, patriotic and loyal man," and a small audience present applauded.

Before the textbook exoneration was adopted, a letter was read from Benjamin L. Gaskins, board member absent because of illness. Gaskins said he would have voted against the exoneration. He did not say why. Quinn did not vote. Other members present—Mrs. Marion Wade Doyle, Henry J. Gilligan, Dr. J. Hayden Johnson, Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith and George M. Whitwell—voted unanimously for the report.

Maurer Also Absent.

The investigating committee's chairman, Robert A. Maurer, was also absent, because of illness.

Information on textbooks and magazine complaints had been requested of the board by Representative Virginia Jenckes, of Indiana, whose letter, made public yesterday, indicated she would investigate the matter personally.

George E. Sullivan, chairman of the federation committee which brought the original textbook complaints, attended the meeting and left two statements with reporters. One said the board was defying "the express mandate of Congress" and was treating the rights of pupils, teachers and citizens with "indifference."

The other statement urged that two questioned books by Harold O. Rugg, no longer used in the school system, be forever barred from local schools, and renewed attack on the magazine Scholastic, previously used for some special studies.

103 Periodicals Dropped.

The board yesterday adopted a revised list of periodicals to be purchased from public funds for school use. Scholastic was no longer on the list, being one of 103 periodicals dropped. The list had been reduced for reasons of economy, Dr. Ballou told the board.

Among other magazines dropped were the American, Country Life, Forum and Century, Ladies' Home Journal, Literary Digest, McCall's, Nation's Business, New Outlook, New Republic, American Mercury, Readers' Digest, Saturday Evening Post, Time and Vanity Fair.

Scholastic, Dr. Ballou said, was being bought by pupils through school subscription. A list of all magazines so purchased is being compiled.

Ethiopia May Seize Property In Retaliation for Poison Gas

Geneva, Jan. 2 (AP).—Ethiopia, charging Italy with using poison gas and other outlawed weapons of war, served notice today that unless these practices are stopped she will retaliate by seizing the property of Italian residents in Ethiopia.

A note to the League of Nations from Addis Ababa said the Fascists had burned churches and were attempting to exterminate the civilian population. It added there would be no retaliation through inhumane treatment of captured soldiers.

The committee, said a spokesman, was beginning to wonder whether the Red Cross flag was not developing into a "symbol of death" rather than one of mercy.

League sources said the bombing probably would be discussed at a meeting of the League Council January 20, or possibly sooner.

Following the bombing of a Swedish Red Cross unit, members of the Red Cross committee expressed concern for the safety of other foreign hospital workers in Ethiopia.

Finnish, Dutch and Norwegian Red Cross contingents are either en route to Ethiopia or are already there.

Fairfax County Licenses Reach New High in '35

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
F. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Alexandria 43-F-31.

Dr. F. W. Huddleson, treasurer of Fairfax County, Va., has reported that the revenue from State licenses issued in the county reached a new high point in 1935.

For the year the total received was $14,079.21, compared with $10,660.82 for 1934 for the same type licenses. The new State license on slot machines is believed to have been responsible for the 1935 increase, although Dr. Huddleson stated merchants' licenses likewise took a substantial jump.

The report also showed that the revenue from licenses to sell 3.2 beer dropped from $548 in 1934 to $103.25 for 1935. The treasurer explained that the decrease in this amount is attributed to the lack of demand for the old 3.2 beer and that all other beer and wine licenses are obtained directly from the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. Only during two months in 1935 did the license revenue drop below the total for the same months in 1934. April sales in 1935 were $378.68, compared to $387.95 for the same month the previous year, and in December last year the total was $28.44, as against $71.93 in December, 1934. The treasurer pointed out that the December figure is usually very low, as licenses for the next year go on sale that month.

State and County Game Warden Arthur W. Mills, of Fairfax County, yesterday issued a plea to everyone to feed the birds and other wild life. He declared that because of the snow and ice the natural food is inaccessable and thousands of wild fowl and game die of starvation rather than from the cold. He said that it has been proven that summer birds could live through the winter in this climate if they could obtain enough food to maintain their body heat.

A heavy safe, containing more than $400, was taken by robbers New Year's night from the Sanitary grocery at McLean, Va. In addition, choice cuts of meat valued at $20 were taken. The safe weighed 1,800 pounds.

The robbery was discovered yesterday morning by Earl Smith, manager, when he opened the store. The thieves gained entrance through a front transom. The robbery was reported to the Fairfax County police.

This is the second time in several weeks the store has been entered. The first time the safe was found on the sidewalk in front of the store, where it had been abandoned, either because the robbers were frightened away or found their burden too heavy.

The regular monthly meeting of the Lorton School and Community League will be held tonight in the Lorton School auditorium. Plans for the winter activities will be considered.

The Fairfax County Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Blake, at Bannockburn, near Oakton, Va.

The Colvin Run Citizens Association will hold a round and square dance tomorrow night in the barn at Huntmere, the estate of Joseph A. Wheeler, near Brown's Chapel, on the Alexandria-Leesburg pike. Proceeds of the dance will be used to assist in paying the indebtedness on the Colvin Run Community Hall.

Freezing Recluse Aided.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Grafton, W. Va., Jan. 2.—Found freezing to death in his fireless shanty near Flemington, Samuel Bunche, 70, a recluse, is in a serious condition in an Elkins hospital, where he was taken by friends. Bunche also is suffering from a compound fracture of a thigh, which he received when he slipped in the snow while out hunting coal for his fire.

To Observe Eclipse of Sun in Russia

Underwood & Underwood.

Father Paul A. McNally (left), distinguished astronomer of Georgetown University, who will command the expedition to observe total eclipse of the sun on June 9 in Orenburg, Russia, with his associate, Dr. E. T. Kolkmeyer, who also may be member of the party, in Georgetown Observatory.

Scientists Here Plan to Study Soviet Eclipse

Plans for a joint expedition to Soviet Russia to witness the total eclipse of the sun June 19 were announced yesterday by eorgetown University and the National Geographic Society. The Rev. Dr. Paul A. McNally, director of Georgetown observatory and one of the best known younger American astronomers, will be in charge.

A point near Orenburg, Russia, has been chosen as the base of observation. It was selected after study of weather records showed this region promises clear weather along the whole path of the 150-second eclipse.

"Headquarters of the expedition will be established near Orenburg, probably at the village of Sara, which is very near the line along which the center of the moon's shadow will travel during the eclipse," said the joint announcement. "Orenburg is about 775 miles southeast of Moscow, north of the Caspian Sea on the steppes west of the Ural Mountains, and in about the same latitude as London."

The Washington party will be one of many converging upon the spot from all parts of the world. overnments of Russia and Japan have invited scientific organizations everywhere to send expeditions to their territories.

Dr. McNally led the Georgetown group that traveled to Main to observe the solar eclipse in 1932. On the coming trip he will be accompanied by five assistants chosen from staffs of the university and the society. They are expected to leave in April and return in July.

"The 1936 expedition probably will make use of four or five special cameras mounted so as to follow the apparent motion of the sun," it was announced; "photometers for making studies of changes in light intensity; spetcographs to study the sun's light, and instruments to note weather changes during the eclipse. The chief photographic objective will be the obtaining of pictures of the sun's corona.

"The corona, which can be seen extending in vast streamers of pearly light around the edges of the sun when the black disk of the moon moves in front of it, is believed to be superhetaed vapor rising from the seething surface of the sun. Recently astronomers have found good evidence that it consists largely of oxygen, the life-supporting gas of the earth's own atmosphere.

"The presence of oxygen also is revealed by the light from far-off nebulae, or star clouds, and by the aurora or Northern Lights in the earth's atmosphere."

Bar Unit Holds Dinner Meeting At Alexandria

Goolrick Speaks at Event; Police Solve Robberies, Arrest Gang.

907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Former State Senator C. O'Connor Goolrick, of Fredericksburg, spoke at the monthly dinner meeting of the Alexandria Bar Association last night in the George Mason Hotel, Alexandria. Other honor guests were Representative Howard W. Smith, of the Eighth Congressional District; Judge William P. Woolls, of the corporation court, and Judge James Reece Duncan, of the local police and juvenile court.

The Alexandria police stated yesterday they had solved a series of recent robberies in the city by the arrest Wednesday night of four colored men and a boy.

Twelve automobile tires stolen from the service station of E. B. Ale, in South Washington street, December 26, valued at $100, were recovered. The tires were sold to Thomas Helms, who operates a place of business in Fairfax County. He gave them to the police, stating he had paid $32 for the lot.

The prisoners are to be arraigned in police court this morning. The men are Robert Washington, 39, of 512½ South Pitt street; Sammie Bowman, 29, of 105 Franklin street; James Washington, 24, of 512½ South Pitt street, and Nathaniel Smith, 15, of 527 Wilkes street.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 2.—A dividend of 50 cents per share has been declared by the directors of the Bank of Clarke County, it was announced today. The dividend is 2 per cent on the $25 par value of the stock and is the first ordered in three years. It was voted in view of the satisfactory earnings of the bank in the last year.

William A. Bradford is president of the bank, which was organized in 1889. On January 9 stockholders will elect directors for the ensuing year.

Chiefs Installed By Arlington's Fire Company

Committee Lists Revealed by Arthur C. Stickley, New President.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Newly elected officers of the Arlington Volunteer Fire Department were installed last night in the firehouse.

Those installed were Arthur C. Stickley 2d, president; David Watson, vice president; Elmer J. Blackmer, jr., secretary-treasurer; Archie B. Hughes, assistant secretary-treasurer; Albert C. Scheffel, chief; William Clark, deputy chief; C. Preston Snoots, captain; Charles L. Snoots, lieutenant, and Lorenzo D. Donaldson, fire marshal.

President Stickley announced the following list of committees:

Audit—John E. Bamforth, chairman; Carl E. Scheffel and George F. Cook.

President Stickley reported that during the year 1935 the new addition to the firehouse was erected, including hose tower, boiler room, kitchen, rest room and a new heating plant. He pointed out that the goal for 1936 was a second story for the firehouse, which would house a large auditorium, badly needed for Arlington and vicinity.

The Woman's Auxiliary of Mount Olivet Methodist Protestant Church at Ballston has elected the following officers for the new year:

Mrs. Frank L. Ball, president; Mrs. Ernest R. Follin, vice president; Mrs. John L. McKinnon, secretary, and Mrs. Herbert L. Choate, treasurer.

Sunshine Circle, Mrs. Herbert L. Choate; Cherrio Circle, Mrs. Linden Shenk; Margaret Veitch Circle, Mrs. Ernest Follin; Amanda Livingston Circle, Mrs. Elly B. Croson.

The retiring president of the auxiliary, Mrs. George E. McDorman, reported the auxiliary during the past two years has raised over $2,160 of the church budget.

Mrs. Beall Dies In Montgomery; Of Noted Family

Widow, 82, Saw Civil War Hosts Camped at Her Childhood Home.

Mrs. Mary Clements Beall, 82, of distinguished colonial Maryland ancestry, died Wednesday at her home in Gaithersburg, Md., after a long illness. She was one of the pioneer educators of Montgomery County, Md.

Requiem mass will be conducted at 9 a. m. today by the Rev. Michael J. Finnerty, pastor of St. Martin's Church, Gaithersburg, at St. Rose Church, Cloppers, Md. Burial will be in the church cemetery. Six grandsons will be pallbearers.

Mrs. Beall's birthplace was her father's estate, Elysian Fields, near Barnesville. She was the daughter of Peter Henry Clements and Mary Beall Clements. Her ancestry included such illustrious names of early Maryland's history as John Clements, Revolutionary patriarch who recruited and outfitted a company of infantry at his own expense; Lord Baltimore, Proprietary of Maryland; Leonard Calvert, first Governor of Maryland, and Col. Ninian Beall, commander in chief of the Maryland Colonial Forces. Chief Justice Roger Brooke Taney, of the United States Supreme Court, was her cousin.

Her childhood was passed amid the martial scenes of the War Between the States. She saw the Union forces drawn in battle array on the rear fields of her father's estate and heard the rumble of the battle which took place 10 miles away when the Confederate Army learned of the Union entrenchment and moved its course. Her home was close to Monocacy battlefield, where the Blue and the Gray met in mortal combat. She watched the progress of Jubal Early in his raid on the Capital.

The Maryland estate saw many gay scenes despite the travail of war. On one occasion Mrs. Beall's parents entertained Col. Fitzhugh Lee, C. S. A., famous Confederate leader, and his staff and often the dashing young Confederate officers who flashed past the house or dropped in to pay their respects made obeisance to the charming child.

She was married June 20, 1883, to the late Charles E. Beall at Trinity Church in Georgetown.

Surviving are two sons, Louis C. Beall, of Kensington, and Charles W. Beall, Gaithersburg; four daughters, Mrs. O. V. Lindhart, of Chicago; Mrs. Abell A. Norris, Miss Edna H. Beall and Miss Frances E. Beall, all of Gaithersburg; two sisters, Mrs. John L. Brunett, of Rockville, and Miss Clara Clements, of Middlebrook, Md., and 16 grandchildren.

The Alexandria police department insisted it wasn't, that the machine had been found in the Carter Motor Co. garage.

Both were right.

Because Braddock road near Mount Vernon avenue was too slippery for driving yesterday, Judge Duncan abandoned his car and came to town in a police cruiser with Private Boley.

Some time later another motorist, Mrs. C. M. Shepperson, The Post's Alexandria correspondent, also found Braddock road impossible. She asked a passerby to telephone the motor company to send a towing truck around.

Before the towing truck arrived the Shepperson car was driven off by a nice young man whose name was unreported.

Commissioners Back Erection Of Stores Next to High School

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post.
Telephone Shepherd 2363.

A four-month fight to block the erection of stores on property adjacent to the Montgomery Blair High School in Silver Spring ended in failure yesterday when the Montgomery County commissioners voted, 4 to 1, to deny a petition to rezone the property from commercial to residential.

In denying the petition the commissioners overrode an earlier recommendation of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission in favor of the rezoning, and also took issue with the county board of education and 18 civic organizations.

The land in question is owned by Eugene A. Smith, who announced his intention to erect five stores in the near future. Building permits for these already have been issued by the county building inspector's office. The property was zoned commercial seven years ago.

Opposed to Stores.

Since that time, however, the high school has been built and the board of education has gone on record opposing stores near an educational institution.

Fear that granting the rezoning petition "would establish a precedent where by any citizen or group of citizens could petition for the rezoning of another's property regardless of the amount of the investment involved," was expressed in a statement issued by the county board setting forth the reasons for denying the petition. Continuing, the statement said:

"The uncontradicted testimony in this case is that the rezoning petition would decrease the value of the property in question by $12,500. No provision has been made for the compensation of the property owners for this loss in value and from the statements at the hearings no compensation is contemplated."

Expressing the opinion that the commissioners should exercise their power to order re-zoning only in cases where the greatest emergency exists, the board held that such a procedure in this case "must be repugnant to the sense of fairness and justice of the citizens of the county."

Robert D. Hagner, of Bethesda, organization Democrat, joined with his three Fusion colleagues, Frank H. Karn, Rockville; Charles E. King, Gaithersburg, and Paul M. Coughlan, Silver Spring, in opposing the re-zoning. Democrat Commissioner Richard H. Lansdale, Sandy Spring, was the only member of the board voting in the affirmative.

Harold Bell, 25, son of Mrs. Dora Bell, 10 Sycamore avenue, Takoma Park, Md., narrowly escaped death when the car he was driving crashed into a truck on Philadelphia avenue near the Takoma Park-Silver Spring Junior High School. The truck was driven by William H. Robinson, of 615 C street southwest.

Follow This Plan for Better

For Fewer Colds . . Vicks Va-tro-nol helps Prevent many Colds
At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. It stimulates Nature's own functions—in the nose—to help prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in their early stages. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps avoid many colds.

For Shorter Colds . . Vicks VapoRub helps End a Cold Sooner
If a cold has developed, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub acts direct—two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

Follow Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds
A helpful guide to fewer colds and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Staff; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians—further proved in everyday home use by millions. The Plan is fully explained in each Vicks package.

Tempered Optimism.

The annual review of business and finance published yesterday by The Post presented the opinions of businessmen, bankers, economists and financial experts concerning the progress made during the past year and the outlook for the immediate future.

It is generally agreed that rapid strides toward recovery were taken in 1935 and that the prospect of continued improvement is more encouraging than at any time since the country began slowly and painfully to emerge from the depression. However, there was a noticeable lack of the uncritically exuberant confidence once characteristic of year-end judgments and forecasts concerning business conditions. Optimism is now tempered by a healthy realization that recovery is still far from complete and that its attainment is not a foregone conclusion.

Robert V. Fleming, head of the Riggs National Bank and recently elected president of the American Bankers Association, in his discussion called attention to some of the main causes that moderate enthusiasm. He notes, for instance, that production gains have not been great enough to absorb any large proportion of the unemployed workers dependent upon the heavy industries.

To bring about greater activity in these lines, it is essential that businessmen should know the rules under which they have to operate. One of the major obstacles to expansion at the present time is unquestionably due, as Mr. Fleming says, to the uncovered cost of government—Federal, State and municipal—and to the lack of assurance that spending will be brought under more definite control. Given such assurance, confidence would grow and the process of reabsorbing idle workers into private industry would be greatly accelerated.

As a spokesman for the country's bankers, Mr. Fleming is keenly conscious of the important part that a sound banking system can play in furthering economic recovery. The growing dominance of Federal financing agencies and their steady encroachment upon the field of private banking during recent years has been a disturbing development. Instead of futilely lamenting the danger of political domination of the banking system, with all its attendant evils, the American Bankers Association is preparing to hold regional conferences to give its members a better understanding of the new banking legislation and to "ascertain ways and means by which banks may soundly take over the functions now performed by governmental lending agencies."

Such programs of action will tend to increase the number of jobs in private industry and to alleviate the strain upon the public credit both by systematizing Federal relief outlays and by restricting emergency lending. To the extent that more careful financial operation becomes effective, anxiety about the future will diminish, and business expansion will rest upon a solid foundation, giving less cause for anxiety regarding the stability of gains achieved and still to come.

Not Only In Hilo.

Whether because of, or in spite of, the bombs dropped by Army fliers on the lava flowing from Mauna Loa, the river of fire descending toward the city of Hilo shows signs of abating. The first effects of the aerial assault, in which the high average of 40 per cent direct hits was scored where 10 per cent is the normal expectancy, gave few signs of success.

The Hawaiians scoffed at the strategy, insisting that there was no hope but to turn again to Pele. Legend has it that in 1881, when a similar flow advanced to within a mile of the city limits, a princess of the royal house stood out before the fiery mass and called upon Pele, the volcano goddess, to desist. Forthwith the lava stopped.

It is not surprising that the people of Hilo had little confidence in bombs as a means of salvation. In truth, the whole world shares these native doubts. Bombs of every description have proven singularly ineffective as constructive instrumentalities. Hurled for four years in Europe, they succeeded only in blasting a situation more foreboding than before.

Notwithstanding, the feverish world continues to manufacture bombs, though none but the most ingenuous can believe them more than temporary expedients at best. Something else, it is agreed, must be found if civilization is to be permanently saved from the threatening volcanic fires. No local deity but One of universal influence in the end will have to be invoked.

Neutrality Legislation.

First in importance on the calendar of the session of Congress which convenes today, is the issue of neutrality. This is not only because the arms embargo sections of the present hastily drafted act expire on February 29, necessitating replacement before that date. Equally vital is the fact that decisions of the most fundamental importance have to be made as to the principles governing the conduct of our foreign policy. In the present state of the world this is obviously the major duty of the National Legislature. For the issues to be settled concern both the safety and the honor of the United States.

Fortunately the whole subject of neutrality has been somewhat clarified, and the enormous difficulties involved helpfully emphasized, by the events since Congress was last in session. We are no longer so much disposed to indulge the curious belief that this problem can be solved merely by passing a law on the subject, with the proviso that since the problem is highly complex the law should be exceedingly drastic. There is now much less probability that Congress will indorse any utterly foolish neutrality measure, though drafts are still floating around which would make the President solemnly warn Americans off belligerent ships in the event of another war between land-locked Bolivia and Paraguay.

Such absurdities serve to illustrate the inherent stupidity of making permanent neutrality legislation either too rigid or narrowly mandatory in character. The law to be adopted must concentrate on principles and avoid details. It must be applicable not merely to the current situation in Europe, but also to wars which may break out in South America or Asia. It must be co-ordinated with the Monroe Doctrine and the Pact of Paris as well as with Washington's Farewell Address.

Most important of all, the coming legislation must not make the ghastly mistake of encouraging war under the pretense of providing a guarantee against American involvement. No such guarantee can possibly be made absolute. No mere law, no matter how sweeping, can ever make it certain that the United States will not be drawn into future world conflicts. But it would be only too easy to encourage both the launching of hostilities, and their protraction once started, by careless action of the Congress now reassembling.

Suppose, to choose a hypothetical case, that a Mexican dictator should decide to conquer Cuba. If our imaginary Mexican Mussolini saw the United States pledged to a rigid neutrality which would include mandatory embargoes on all American supplies to Cuba, he would certainly be greatly encouraged to attack. Such legislation would operate to stereotype the aggressor's natural advantages, to the detriment of his victim. But beyond that it would force all small states, particularly in the New World, to pile up armaments in an effort to offset in advance the substantial assistance our "neutrality" would give to unrestrained aggression.

As Secretary Hull has constantly stated during the present Italo-Ethiopian war, Administration policy has been to keep the United States at peace while furthering efforts for a speedy termination of the conflict. That policy, skillfully handled by the Department of State, has met with national acclaim and now gives the lead for the permanent neutrality legislation which Congress has to prepare. This legislation must, of course, preserve large discretionary powers for the branch of the Government entrusted with the grave responsibility of keeping the United States at peace. And it must not, in any way, impede the orderly efforts of other nations to make the path of dictatorial aggression unprofitable.

Fire Hazards.

The open stairway, that architectural idiosyncrasy of an earlier day which cores the center of many a Washington house, took three more lives in a fire early yesterday. However started, the blaze poured its gases and heat up through this convenient flue to suffocate the tenants. It was the same story in April when six persons died in a Columbia road fire. Only with the slow passing of the open stairways will there be any certainty of an end to such tragedies. Fire escapes would have been of little help in either case.

A District law requires buildings to be equipped with fire escapes if they house ten or more persons above the first floor, other than the family of the owner or lessee. In a city filled with private houses made over to accommodate boarders, this is a particularly important regulation. To enforce it falls to the duty of the fire marshal. For this he is provided with a staff of 19 assistants, but their assignments do not end there. A myriad of other responsibilities also must be carried by this staff: the supervision of heating installations, fire alarm systems, inflammable films and so on. About the best they can hope to do in the matter of rooming houses is to check each building as its owner applies for a license and to follow up with thorough inspections once a year.

Recently, following a serious fire in the new Postoffice Building, excitement grew out of the revelation that Federal buildings are subject to no safety inspection by the District fire chiefs responsible for their protection. President Roosevelt was moved to suggest that Government buildings be placed under the supervision of local rather than Federal authorities. In practice, this would mean a large addition to the fire marshal's office. Such institutions, for instance, as St. Elizabeth's and Walter Reed hospitals would require the full time of several inspectors.

All of which must make it clear to the Washington Committee on Housing and to the sub-committee, headed by Dr. L. F. Schmeckebier (still awaiting funds, incidentally) and charged with the enactment of an improved building code, that the elimination of fire hazards means more than a mere consideration of construction rules and regulations. As in the case of most municipal progress in the District, it, too, will turn on the long overdue settlement of a more equitable financial arrangement between the local and the Federal Governments.

A Rational Relief Policy.

Congress may well launch an investigation of unemployment relief as one of its first major undertakings during the 1936 session. The care of jobless men and their families, according to some system worthy of the name, is certainly one of the country's most urgent problems. The National Legislature would indeed be irresponsible if it should again dodge its clear duty by appropriating another lump sum for executive agencies to distribute with virtually no guiding principles or instructions.

Such an inquiry is further appropriate for Congress, since that body is to blame, in the last analysis, for the waste and inefficiency of the existing system. In previous sessions Congress has merely taken note of human distress and doled out enormous sums to alleviate it, with little or no thought as to how that money ought to be spent. Loose administration and negative results are almost inevitable in these circumstances. It is none too soon for the Legislature to examine the consequences of its derelictions and to work out a policy that will stand the test of permanent operation, if that should be necessary.

Obviously such a probe should not become a political fishing expedition. There might be a strong temptation on the part of minority Congressmen to use the proposed investigation for muck-raking purposes, although this does not appear to be the objective of Representative McLeod. His resolution is designed to "ascertain the facts" of current practices so that Congress may more intelligently cope with the problem from the long-range viewpoint. If an investigation can be held to that objective, it should prove to be entirely constructive.

An unbiased approach to the problem is especially important now that the Administration is making an attempt to shift part of the relief burden back to the States and local communities. That move is encountering numerous difficulties, chief of which seems to be lack of any consistent and definite Federal policy. It is true that President Roosevelt has announced withdrawal of the Government from direct relief activities and limitation of Federal liability to the 3,500,000 who have been or will be given jobs by the WPA. But this is merely an executive ruling that may be readily upset. Moreover, there is no indication as to how WPA employes will be cared for when that agency's funds have been exhausted. Hence, systematic planning for relief by local governments, which have come to rely upon handouts from Washington, is extremely difficult. Before they can adopt anything more than stopgap relief methods Congress must evolve some kind of permanent program.

Desirable as it is to keep relief on a local community basis, the need of national planning in securing restoration of that system is patent. Congress is obligated to help support destitute families until the aggregate burden can be substantially reduced. The pressing need is for a national policy that will encourage the States to reassume this obligation instead of rewarding them for incompetence and irresponsibility. In other words, Congress ought to help the States meet their own problems, instead of trying to buy their birthright for a mess of pottage.

It will not be easy to reverse the trend toward unwieldy and extravagant centralization of relief. But accomplishment of that task is of the utmost importance to the entire country. The extent to which Congress is willing to lay politics aside and attack this problem as a challenge to the American system of government, as well as an economic issue of the greatest significance, will afford an effective measure of its devotion to the public welfare.

"If ten drinks will make a man drunk one drink will make him one-tenth drunk," says a prohibitionist. If eight feet of water will half drown him.

"Scientists announce that the world will last a trillion years longer, instead of fifteen billion as previously estimated." We'll just have to pass this one up. Our capacity for worrying is completely loaded.

A 40 per cent increase is noted in the birth rate of families on relief.—Statistic. A lot of full houses resulting from the New Deal it might be said.

The Danger In A Growing Debt.

From the Kansas City Star.

An important fact about the public debt that seems to be overlooked by those who regard the debt lightly or with indifference is suggested by a statement of the National Industrial Conference Board. It is that the debt recently has been growing at an alarming rate. For 1932, the board shows, the total debt—Federal, State and local—was 39 billion dollars. But now, within less than three years, it has come to be approximately 50 billions.

The total debt is equal to the Nation's total income last year. It has been mounting faster than the increase in the national income following its low point in the depression. Plainly, that cannot go on without disastrous consequences. What assurance is there that this disturbing increase in debt will be halted? Precious little, just now. There has been talk of it; but the talk needs to be translated into action.

How About Some Service!

The Lindberghs And The Post

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Nothing has so brightened for me this New Year's Day than finding in The Post the notice of its intention not to give further publicity to the personal affairs of the Lindberghs.

If the other white press editors (we can expect nothing helpful from the yellow) would follow your stand in this matter, we might regain a bit the habit we once had of respecting the private affairs of our citizens. A great overhauling of our mass-behavior is due and could be brought about by influential press comment through similar bravery on the part of other editors, whom you may have inspired to criticize frankly deteriorating conduct.

GERTRUDE L. TROWBRIDGE.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Heartiest congratulations on your fine stand regarding the Lindberghs. Would that all newspapers would follow your splendid example.

HARRIET T. COOKE.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I cannot refrain from thanking you most sincerely for your courtesy, humane kindness and consideration shown in your paper today, in regard to Lindbergh and his family. I only hope that your noble example may be followed by the whole press.

I, as an American, love my country and want to be proud of it, but I must confess to having had to hide my head with shame when I realized that one of our best citizens had to flee this country because justice had not been carried out in regard to the murder of his child and now that constant letters were being received, threatening the life of his only child, he feels the only safe way to save his life is to leave America and place himself under the protection of the British government.

All this was bad enough, but when the papers began to play the part of sleuth hounds and even giving out to the world all that they could find out of the whereabouts of the Lindberghs, I was in despair until a few minutes ago when I read those clear and decisive lines of yours, stating the attitude you had taken and the why and wherefore.

VIRGINIA S. MACKAY-SMITH.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am writing to express my appreciation of your new policy regarding the Lindberghs, as stated on the front page of The Post of January 1.

It is the right attitude, and will undoubtedly be appreciated by many of your "live and let live" readers.

KENNETH S. CULLOM.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Most heartily do I commend the expression of future policy of The Post as stated on the front page of this morning's issue with regard to further publicity concerning the personal affairs and family movement of the Lindberghs.

Of course every normal individual is interested in that family as in almost no other family in the country, but that is not to say that their personal and family affairs are the business of anyone but themselves.

If the crime of the century was the kidnaping of their child, the outstanding cruelty to a family is the persistent publicity which the newspapers of the country have given to their private affairs. That applies to the recent past, as well as at other times, when apparently Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were so earnestly endeavoring to move in secret that they might be spared some of the agony they were trying to avoid. Free speech and a free press should be accomplished by a regard for human rights and human welfare, and common sense as to the proprieties of things.

H. P. GOULD.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The statement of your paper in respect to the Lindbergh family was read by this subscriber with relief and approbation.

America is composed of a population 60 per cent vulgar, but that 60 per cent can be made less vulgar if the greatest influence upon it, i. e., the press, refuses as The Post has done to pander to its taste for details in the personal lives of its chief citizens. I congratulate Washington on your stand.

MARY BELL C. SHEPARD.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May a subscriber express her appreciation for your action regarding the Lindbergh case, as given in this morning's paper. Appreciation not only for the humanity of your point of view, but for the insight which realizes what is the disintegration of public opinion when fed on debased and iniquitous journalism.

MARY E. BAKEWELL.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your decision to exclude from your columns personal news in regard to a persecuted and harassed family expresses the decent consideration and high friendly courtesy which should prevail in a democracy.

As a reader I thank you.

ALICE THACHER POST.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post —Sir: I have just read your few lines entitled "The Lindberghs and The Post."

Having the greatest sympathy with the collection and dissemination of "news," it is my considered opinion that such a powerful instrument for the molding of public opinion as the press has a moral duty not to cater to the type of curiosity that thrives upon the intimate details of one's private life. Moreover to concentrate the spotlight of publicity too long upon one subject leads to an unbalanced and insatiable desire for more details which in turn leads to the violation of all standards of decency by an inconsiderate people.

It is too much too expect that all newspapers will follow your example but if they would recognize their moral duty to do so and carry this duty to other subjects I believe we would have less crime, less sloppy sentimentality, and more justice. Why cater to the lowest type of curiosity? Why not set your organization to develop methods of stimulating the curiosity of the people to a higher appreciation of the virtues of life?

It would not then be necessary for useful and desirable citizens like the Lindburghs to become voluntary exiles so that those who are not so desirable may have their appetite satisfied about something that does not concern them.

DOROTHY NICOLSON.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post today announces that it will give no further publicity to the "purely personal affairs and family movements" of the Lindberghs, but that it will "always be interested in them as aviators, scientists, writers and outstanding Americans." This will appeal to certain sentimentalists who have always held Lindbergh above the level of the common herd, but to some of us who have devoted our lives to the honorable profession of journalism this announcement seems not only snobbish but an almost complete abnegation of the right and duty of the press.

I have great admiration for Lindbergh, despite unfortunate experiences with him which I have had in the difficult task of covering his movements upon various occasions. I respect his wish for privacy. But above all else I respect the people who buy the newspapers for news, who expect to be told what is going on in the world in which they live. Having made Lindbergh a hero, we all want to know about him. The newpsaper is a living history of events, a living biography of people. It can not be true to its purpose if it refuses to print the news, and especially is it untrue when, having printed the news partially, it refuses to follow its assignment through to the end.

NEWSPAPERMAN.
Washington, Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post (by telegraph)—Sir: Congratulations on your stand regarding Lindbergh privacy. Newspapers need this leadership if freedom of the press is not to destroy itself by its commercial relentlessness. Thoughtful people have long been disgusted with utter disregard of the right of privacy by the press. Believe present condition dangerous to public respect of courts and a barrier to able men in public office. May other papers follow your moderation!

A. B. PRATT.
White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The position which you have taken in regard to the Lindberghs will, I believe, have the unqualified approval of all right-minded people. It certainly has the approval of the community in which I live.

JAMES D. REGAN.
Groton, Mass., Jan. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May The Post live on! Your comment on the "Lone Eagle" on the front page of your paper of January 1 is no doubt the best I have ever seen. I sincerely wish every paper in the country would follow your example.

B. L. BURKA.
Washington, Jan. 1.

Realism On Birth Control.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letters "Pros and Cons of Birth Control" in your columns are interesting.

Birth control is usually condemned or upheld according to the individual's religious interpretation. If these persons making their asseverations would visit some of our too numerous homes or hovels where a child is born each year, where there is insufficient food, scant clothing, destitution and malnutrition, I believe they would lay aside some of their narrow concepts and agree that birth control should be intelligently taught and practiced for the sake of the coming generation.

Every child has an inherent right to be well born, and should be the result of careful planning on the part of its parents, and not the result of unrestrained productive instincts.

If we, as a nation, are to succeed in raising the standards of moral and decent living, it must begin in the home, and unrestrained, ignorant propagation is too animalistic. Marriage does beget children—but quantity, irrespective of quality, should not be the coveted aim.

RUBY G. CROTINGER.

The Post Impressionist

Sing Hsi, Sing Ho!

Post Office, Friday.

DID you ever know an astronomer to be drunk on duty? You never did. But do you know why you never did? This Column is going to tell you why.

Seeing that nobody saw the Christmas eclipse of the sun, nobody can be blamed for talking about eclipses this long afterward—certainly not our neighbor-astronomer, Dr. S. A. Mitchell, over at the University of Virginia's Leander McCormick Observatory. He has an international reputation in this dark field—if the whole truth were known, probably an interstellar reputation.

So we've been letting him tell us about the earliest solar eclipse of which there exists any human account.

* * *

The place of chronicling was China—of course.

The date was October 22, 2137 B. C.—which fixes it some 14 centuries ahead of any record made in any other country.

* * *

Until we heard Mitchell "speak out loud and bold," our most precise knowledge of that eclipse was connected with a nursery legend and the piano notes of Alfred Noyes.

* * *

"In old Cathay, in far Cathay,
Before the Western world began,
They saw the moving font of day
Eclipsed, as by a shadowy fan;
They stood upon their Chinese wall,
They saw the fire to ashes fade,
And felt the deeper slumber fall
On domes of pearl and towers of jade."

* * *

* * *

Dr. Mitchell told us about it thus: "This eclipse is celebrated not only for its great antiquity"—well, after all, there had been eclipses before that!—"but also for the dire fate of the two royal astronomers, Hsi and Ho, who, instead of staying in the sober paths of science, went and got beastly drunk, with the result that they were taken unawares (by the phenomenon) and were unprepared to perform their customary rites of shooting arrows, beating drums, etc., for the purpose of delivering the sun from the monster that was devouring it."

* * *

You wouldn't expect the always precise Chinese to fail to chronicle such a matter. Nor would you expect them to chronicle it any way except politely. And thus is it recorded in the preface of the Shu Ching, or Book of Historical Documents:

"Hsi and Ho, sunk in wine and excess, neglected the ordering of the seasons and allowed the days to get into confusion."

* * *

Also, if you feel that this preface isn't authentic, or contemporary with the Shu Ching itself—as Dr. Mitchell intimated to us—why, then, you are free to take the still more polite version of the great scholar Tso, who wrote in the fifth century before Christ:

"The sun and moon did not meet harmoniously in Fang. The blind beat their drums; the inferior officers galloped, and the common people ran about."

* * *

It must have been what Reggie Fortune, had he then lived, would have described as "very distressin'."

And that's the meat of this history.

* * *

The great Hsai dynasty was ruling China at that time—and, as you know very well, the Hsai emperors were not the sort to stand any nonsense twice. What's more, the particular representative of the Hsai dynasty on the October 22d hereinbefore mentioned was no less a non-nonsense-stander than the fourth of that Imperial House; the stern Chung K'ang.

* * *

He said he didn't mind the scientific slip of Ho and Hsi—in its purely scientific aspects. It did show, to be sure, that they weren't great shucks as predicters, but he could and would forgive that. What traveled him, he said, was the purely popular and merely vulgar effects of those two astronomers' failure at foretelling.

The people had been badly frightened. This wasn't good for the people, and the sight of their suffering was still worse for their humane Emperor. It really mustn't happen again.

* * *

As a slight deterrent, the respected Chang K'ang therefore had the respective heads of Hsi and Ho severed from their respective bodies.

* * *

Thenceforth all eclipses had to be predicted, and predicted accurately in China. Said the Shu Ching:

"Being before the time, the astronomers are to be killed without respite. And, being behind the time, they are to be slain without reprieve."

* * *

"With this tragic warning in view," Dr. Mitchell assured us, "there is no record from that day to this that an astronomer has ever been drunk at the time of an eclipse."

* * *

That's what Dr. Mitchell told us. He told us so in the new edition of his "Eclipses of the Sun," which, revised and enlarged, the Columbia University Press has just issued.

* * *

Fair Enough

Around Mussolini.

Paris, Jan. 2.

ONE rainy afternoon in Rome I went out in a taxi to circle the huge park, surrounded by a high wall, where Mussolini's house stands alone amid trees. The house was hidden from view, and the trip would not have paid out in results except for the prerence along the sidewalk beneath the wall of a detail of cutthroats the like of which has not been assembled under one command since the days of His Majesty's Black and Tans.

Mussolini's household hoodlums were stationed at intervals of about 50 yards around all sides of the park, each under his umbrella in a drizzle, all keeping up the nominal pretense of waiting for a street car, of which there was none in that vicinity, or for a friend, of which there can be none on earth.

There were other secret policemen on the far side, one carrying a suitcase which could have contained the conventional tommy gun. This one was strolling up the block the first time I passed. When I came around again he was strolling the other way with his suitcase.

• • • •

THEY were a homey touch, in a way, for they were the first of that type that I had seen in several weeks in Italy, and for a moment I thought I was back in Miami Beach, Fla., in the winter colony of the artichoke and slot-machine aristocracy of our Northern cities.

At a distance, and in print, the castor oil treatment with which the Black Shirts overcame political doubt seems ..ot very brutal, and even slightly humorous. But I must admit that at close quarters, as the boys peered out from underneath their dripping umbrellas, it was not so easy to see the joke.

The customary procedure of these missionaries is to call at night in a body on the victim of a political error, twist his arms and legs until the bones crack, then pour down his neck a quart of castor oil which may be mixed with kerosene. It is inartistic to use kerosene, however, for enough castor oil taken all at once is almost certain to rupture the human plumbing and to bring about death from natural causes within a few days. There is always plenty of castor oil.

• • • •

A FEW days later, on a trip to Pontinia, the tailor-made village which Mussolini built on a reclaimed swamp, somewhat resembling the Florida Glades, the strong-arm detail was out again, this time in greater numbers, and the scene was pleasantly reminiscent of those Kentucky Derbys at Louisville in the days of prohibition when all the alky cookers and bootleggers east of the Rocky Mountains gathered for their annual convention.

They were everywhere. They mingled with the crowd and climbed steps to overlook the press of people. They sidled up and looked earnestly into your eyes and gazed at your camera and studied your overcoat for bulges.

HE has salvaged the swamps, built several towns and lifted whole communities out of their old surroundings, to set them down in a new country where everything is ready for life. It is the kind of work that we in America are always going to do. Consequently, petty Mussolinis of Mussolini's foreign press bureau, so lazy and stupid most of the time, round up all the foreign representation they can find when the Duce is about to put on one of his shows. If they don't turn up with enough foreign press, Mussolini gets sore.

So there were about 50 of us on this trip, and we all had a long look at the Duce putting on his No. 3 routine. This is the one in which he is a kindly man of the people and the living spirit of a proud and mighty but friendly race demanding only justice for Italy. It is said to be the best act of his repertoire, and I will say that I have never seen anything of its kind, although "Red Mike" Hylan, when he was Mayor of New York, resembled Mussolini around the ears.

• • • • •

AFTER the act Mussolini received us in the council room of the new town hall. He is not as tall as I had expected, being about 5 feet 10 and thick in the barrel, but not fat. He moves around with the quick, jerky motions of a major general tearing along a company street on an inspection trip, and his yes-men, like humble shavetails, are frightened speechless in his presence except to throw back their heads and yell, "Doo-chay, doo-chay!"

His face surprised me, for I had expected a pop-eyed glare, an undershot jaw and the generally bloodthirsty mien, whereas there was a soft expression in Musolini's eyes, he spoke in a quiet, civil tone and his lips parted in a smile three or four times. His eyelids were red, as though he had been working nights. But the Black Shirt told me Mussolini never gets tired. His eyelids are naturally red.

A French woman journalist stepped out and dropped her wedding ring into his hand for his gold collection. Mussolini said he was touched, and went away in a pleasant mood.

Fundamentals of Neutrality

Business Reciprocity Policies Hold Key To Peace.

By Livingston Hartley.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

THE problem of American neutrality during a foreign war is so complex as to be almost incomprehensible to the man in the street, yet he is the one who will pay the price if this problem is solved inadequately. For this reason, as Congress proceeds to place neutrality legislation on a permanent footing, public understanding of its task may be facilitated by concentrating our attention on what will always be the central issue in the whole neutrality problem. All questions of loans, restrictions on shipping, travel in war zones and other aspects are secondary. The central issue is American commercial assistance to belligerents.

It was American commercial assistance to the Allies which led to the failure of neutrality in 1917, because the mighty flow of American goods to the allied countries was the primary cause of the German decision to renew unrestricted submarine warfare. It is American commercial assistance to Italy, shipments of oil, trucks, steel and other materials essential for war, which is now the controlling factor in our relationship to the war, in Africa. And it is governmental restriction of commercial assistance to belligerents which entails hardship to individual Americans and might, under certain conditions, strike a rude blow at our national prosperity.

Ever since October 5 the Administration has held two neutrality objectives in view, to keep America out of war and to discourage American activities which would tend directly to prolong the duration of war abroad. As far as can be judged from its vocal expression, public support of the Administration's policy during the last three months has been overwhelming.

• • • •

IT seems indisputable that the less we assist belligerents by commercial means to carry on a war, the less likelihood there is that our relationships with them will involve us in that war. Similarly, the sooner a war abroad is ended, the less likely it is that it will spread, and thereby render the maintenance of our neutrality more onerous and more precarious. It follows, therefore, that the most effective way to keep the American people out of war abroad is to curtail drastically American commercial assistance to the belligerents.

If however, we get down to cases, we find that this problem is not as simple as it sounds. Foreign wars may be either small or large. In a small war, our Government can impose drastic embargoes on exports of essential war materials to the belligerents, but these same embargoes could not be enforced in another great European war without bringing economic disaster to the United States.

If we are not to cause havoc in our national economy, and thereby bring into action political forces, which may cause the repeal of neutrality legislation during the progress of war, our trade restriction policy must vary in accordance with the nature of war abroad.

In order to provide for the restriction of trade with belligerents as a permanent policy applicable under all conditions, Congress must take into account three different types of war: a limited war, such as that in Ethiopia; the sudden extension of a limited war, such as would occur if Italy attacked one of the sanctionist powers; and a large scale war between two alliances involving most of the great powers.

IN the first case, a limited war, the United States can best serve its neutrality interests by enforcing drastic trade embargoes against both belligerents. In the third case, a large-scale war between two groups, the United States must limit the scope of trade embargoes against the belligerents in order to avoid the destruction of its foreign trade and prosperity. If these two cases alone had to be considered, our neutrality problem would not be so difficult. A graded scale of trade restrictions against belligerents could be prepared in advance, and applied as the balance of interest between a strong neutrality policy and the maintenance of our foreign trade might render advisable.

It is the second case which renders a predetermined theoretical course impossible to follow in practice, as can be readily seen by considering the present war in Africa. Our trade with the actual belligerents, which amounts to less than 4 per cent of our total foreign trade, could be entirely restricted with only minor economic hardship. If, however, this war should be extended by an Italian attack on the sanctionist powers, our economic relationship with the belligerents would be radically altered. Over 60 per cent of our exports go to the British Empire and the European members of the League of Nations alone.

As a result of the diverse conditions under which our neutrality policy must function, Congress is really limited to two alternatives. It must either adopt a weak policy of trade restriction which we can afford to enforce under all circumstances, such as a limitation of our exports to belligerents to peacetime quotas, or it must allow the President discretion to adjust our policy to fit our needs as circumstances over which we have no control arise.

• • • •

IF we adopt a weak policy toward restricting trade with belligerents, we shall compromise our national interests during a limited war abroad. We shall be aiding both belligerents to prolong the war if neither holds command of the sea. If, however, one belligerent holds effective command of the sea, we shall be aiding that belligerent exclusively, and adopting essentially the position which we maintained toward the Allies and Germany until neutrality failed in 1917.

The national disadvantage of such a position is now intensified by the existence of the League of Nations. If our embargoes on trade with the belligerents are so limited as to create a large gap in the sanctions blockade maintained by the League in the present war, or in a similar future case, we shall be contributing substantial aid to the aggressor. Such a position might not only prove untenable politically, in view of the widespread reaction of American public opinion on questions of international morality. It would also constitute an attitude of potentially dangerous opposition toward the principal European sea powers, the very nations with whom our relations are most intimate. Moreover, it would serve directly to nullify one of our most important foreign policies—the encouragement of effective peace machinery.

Three Types Of War Confront Congress In Debates.

If a strong policy of trade restriction toward belligerents is necessary to our national interests in a limited war, Congress must provide a path of escape from the economic catastrophe which this same strong policy would inflict upon our country if the limited war should suddenly be widely extended. Such a path of escape might be provided by two different means:

• • • •

FIRST, the President might be given authority to enforce restrictions on trade with belligerents impartially when such restrictions appeared in the national interest. Such a provision would allow him a reasonable discretion by which, having put into force trade restrictions against Italy and Ethiopia, he would need to take no action to extend these restrictions against 40 or 50 other nations if Italy should involve them in war by a sudden attack.

It can be objected that if we followed such a procedure we should no longer be impartial in our trade restriction policy. This objection would be more valid if there were any course by which we could avoid partiality.

The objection that such a procedure would expose us to danger has little practical weight. Friction with an aggressor state already engaged in a struggle against overwhelmin odds can hardly endanger the neutrality of the United States. The international friction we have reason to avoid is that which might develop with a large group of powers holding command of the sea, a type of friction which a policy of opposition to their concerted action could not fail to create, and which our own history shows can be dangerous.

• • • •

THE other path of escape is that suggested in the draft neutrality law recently published by the American Peace Conference in New York. According to this suggestion, if the President found that whelming odds can hardly endanger a majority of the signatories of the Kellogg Pact had judged one belligerent to be a violator of that pact, he could, with the consent of Congress, raise existing trade embargoes against the nations engaged in war with the pact violator.

Such a provision by Congress might prove of vital importance in the present war in Africa or in any analogous case in the future. As long as this war remains limited to the two actual belligerents there is no controlling reason why we should depart from an impartial trade policy toward both. In the event, however, of a wide extension of this war caused by an Italian attack on the sanctionist powers, Congress could act under this provision to prevent the annihilation of our foreign trade which a mandatory extension of trade embargoes to all new belligerents would cause.

We must face a fundamental fact if our neutrality legislation is to prove successful and enduring: No matter how advisable it may be to control arms shipments, the activities of American shipping, and other aspects of neutrality by rigid legislation, our trade restriction policy toward belligerents must be left flexible if we are not to endanger our primary national interests.

The Once Over

Lines to a Nizam.

("The Nizam of Hyderabad, premier prince of India, will celebrate his silver jubilee with a barbecue at which 1,000 oxen and 10,000 sheep will be slaughtered. The Nizam's income has been estimated as high as $50,000,000 a year. He has 50 marble palaces. In his vaults he stores $250,000,000 in gold bars, and his jewels alone represent more money than the combined fortunes of Henry and Edsel Ford. He lives somewhat frugally, however, likes to ride in an old flivver and goes about in old clothes and worn shoes."—News item.)

What a man is the Nizam,
The Prince Number One!

He has palaces nifty—
Some forty or fifty—
And gold by the ton!

Pretty soft for the Nizam—
His income exceeds
That of Ford and the Huttons,
The Du Ponts, the Cuttens,
The Morgans and Leeds.

Hotsy totsy the Nizam
With gems very rare;
His diamonds litter
His households which glitter
Just like a world's fair.

Such a rich egg, the Nizam—
Fifty million a year!
He stores gold by the bars
But smokes five-cent cigars
And he makes his own beer.

He is frugal, the Nizam,
And he's thrifty, alas!
He is not a big spender,
He abhors a big "bender"—
And watches the gas!

Pretty careful, the Nizam;
He views waste askance;
In shoes that need soling
He likes to go strolling
And press his own pants!

A Spartan, the Nizam,
With gold by the bar;
He thinks that a flivver
Is good for his liver
And drives an old car.

But way for the Nizam!
He soon will unbend;
A party he's throwing
By way of just showing
How Nizams can spend.

Hooray for the Nizam!
Despite his queer quirks,
Come, feast on the mutton—
It won't cost a button—
He's shooting the works!

But I shall not hurry;
And neither should you;
With ten thousand sheep
All that cold lamb will keep;
There'll be months of beef stew!

'State AAA's' May Be Sequel To Court Loss

A plan for 48 "little AAAs" to replace the Administration's present farm aid program was put forward yesterday by AAA Administrator Chester C. Davis as the New Deal's last line of defense should a sweeping Supreme Court decision declare all its farm program unconstitutional.

Following the principle of Federal road grants to States, which has been thoroughly tested in the courts, Congress, under the Davis plan, could appropriate money for distribution to States, which in turn would distribute it as benefit payments to those farmers who agreed to make their acreage program conform to Federal plans for national production.

As in the case of Federal road aid, the plan would require action by each State Legislature. Also, as in the road plan, any States refusing to conform would pay taxes for the support of the movement, but their farmers would not receive benefits from it.

"Naturally," Davis said, "we have tried to look forward to prepare for any emergency should the adjustment act be held unconstitutional.

May Seek Compacts.

"Among the alternatives that have been considered is the possibility that in the event Article 10 of the Constitution, reserving to States powers not specifically delegated to Congress, should be the basis for an adverse decision, the Federal Government could still move toward the goal of adjustment through agreements with the several States.

"This could be possible, of course, only if Congress is willing and the farm thought seems to lie in that direction."

While prepared for the worst, legal advisers of the Department of Agriculture say they would be greatly surprised at so sweeping a Supreme Court decision. They say they feel that the court will not assail the benefit payments of the present law, on the ground that it seldom has questioned the spending powers of Congress. The processing taxes, however, are not on such firm legal ground, as the taxing power of Congress is severely limited by the Constitution. A tax to control the production of a commodity must lean heavily on the general welfare clause of the Constitution.

The 48 little AAAs would be necessary if the Supreme Court not only denies the right of Congress to control production by taxation, but also denies its right to use its spending power through benefit payments for this purpose, holding that any regulation of production is beyond Federal jurisdiction.

Cites Decentralization.

Davis pointed out that in recent months AAA has been decentralized. State and county production control committees have been given added responsibility. Should the Supreme Court destroy AAA root and branch, existing local machinery could take over the program. After the States had passed the necessary co-operative legislation, benefit payments, instead of going in lump sums to States for distribution through the present channels.

Processing taxes now imposed on those products the supply of which is being controlled, would of course, be abolished. But the necessary funds could be raised by special excise taxes either on all food products, or in addition on luxuries such as cosmetics, or on commodities which benefit by tariff protection.

A Federal agency such as the present AAA would be responsible for national planning and for coordination of the 48 State programs. The Department of Agriculture has foreseen the possibility that Legislatures of large industrial States might refuse to co-operate. But, following the parallel of Federal highway aid legislation, the fact that they refused to pass legislation enabling their citizens to take advantage of Federal aid would not relieve them of the necessity for paying taxes to support the program in those States which wished to co-operate.

Should a majority of both houses agree to this new program, it could survive with the support of less than 48 State Legislatures.

Roosevelt Losing 3 to 2, Poll Says

By the United Press.

New York, Jan. 2.—The United States is voting 3 to 2 against the New Deal, the Literary Digest announced tonight after receiving returns from 48 States in its poll on the popularity of the Roosevelt Administration's policies.

So far there have been 1,370,774 ballots tallied in response to the question, "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?"

The vote stands:
No	828,929
Yes	541,845

The New Deal slipped almost two percentage points from last week. In the present tally 60.47 per cent of the ballots are against the Roosevelt policies; last week the percentage against the New Deal was 58.51 per cent.

Mr. Roosevelt is winning in these 12 States: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Utah and Virginia. He is losing in all the others.

Time for Rates Filing By Carriers Is Extended

Buses and trucks operating for hire in interstate commerce have been given an additional 30 days in which to file their rates with the Interstate Commerce Commission. In making the extension to March 1, the commission announced it had done so because of numerous requests from the motor carriers.

Rates and schedules thus filed with the commission must be put into effect by the motor carriers not later than April 1, the deadline set by Congress for operation of the act. With this extension, the time limit has been set to the latest possible date under the present law.

New Senator Arrives on the Job

Fascist Acts Hit In Borah Reply To Ex-Official

Idaho Senator Raps Smith Views; Sees No Bar to Old Age Pensions.

Adequate social security and labor legislation can be enacted under the Constitution as it now stands, Senator Borah said yesterday. He made the statement in discussing an article by him in the current issue of the Red Book Magazine.

In the article the Idaho Senator struck at persons who "praise the principles of democracy, but employ the methods of fascism."

Much of the article was devoted to answering an assertion of an "important Government official," whom he quoted as saying that leadership could not come from 435 Representatives and 96 Senators, nor from the 9 justices of the Supreme Court. Borah did not identify the official in the article, but at a press conference he said the man to whom he referred was Blackwell Smith, former counsel for the NRA.

"Mussolini never stated the doctrine of Fascism with greater boldness nor greater clarity than it is here stated," Borah said in reply to Smith's statement. "'Centralization of leadership!' We have a practical and impressive illustration of that now!"

People's Choices Impediment.

Borah declared that "in this official's statement is an unmistakable contention that courts and constitutions and members of the Congress elected by the people are an impediment."

"Then follows," Borah said, "although it is not mentioned, what must inevitably follow, that free speech, and a free press, and the right of assemblage, would be an impediment to 'centralized leadership.'"

Another section of the article was devoted to an answer to those who claim that the Supreme Court had originally appropriated judicial powers that were not granted to it by the framers of the Constitution. He said:

"It is my feeling that, when the framers of the Constitution lodged the power to amend the Constitution in the people, and conferred upon the Supreme Court the power to annul acts found to be in violation of the Constitution, they made this a government of law rather than a government of men. And only by preserving both the Constitution and the power of the court can we be certain that it will remain a government of law."

Great States Necessary.

The Senator said that "if the guarantees of the Constitution remain intact, if the court remains intact, there is little chance, indeed, for arbitrary government, for any considerable length of time, especially."

In discussing his article, Borah emphasized that he was not in favor of limiting the powers of the States beyond that which they already have.

"You can't have a great National Government without great States," he said.

Borah said that he did not anticipate that any specific constitutional amendment would be introduced in the session opening today. He added, however, that he was not opposed to amending the Constitution. He said that divided decisions by the Supreme Court were unfortunate, but that he knew of no solution of the problem.

Auto-Train Collision Kills Two, Injures One

Valparaiso, Ind., Jan. 2 (AP).—A Pennsylvania passenger train late today killed D. H. McKinney, 72, and his wife, 70, and gravely injured H. L. Brown, 73, all of near Parma, Mich., at a crossing on State Road 2 at Hebron, 10 miles south of here.

Witnesses said the victims failed to observe a flasher warning signal.

Socialist Will Speak.

Verne L. Reynolds, 1932 Presidential candidate of the Socialist Labor Party, will speak this evening at the Thomas Circle Club at 8 o'clock. His subject will be "Two Significant Presidential Campaigns—1916 and 1936." Admission is free, and questions may be asked.

Buying Power Declared Key To Food Prices

Food prices during 1936 will depend largely on buying power, according to the New Year's prediction of Donald Montgomery's counsel of the AAA. The supply of most foods is slightly larger than last year, and this may offset increase in buying power. But if the present marked rise in prosperity continues, it may bid up the price of foods, Montgomery said.

Fruits and vegetables are abundant and should be cheaper during 1936, Montgomery predicted. Dairy products are also more plentiful, but butter will quickly respond to increased buying power with a price hike. Flour will stay at its present level until more is known about the coming crop. Meat should stay at its present high level until summer, after which lower prices will prevail, particularly in pork and lard.

The peak of pork prices, according to Montgomery, took place last September. Since then retail prices have slowly fallen, but probably will not drop more until summer. A seasonal rise in pork usually starts in December and reaches a March peak, but increased supplies should offset this, Montgomery predicts.

Pig Crop Larger.

The pig crop during the last half of 1935 is reported 30 per cent larger than in 1934, and this should begin to influence the market by early summer.

Beef is also reacting to the 1934 drought. The better grades of corn-fed steers are more plentiful and quality meat should in consequence be cheaper. But poorer grades should command 1935 prices or surpass them, although lower pork prices next fall may counteract this tendency. Because there is an unusual shortage of fed lambs, Montgomery thinks the price of spring lamb may be higher than for any year since 1930.

Poultry Stock Down.

Poultry stocks on farms are low. Prices will remain high during the early months of 1936, but should fall after that. Unless an increase in consumer buying power or a severe freeze checks the present decline in egg prices, it should continue for the remainder of the winter.

Milk and dairy products, with the exception of butter should be lower this year than last.

This year compared with last shows a 7 per cent increase in fresh vegetables, a 13 per cent increase in fresh fruits and a 29 per cent increase in dried fruits. Potatoes, however, suffered frost damage last October, and the late crop was 10 per cent below that of 1934. Retail potato prices were relatively low last year, being practically at the 1913 level, while other foods were 20 per cent higher. No prediction can be made on 1936 potato prices until more is known of the spring crop.

Virginian Begins 36th Year in Office

Richmond, Va., Jan. 2 (AP).—Coming to his office after the New Year's holiday, Commissioner of Agriculture George W. Koiner today began his thirty-sixth year in office. His original appointment was effective January 1, 1900.

He is the oldest agriculture commissioner in point of service in the United States.

During his tenure, during which he served under ten Governors, Koiner has seen many progressive changes in farming methods.

Sixteen years ago, the Virginia official organized the National Association of Commissioners of Agriculture. He served as president of the organization until about two years ago, when he asked to be relieved of his duties in that office.

U. S. Buys Large Tract.

Asheville, N. C., Jan. 2 (AP).—Officials of the Sherwood Forest Co. today announced the sale of Sherwood Forest, a 36,000-acre tract on the headwaters of the Pigeon River, to the Federal Government for addition to Pisgah National Forest. The sale price was announced as $132,000.

Liberty League Income Equals Major Parties'

Expenditures of $389,973 Include $51,000 for President Shouse.

By the Associated Press.

The American Liberty League, bipartisan critic of the New Deal, yesterday reported contributions and expenditures nearly as large as those of the two major political parties.

Reports of the Democratic and Republican national committees and the league to the clerk of the House showed the three had received a total of nearly $1,500,000 and spent more than $1,000,000 in 1935.

The Democrats said they received $525,635 and spent $502,924, with a 1935 balance of $22,711, but they still have unpaid obligations from previous campaigns amounting to $401,315.

The Republicans reported contributions of $407,454 and expenditures of $199,166, with a fat January 1 balance of $260,480. Of the contributions, $336,428 was received from September 1 to December 31.

Receipts of $483,275 in loans and contributions during 1935 were reported by the Liberty League, which said it spent $389,973 on salaries, clerical hire, traveling and office expenses, including $51,000 to President Jouett Shouse for salary, travel and incidentals.

Names high in the Nation's business and industrial life studded the report of all three roganizations. Major interest of political observers centered on the records of the Liberty League, for which the Du Pont family, of Wilmington, Del., alone supplied $153,250 in loans and contributions.

Soon after the league's statement was filed, Chairman Black (Democrat), Alabama, of the Senate lobby investigating committee, said he had thought it "would show all the big boys in on the contributions."

He declined to say whether his committee would investigate the league's activities.

Maverick (Democrat) of Texas, said he wasn't a "bit surprised" by the league's claim of a balance of $93,201 to start the new year.

"Instead of dilly-dallying, the Democratic Party ought to fight the hell out of them," he said.

The Townsend old-age pension organization did not file a report. There was a difference of opinion among Congressmen whether the group could be required to report its receipts and expenditures, although Dr. Francis E. Townsend, its co-founder, has asserted his followers would put a candidate for President in the field if necessary to bring about adoption of the plan to grant $200-a-month pensions to the aged.

Raskob Lends $10,000.

The league's statement of loans included $20,000 from the Bankers Trust Co. of New York, $10,000 from John J. Raskob, former Democratic national chairman, and $5,000 from Alfred P. Sloan, jr., head of General Motors.

In addition, each of these men contributed $5,000. The name of Alfred E. Smith, former Democratic Presidential candidate and a league member, was not included among the contributors. He will come here this month to address a league dinner, but has declined an invitation to spend the night at the White House.

Irenee du Pont advanced $79,750 to the league in loans. Joseph E. Widener, Philadelphia capitalist, lent $10,000 and contributed an additional $5,000 as did E. T. Weir, of Pittsburgh, who was a prominent New Deal foe during NRA days.

The Democratic Cook County committee, Chicago, made two donations to the Democratic fund of $15,000 each.

Other large contributors to the Democratic war chest included:

Thomas E. Murray, jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Benjamin H. Connor, of Peoria, Ill., and James A. McDonough, $10,000 each; Mrs. Susan V. Clayton, of Houston, Tex., $7,000; A. J. Drexel Biddle, jr., of New York and Philadelphia; M. L. Benedum, of Pittsburgh; Thomas J. Pendergast, of Kansas City; William J. Froelich and W. P. Hopkins, of Chicago, $5,000 each; Missouri Democratic State committee, $6,000; Wyoming Democratic State committee, $1,000; James Walter Carter, of New York, $2,000; Earl Schwarzhaupt, of New York, $2,000; Thomas T. Hawksworth, of Detroit, $2,500; Harry Crown, of Chicago, $3,000; Silas Mason, of New York, $2,500; Democratic campaign committee for Tennessee, $5,000; Vermont Democratic committee, $5,000; Thomas J. Walsh, of Davenport, Iowa, $2,500; Otto Bremer, of St. Paul, $2,500; Adolph Bremer, of St. Paul, $2,500; Connecticut Democratic State committee, $3,000, and Iowa Democratic State committee, $5,000.

Unpaid obligations of the committee and the amount owed include: John J. Raskob, New York City, former Democratic national chairman, $25,000; R. W. Morrison, San Antonio, Tex., $25,000; Joseph P. Kennedy, New York City, $23,976; Biltmore Hotel, New York City, $15,134; Columbia Broadcasting Co., $42,968; National Broadcasting Co., $99,554; New York Telephone Co., $41,569, and the Street Railway Advertising Co. of New York, $30,000.

For the Republicans contributions of $20,000 each were made by J. Howard Pew, Mary Ethel Pew, Mabel Pew and Myrin J. Pew, of Philadelphia. The largest contributors were the United Republican Finance Committee for New York County, New York, which gave $58,000, and the United Republican Finance Committee for New York County, which added another $21,000.

Contributors of $5,000 included John D. Rockefeller, jr., John Hay Whitney, New York; Mrs. Charles S. Payne, Mrs. Payne Whitney, C. B. Goodspeed, New York; Mrs. Frances F. Bolton, Cleveland; Elizabeth Ball, Muncie, Ind.; Mrs. G. A. Ball, Chicago; George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind.; Edward Mallinckrodt, jr., St. Louis; Howard Heinz, Pittsburgh; W. R. Perkins, New York; E. T. Weir, Pittsburgh; R. K. Mellon, Pittsburgh; J. C. Williams, Weirton, W. Va.; George R. Fink, Grosse Point Farms, Mich.; James F. Bell, Minneapolis; Sewell Avery, Chicago.

G. G. Allen, of New York, contributed $4,500; William A. Colidge, of Boston, $3,000, and Charles S. Dewey, of Chicago, $4,000.

William H. Ball, Edward F. Ball, Frank E. Ball, C. K. Whitehill and Fred J. Petty, all of Muncie, Ind., and Silas H. Strawn, Chicago, contributed $2,000 each; Albert M. Keller, of St. Louis, gave $1,500.

Contributions of $1,000 were made by George F. Getz, Chicago; Daniel K. Catlin, St. Louis; Theron E. Catlin, St. Louis; W. K. Norris, St. Louis; H. M. Phlager, St. Louis; Judson S. Bemis, St. Louis; Joseph L. Werner, St. Louis; William Warner, New York.

Other contributions to the Liberty League included:

Mrs. Irenee du Pont, $1,000; Lammot du Pont, two loans for a $10,000 total; Pierre S. du Pont, a $5,000 contribution and two $5,000 loans; William du Pont, $5,000 gift and two $5,000 loans; Henry Belin du Pont, $5,000 and a loan of $10,000; Archibald M. L. du Pont, $2,500; John L. Pratt, New York, and H. B. Bust, Pittsburgh, gifts of $5,000 and loans of $10,000; John T. Smith, New York, a $5,000 contribution and a $5,000 loan; J. Howard Pew, Philadelphia, $5,000 contribution and $10,000 loan; Donaldson Brown, of New York City, loans, $10,000, contributions, $5,000; R. M. Carpenter, Wilmington, Del., $5,000 contribution and $10,000 loan; Charles C. Copeland, Wilmington, Del., $5,000 contribution and $10,000 loan; S. Hallock du Pont, two $5,000 loans, and a $5,000 contribution; Phillips Petroleum Co., of Bartlesville, Okla., contribution of $2,500 and loan of the same amount; H. B. Earhart, of Detroit, two $4,000 loans; George Mc-Neil, New York, a loan of $5,000; W. L. Clayton, Houston, Tex., contributions and loan amounting to $6,500; W. Sam Carpenter, jr., of Wilmington, Del., $2,324; two $2,125 loans from T. L. Chadbourne, New York City; the Countess Frieda Franco Constantin, of 12 Rue Dumont-d'Urville, Paris, France, also $100 contributions.

Roosevelts Are Hosts At Dinner for Garner

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt entertained at the second state dinner of the season last night in honor of the Vice President and Mrs. John Nance Garner. This dinner is a fairly new addition to the White House schedule, having been inaugurated during the Administration of Herbert Hoover. In former years the Vice President attended the dinner given in honor of the members of the Cabinet and their wives, but due to the now almost forgotten question of the official rank of Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Mr. Charles Curtis, Vice President in the Hoover regime, an additional dinner was planned to honor the Vice President and has since been numbered among the state functions.

The guests last evening included a distinguished group of members of both houses of Congress, who like everybody else, are eager to hear the President's message to Congress this evening. There were also present the United States Ambassador to Mexico and Mrs. Josephus Daniels, the Mayor of New York and Mrs. Fiorello LaGuardia, and Sir Arthur Willert, former British correspondent, and Lady Willert. All of these last were overnight guests at the White House.

Others Present at Dinner.

Others there were Senator and Mrs. William E. Borah, Senator and Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Senator and Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, Senator and Mrs. Hiram W. Johnson, Senator Charles L. McNary, Senator Arthur Capper, Senator and Mrs. Pat Harrison, Senator and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Senator and Mrs. Robert J. Bulkley, Senator and Mrs. James F. Byrnes, Senator and Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, Senator and Mrs. Alva B. Adams, Senator Harry Flood Byrd and his daughter, Miss Westwood Byrd, who was presented to Washington society on Monday at a tea given by her aunt, Mrs. Henry D. Flood; Senator and Mrs. Frederick Van Nuys, Senator and Mrs. Vic Donahey, and Senator Joseph F. Guffey, with his sister, Miss Ida Guffey.

Also Representative Robert L. Doughton and his daughter, Miss Reba Doughton; Representative Sam Reyburn, Representative and Mrs. James P. Buchanan, Representative and Mrs. Clarence F. Lea, Representative Isaac Bachrach, Representative and Mrs. Patrick H. Drewry, and Representative and Mrs. James W. Wadsworth.

Others were the Secretary to the President and Mrs. Marvin H. McIntyre, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Julien, Mr. and Mrs. Earle Bailie, Mr. and Mrs. Ulric Bell, Mr. W. Randolph Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings, of Chicago; Dr. and Mrs. Worth B. Daniels, Mr. James J. Dooling, Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Magill, Miss Mary Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Price, Mr. and Mrs. David Sarnoff, Mrs. Hugh Campbell, wife of the late one-time Ambassador to France; Mr. and Mrs. S. Clay Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Lyle C. Wilson, Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood, Miss Marguerite LeHand, and the Military Aid to the President and Mrs. Edwin M. Watson.

The table in the state dining room was decorated with pale pink roses, baby primula and adiantum baldii fern. Mrs. William E. Borah, whose husband has recently declared himself a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, wore a gown which fitted perfectly with the color scheme, pale pink satin, embroidered with irridescent paillettes, and a long graceful train of the satin.

Following the dinner there was a musicale to which additional guests had been invited, when an enjoyable program was given by Miss Lily Pons, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera; Mr. Roman Totenberg, young Polish violinist; Miss Cornelia Otis Skinner, famous diseuse, and Mr. Arpad Sandor at the piano.

Mr. Totenberg opened the concert with a group of selections which included "Montanesa and Granadina," by Nin-Kochanski; "The Fountains of Arethusa," by Szymanowski; "Danse Espagnole," by de Falla. Later his numbers included "Prayer," by Haendel Dlesch; "Guitaree," by Moszkowski, and "Polonaise," by Wieniawski.

Miss Pons sang "Lo! Here the Gentle Lark," by Bishop; "Plaisir d'Amour," by Martini; "An Aria From the Barber of Seville," by Rossini; "I Dream Too Much" from the prima donna's recent film of the same name; "Theme Variee," by Saint-Saens; "Les Filles de Cadix" and "Bell Son" from the opera Lakme, by Delibes.

Senator Guffey Plans Reception Next Sunday

The entertainment is given under the auspices of the Washington branch of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, Mrs. E. Rust Smith, directress.

The work of the association is of value in the preservation of the history of the country, restoring the early county record of Virginia, and the preservation of historic Jamestown Island. Twenty-two and one-half acres of this ground, with the church, the old graveyard and many hallowed historic relics there, are owned and cared for by this association. The site and foundation of the first capitol in Williamsburg, the oldest gaol, the Powder Horn and other sites and buildings, also were owned and preserved by the association. Other possessions of the association include the Mary Washington House and the historic Rising Sun Tavern in Fredericksburg. The John Marshall House in Richmond, built by Chief Justice Marshall, is the headquarters of the association.

Mrs. Hull Plans Luncheon Party For First Lady

Function Today to Be First of Cabinet Series for Mrs. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, will entertain at a luncheon today at the Carlton Hotel in honor of Mrs. Roosevelt. This is the first of the series of luncheons given by the Cabinet hostesses in honor of the First Lady.

Mrs. Hull will be at home next Wednesday afternoon for the first time this year. In former years every Wednesday in January and February until the beginning of Lent was Cabinet day, and the ladies of the Cabinet were at home to those who wished to call. With the Roosevelt Administration, a new custom was inaugurated and will be effective again this season. Instead of all the Cabinet hostesses receiving every Wednesday three will be at home each Wednesday in January, and again in February.

Next Wednesday Mrs. Hull will receive at the Carlton; Mrs. Henry A. Morgenthau, jr., wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, at her home on R street, and Mrs. George H. Dern, wife of the Secretary of War, at Highwood, the Dern home on Military road.

The following Wednesday the hostesses will be Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the Attorney General; Mrs. James A. Farley, wife of the Postmaster General, who will come from her home in New York for the reception, and Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy.

On January 22, Capital society will pay official calls to Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture; Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, and Miss Frances Perkins, the Secretary of Labor. These plans have been made by the Cabinet hostesses, but are subject to change later.

State P. E. O. Staff Plans Reception

"At Home" Slated Sunday by Mrs. Underwood.

The State P. E. O. officers will be at home to all members and visiting P. E. O.s in Washington at the home of Mrs. Harry L. Underwood, 2800 Ontario road, Sunday from 4 to 7 p. m.

The State officers receiving will be Miss Laura Hanson, president; Mrs. Kenneth Jacob, first vice president; Dr. Ella R. Fales, second vice president; Mrs. W. O. Reed, organizer; Mrs. Robert Ferguson, recording secretary; Mrs. E. C. Higbie, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Harry Underwood, treasurer. They will be assisted by the presidents of the local chapters: Mrs. G. F. Bixby, Mrs. E. E. Stockberger, Mrs. Florence Cole, Mrs. U. V. Burnside, Mrs. Harry B. Pitts, Mrs. Sidney Forbes, Mrs. Johnston B. Campbell, Mrs. Donald L. Maxson, Mrs. Floyd Reynolds, Mrs. Alan C. Maxwell and Mrs. Leo H. Paulger.

Milady's Fancy For Silk Undies Lured by Sales

Stores Appealing to Those Desiring to Save on Nighties, Also.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

THEY'RE in full swing today, so don't lose a minute! We refer to the January underwear sales just launched in a downtown store.

If you're an economist, even in a small way, you can figure out in five minutes how to save yourself a lot of money by taking advantage of this opportunity.

Just think, chemises, dansettes, and panties, pure dye silk, and silk satins in blue and tearose, sizes 17 to 21, for $1.65. Imagine! The same things you usually pay a whole lot more for—and will if you aren't up on your toes for this sale.

Also, there are four lovely styles of satin nighties beautifully trimmed with imported laces. They come in blue, dusty, and buttercup. And the price? Only $1.95. But wait, there's more news yet. Some of those gorgeous satin Dasche gowns we were paying $5 for at Christmas time are down now to $3.95. These are wonderfully long lasting, and exquisitely trimmed in cobweblike lace. In sizes 32 to 44.

Should Permit Fine Soaps.

ONE luxury which every woman should permit herself is fine soap for the bath. A soap that will cleanse thoroughly but gently and in no way roughen her skin.

A well-known French toiletry house puts out excellent soaps subtly scented with violet, jade, carnation and bouquet fragrances. Use them once and you'll never want to be without them. They're sold in a local store, three cakes to a box, $1.

Snuggle Bunnies.

DESIGNED especially for his Majesty the Infant are "Snuggle Bunny" and "Snuggle Ducky." Both are crib covers that fasten so securely they'll stay in place no matter how much baby kicks and wiggles.

They're arranged to fit snugly around baby's neck with a patented neckband sufficiently soft and yielding to be very comfortable. It won't fold, kink, or bind.

These "bunnies" and "duckies" are arranged for extra space so baby can sleep with his arms above his head and still be well under cover. They are made of a soft cotton or muslin material that's easily washable. There are numbers of points in favor of these covers. They permit baby to lie in any normal position, to turn, kick, and twist as he pleases. They help to prevent thumb sucking. Because they're cut out in back they remain dry and daily washing is not necessary. And best of all they can be depended on to keep baby tucked in all night long.

Drawer Space Provided.

THOSE of you who live in pint-sized apartments where drawer and closet space is at a premium will readily recognize the convenience of the little hampers and chests of drawers shown in a downtown store. Some of these are made of heavy cardboard, some of wood and some of beaver board. They're at all prices and in dozens of styles to suit any budget and need.

One particularly handy one is a beaver-board chest of six drawers costing only $2.95. Then there's a hamper with space for clothes and six drawers for shoes at $5.95. A small four-section wood chest for lingerie, etc., is $1.69.

Scads of Boudoir Slippers.

IF YOU'RE one of the lucky ones who received lounging pajamas or a hostess gown for Christmas then no doubt you're looking out for just the right pair of boudoir slippers. There's an excellent chance of your finding the ideal pair among those now displayed in a local store. There are simply scads of them here, and every one as pretty as a picture. You'll find suede sandals, leather slippers, mules in satin, trimmed in gold, or silver kid, in velvet bows, and downy, fluffy feathers. The prices starting at $1, are amazingly modest.

Woman Reader Says She Fails to See Anything Moral in Promiscuous Propagation of Human Species; Asks Others' Views on Birth Control.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: I would be interested in reading in your truly valuable column the views of readers on the vital subject of birth control. It is amazing to me that certain leaders of high rank regularly voice vehement protests against dissemination of birth control information. They proclaim it a moral issue, holding even married persons should not be informed on the subject.

I fail to see anything moral in promiscuous propagation of the human species, in bringing unlimited numbers of children into the world under any and all conditions. The way of progress is not through ignorance even though some have always tried to make us think so. To those of us who have seen first-hand the disaster wreaked in certain lives, which the knowledge of birth control might have prevented, the loudly-voiced views of such spokesmen sound little short of vicious. If such spokesmen had taken upon themselves the vows and responsibilities of marriage and parenthood, their views might carry more weight, to say the least.

* * * *

The cause of war itself is economic and the ultimate cure of war is the safe and sane regulating of the world's population, not in nations competing with each other in begetting human cannon fodder. Selectivity is quite as important in evolving the human species as it is in agriculture or in radio sets.

Sincerely, HELEN JONES.

* * * *

DEAR MISS JONES: With you, I should be deeply interested in having the opinions of column readers on the moot subject of birth control which is indeed one of the most vital as well as one of the most contested issues of the century. M. H.

Attention: "Interested."

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: Your advice to "Interested," given in your column of December 24, to dignify her own occupation before she can expect others to do so has so sound a basis that it should not fail to lead her toward the solution of her problem.

* * * *

If she will write to Miss Margaret Cowl, 50 East Thirteenth street, New York City, she will learn that a great band of women, some of them internationally known, are taking an interest in the domestic worker and seeking a practicable solution of a very vexing problem. The first issue of their periodical, "The Woman's Magazine," will appear in February, and I suggest that "Interested" apply direct to Miss Cowl for a copy.

Yours very sincerely,
MRS. M. S. S.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. M. S. S.: Thank you for your friendly and instructive letter. It is interesting to know enlightened women the world over are organizing for the explicit purpose of remedying the age-old social evil of exploitation of domestic labor. M. H.

Wide Vegetable Selection Helps Winter's Menus

Many Satisfying Articles of Food Available; New Dishes Suggested.

By Elisabeth Ellicott Poe.

THE WINTER bouquet of vegetables, while it may not revel in color and fragrance, has a sturdy charm of its own and, best of all, many important food elements to contribute to daily menus.

Glance over it for a minute. Of course, there is the potato, mainstay of many a meal; then the turnip in its several varieties; parsnip with its slightly different flavor from most vegetables, therefore its use has to be acquired by some households; the salsify, with its oyster flavor; the omnipresent onion; the carrot, with its touch of color adding zest to any meal and filled with useful properties as well; kale and spinach, brussels sprouts and cabbage, why, the list runs to surprisingly large proportions.

Nor must be forgotten the beet, with its valuable contribution of sugar elements, and celery, which is a joy to any palate braised or stewed. Of late years the delicately flavored broccoli has been added to the catalogue of winter vegetable although with easy transportation it can be obtained in the spring and fall as well. Artichokes are another type of vegetable for feast days in winter, their cost is prohibitive, usually, for too frequent use. And here we were, almost forgetting the cauliflower, a kind of glorified cabbage, with an unforgettable taste. Endive is a helpful addition to salad possibilities and a good substitute when lettuce is scarce or high.

Speaking of salads here is a recipe for brussels sprouts salad which will prove a novelty at any dinner table. It is made as follows:

Brussels Sprouts Salad.

Boil sprouts tender. Drain and put aside to chill. Sprinkle lightly with salt and lemon juice half hour before serving. Serve in salad bowl, garnish with crisp lettuce leaves. Cover with mayonnaise dressing.

A great secret in the use of winter vegetables is hidden in the variety of ways in which the skillful housewife will present them to a family longing for the fresh green vegetables of the spring and summer.

Take carrots, for instance. In the form of carrot cakes they are a tasty addition to either lunch or dinner. Fix them in this way.

Carrot Cakes.

1 cup grated carrots, one-third cup milk, 1 tablespoon corn starch, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon baking powder and salt.

Soak carrots in cold water one hour to crisp, scrape, grate and measure. Add well beaten egg, milk and salt. Sift in corn starch and baking powder. Fry by spoonfuls on hot greased griddle.

Frying parsnips is not the only way in which this vegetable can be present. Try creaming parsnips the next time they are included on the daily menu and watch the family emulate Oliver Twist and ask for "more."

Here is a working recipe for creamed parsnips. Scrub and scrape fresh parsnips. Cut in small pieces, add just enough cold water to cook tender, add salt while cooking, also one teaspoon lemon juice. Cover vessel, cook slowly and steadily until tender, about forty-five minutes. Water should be evaporated by that time; add one tablespoon butter, salt and pepper to taste, add one tablespoon cream or rick milk. Toss frequently while heating.

After parsnips are cooked and drained, one cup medium white sauce may be added instead of the ingredients above.

Art Exhibition Group Headed By Mrs. Knox

By Hope Ridings Miller.

FEW WASHINGTON WOMEN have a wider range of interests than Mrs. McCook Knox, chairman of the committee sponsoring the exhibition of oil paintings at Studio House and sculpture at the Junior League headquarters thn next two weeks. Both exhibitions are being sent to Washington by the Museum of Modern Art.

Work on the committee in charge represents only one of the many projects to which Mrs. Knox has given her time. Her activities show her interest in every type of art "from needlepoint to oil painting," the result of personal enthusiasm coupled with much study.

The walls of her apartment at 2101 Connecticut avenue are rich with oil paintings. Among others are two still-life studies by Rubens Peale, some of Sully's portraits and a painting by Marjorie Phillips. There are also enlarged daguerreotypes of Mrs. Knox's father, Anson G. McCook; a framed piece of wallpaper from a Scotch house where Robert Burns' father was gardener, and a rare collection of prints depicting figures and faces of people prominent during the War Between the States. All these, her books on art and history, her notebooks describing her work in connection with early American portraiture, and the needlepoint she has made reflect Mrs. Knox's many interests.

Yesterday in her apartment Mrs. Knox told something of the work that has occupied most of her time the last few years.

Something of the Work.

The story begins back in the days when Mrs. Knox and Miss Helen C. Frick were classmates at Miss Spence's School in New York. The friendship, based on a common bond of interest in art, ripened in later years. When Miss Frick started the Art Reference Library in 1920 (in the cellar of the Frick mansion), Mrs. Knox began her unique type of research for it that has taken her all over the United States and Europe, and has made her an authority on early American portraiture. It also opened the way to the writing of her book, "The Sharples," a diary and account of the life of James Sharples and his family in England and America.

Describing her work in connection with the institution as "simply research that will make the reference files more complete," Mrs. Knox talked with enthusiasm about the Frick Art Reference Library. She pointed out particularly that "in founding this institution Miss Frick's chief purpose was to supplement her father's famous collection with a reference library which would, nevertheless, still be a distinct unit in itself."

New Headquarters.

In this connection Mrs. Knox also mentioned that the library, which opened at its new headquarters a year ago, now has 219,000 photographs, and 49,000 books and catalogs.

"The library serves many people," she said. "There are countless requests for information from genealogists, costume designers, historians and artists."

Mrs. Knox admits she enjoys doing research for the library because it gives her "experiences in pioneering and thrills in discovering whether portraits are authentic, and where works of noted early American painters are located."

Traveling throughout the country, ferreting out old portraits, indentifying them and having them photographed for the file of the Frick Art Reference Library, she has learned many facts regarding early American arts. She has found, for example, that from 1700 to 1830 American painting was quaintly imitative of contemporary English and French art; that the period around the War of '61 was "impoverished, stilted and dull," and that "there is a monotonous similarity in wearing apparel appearing in early American portraiture."

Commission for Portraits.

Explaining the latter, she pointed out that in the days when painters were rare and travel difficult, "artists frequently spent their winters painting fully dressed figures, leaving a blank space for the head until the artist got a commission for a portrait. That's one reason some persons wonder today what became of Grandmother's pearl brooch," she explained. "It also explains why so many portraits show the identical type of gown and jewels."

Much as she has worked as "a sleuth of early American art," however, Mrs. Knox has found time to study contemporary painting at the Phillips Memorial Gallery "where my interest in modern art was first aroused;" and she is glad Washington is to have two exhibits from the Museum of Modern Art.

"There will be 14 canvases in all, most of which are from the Lillie P. Bliss Collection, now the property of the Museum of Modern Art," she said. "These will be shown at Studio House from January 6 through January 19 and will include work by Derain, Degas, Matisse, Vuillard, Modigliani, Rousseau, Picasso, Redon and Gauguin. The sculpture exhibition, obtained from private collections through the Museum of Modern Art, will comprise 12 pieces. It will be at the Junior League rooms from January 6 through January 18. The sculptors represented are Maillol, Despiau, Lachaise, Kolbe, Barlach and Epstein."

American Girl Grows More Dignified; Studied Vacuity of Decade Ago Is Gone

By the United Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 2.—The flapper's refrain of the 1920s: "A rag, a bone, a hank of hair, lipstick, rouge, a baby stare"—has no part in the life of the young girl of 1936.

A United Press survey of delegates to the World-Wide Young People's Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South disclosed this fact today. Boys and girls between 16 and 25 years paused between discussion groups to give their views on the American miss of the present era.

She is changing from the boyish, bobbed-haired maid of 1925 to a more dignified, seriously-thinking type, the consensus showed:

The studied vacuity which accompanied the "lipstick, rouge and baby stare . . ." is fast vanishing, according to pert Miss Katharin Dugger, 23-year-old farm girl of Lytton Springs, Tex.

"An index to the modern girl's character is her clothes," Miss Dugger declared. "In the 'tacky' 'twenties it was: 'I'm going to town, clothes, if you want to go, then hang on.' "

Clothes now reflect the dignity and femininity of the wearer, she said.

"Women now have more advantages. They study the future more and they are thinking deeply," said Maxine McElroy, of Shiner, Tex. She added they possess better personalities than their sisters of the past decade.

Virginia Collin, 17, Tampa, Fla., echoed that statement. "Girls are more sensible than they have been in the last ten years," she added.

"It's dignity," said thoughtful Miss Rosemary Moore, of Muskogee, Okla. "Dignity is the watchword of girls of today."

From the man's viewpoint, Herman Vetter, 20, of Kerrville, Tex., agreed it must be something like that.

"In the past," he declared, "you could call a girl up for 'date' and she'd be ready in five minutes. Now you have to wait for them. It shows they are getting more dignified—or something."

Red-haired G. W. Harrell, jr., also from the Lone Star State, was cynical despite his 17 years. He said

"Most girls want a boy with money, a car, whisky and cigarettes. But if a boy wants to, he can find plenty of good Christian girls."

Good Health Best Remedy For Baldness

Proper Diet and Massaging May Aid Growth of New Hair.

By Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

THE health of the hair and of the scalp depends in a very large measure upon the health of the body. We must not assume that falling hair has no other significance than that disease of the hair follicles or the scalp is present.

Fundamentally, the state of nutrition of the skin depends on two factors: (1) circulation and (2) nutritional value of the blood. If the hair follicles are to maintain active growth the blood supply must be adequate in amount. Hair can starve just as can cells in other parts of the body. It can also be poisoned.

Some of us have swung away from the habit of stimulating the scalp through massaging the area until it is filled with blood. Brushing in a sense performs this function, but even this procedure has too largely gone out of fashion.

Of course, we have infections. Bacteria and parasites—particularly plant fungi—may find opportunities for growth on an unwashed scalp. Dirt favors infection, and hatbands, after they have been worn a week, are rarely clean, particularly if they have been soiled by perspiration. Furthermore, hats collect dirt on the inside as well as on the outside, and how many of us clean the inside of our hats? If a soiled hat is worn for hours at a time we can readily understand how the scalp may become infected. Most hatbands will stand a bit of cleaning not less often than once a week with either soap and water, benzine, or alcohol.

The skin of the forehead may look clean, but it is rarely so and usually harbors more dirt than any other part of the body except the hands. Yes, we must clean the hair, the scalp, and the hat. In this way we will probably avoid that most common cause of baldness—dandruff.

The circulation in the scalp and the condition of the blood are general body states, and but temporary improvement may be anticipated by vigorous attention to the scalp and the hair unless equal care is given to the general health. Some fault of metabolism, a digestive upset, a chronic condition of the colon, a gland deficiency—any or all of these may be attended with the loss of hair. Vitamin deficiencies have been blamed, and often a change in diet, including a larger proportion of fresh vegetables and fruits, will be followed by improvement.

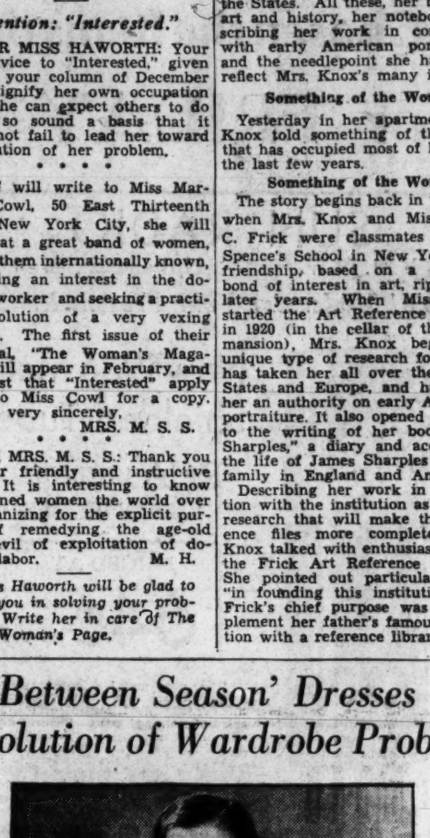
'In-Between Season' Dresses Solution of Wardrobe Problem



By Frances Mangum.

THIS IS THE TIME of the year when we begin to tire of our winter wardrobe and seek some means of enlivening it. The soft, deep shades of red, rust and green, the somber browns and blacks have grown monotonous and we're impatient for spring pastels and prints.

Rather than rush the season, however, many are turning to gay and rather bright "in-between season" dresses much as the one in the picture above. This is a delightful blue crepe. A blue, deeper than powder, lighter than turquoise. It's gayly trimmed with rose, blue, and green beads, and a flambuoyant chiffon hanky (tacked to the pocket) in blue, yellow, and red.

There's a bit of Mexican influence here as apparent in the striking colors and beads. This in itself might be called a refreshing relief from the Grecian and Renaissance effect of the fall and winter styles.

Dresses for the coming season are going to be definitely more feminine say advance reports from Paris. If this is true then this very dress is a veritable fashion prophet. The graceful bow fastening the high neck, the full sleeves shirred at the shoulders. The snug waist, emphasized by fullness in the yoke, and also the bead trimming and chiffon handkerchief make it a definitely feminine frock—and youthful too.

Since lots of shoppers prefer not to strain their budgets for "betwixt and between season" dresses, this one is ideally priced. Its only $7.95.

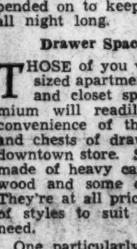
PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin.

WITH A GREAT SIGH we survey the past holiday scene at our house—and decide that something should be done about it! When the last pine or spruce needles have been swept up and the last bit of tinsel rolled in a ball for next year, the everyday scene is likely to look a bit drab. That's a good time to replace old curtains with new ones—a good time to select the bright new material we've been wanting for our old chairs.



A lady with a Christmas check to spend is just now engrossed in this problem: Her walls are eggshell and her carpet in soft green; the sofa has a cocoa-colored covering and one chair is in a figured material that is mostly wine. The draperies are of wine color and the glass curtains are of eggshell.

The question that is puzzling her now is—what color should she have the extra chair? What accessories? It seems to us that a deep beige might be interesting for another chair in this room. We would like shiny brasses in this room, too—in tall candlesticks, a samovar, perhaps, and a pair of big flat plates to stand on a mantel or bookcase. Send a stamp for Miss Boykin's bulletin, "How to Upholster a Chair."

On The Air Today

THERE will be no "Beauty Box Theater or "Hollywood Hotel" tonight. The President of the United States talks—and commercial radio invariably fades into a school boy's vacation on such occasions. WJSV, WRC and WMAL all will be there.

President Roosevelt makes his personal address before the second session of the Seventy-fourth Congress at 9 and, as has been the custom for the last few sessions, the message will be heard by every American citizen who wishes to take a radio-side chair.

N. B. C. and C. B. S. mikes will be sprinkled over Capitol Hill at midday for the opening. WRC begins at 11:30, continuing until 1. WMAL's hours are from 11:45 until 1. WJSV's pickups are in two parts: 12 to 12:30, and 1:15 to 1:45.

A number of maestros have selected new theme songs for those lost when the ASCAP-Warner Brothers copyright situation took effect this week. Andre Kostelanetz (Pons-Martini half-hours) has selected "Love Is Mine;" "Hollywood Hotel" picks up "Thanks a Million" to replace "Blue Moon;" Myrt and Marge will replace "Poor Butterfly" with "How Can I Go On Without You;" Fred Allen substitutes "Smile, Darn Ya, Smile" for "Smiles," and Abe Lyman switches from "California Here I Come" to "Lights Out."

In the meantime, Powel Crosley (owner of WLW) has telegraphed Attorney General Cummings urging a "complete investigation" of "special arrangements, if any, between copyright holders, broadcasting networks and other types of broadcasters." Crosley said he protested the reported withdrawal in a New York District Court of a Government suit against Ascap, claiming that greater diligence is needed on the part of the Government in order "that independent broadcasting stations shall not have exorbitant fees doubled up on them."

The Associated Press further advises that negotiations are under way between music publishers controlled by the seceding Warners and individual stations for continued use of Warner-owned music. Warners say the larger networks "have shown no tendency to cooperate with us, and therefore, this music (meaning Warner-controlled music) will not be available for their use."

One of the reasons, no doubt, that the stations "show no tendency" is that a fee in addition to one already being paid Ascap would be required by Warners.

All in all, the situation is ably sized up by local broadcasting officials under the quaint colloquial term—"a mess."

Libbey Will Lecture On Cascades Volcanoes

Donald S. Libbey, supervisor of emergency conservation work for the National Park Service, will deliver an illustrated lecture on "The Snow-Covered Volcanoes of the Cascades" next Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Government auditorium, Thirteenth street and Constitution avenue.

Many volcanic peaks of the Cascade Mountains, including those within Crater Lake, Mount Rainier and Lassen National Parks, will be described. Lantern slides will illustrate Libbey's talk. Before entering the park service, he was professor of geology for 12 years at Drury College, Springfield, Mo.

Dancing Groups Begin Bal Boheme Rehearsal

Dancing groups under the direction of Miss Marian Venable, Miss Marian Chace, Miss Marjorie Webster, Miss Virginia Hunter, Miss Helen Griffith, Mrs. Donna Taggart and Miss Alice Louise Hunter have begun rehearsals for specialty numbers in the Bal Boheme, which will be held at the Willard Hotel January 20.

They will participate in the pageant, "The Lost Opal," written by William S. Hepner, of the Arts Club, which is sponsoring the thirteenth renewal of the ball. Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest will direct the pageant. Casting, in charge of Mrs. Maud Howell Smith, is virtually completed.

Broadway

By Ed Sullivan

Manhattan Promenade.

New York, Jan. 2.

VARIETY, one of the brisker trade papers, is turning more and more to the discussion of grand opera, now that Grace Moore has led a parade of opera canaries into talking pictures . . . So it is interesting to read the slangy Variety discussion of the formal opening of the sedate Metropolitan: "Newsreel shot the opening night mob, the photogs going to town on back-stage glimpses and angular candid shots. Intake at box-office was brisk, with Monday and Thursday nights sold out and solid with standees. Veteran opera fans couldn't recall when Mrs. Whatsis and her mildly unwilling spouse had sported so much ermine and sparklers. Costuming is a highlight of the troupe, and a fourteen-week run should do much to season the youngsters, so as to win over the old-timers" . . . . If this breezier creeps into the realm of opera, you need not be surprised to read that Lily Pons, in her next opera, will sing "The Music Goes 'Round and 'Round—ho, ho, ho, ho" instead of Carmen.

• • • •

No song since the days of "Yes, We Have No Bananas" has swept the country like this "Music Goes 'Round and 'Round" . . . At our New Year's shows the audience not only yelled for it but actually joined in the six or seven choruses sung by the Frazee Sisters and Ella Logan . . . That is amazing in a new song, but the fact that the lyric is simple and the tune contagious is the answer to its quick popularity . . . The Onyx Club band that introduced it will reap a quick fortune in vaudeville dates . . . The publishers will cash in via sheet sales, radio royalties and records . . . I understand that the fellow who actually wrote it, tagged Hodges, sold it for $10 . . . The locals tried to overlook him when the song became a best seller, but they tell me that his lawyers have persuaded all concerned to put Hodges' name on the cover and also stake him to part of the royalties.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, most famous of American war aces, was a backstage visitor on New Year's Day . . . Later, over the chops at Eddie Wittmer's place, he was telling the story of the old lady making her first flight to Florida at night . . . In the darkness, her gaze was attracted by the red and green navigation lights that are situated on the wings, the red light on the left wing, the green on the right . . . She rang for the co-pilot and asked him what the lights were placed there for, and he explained they were navigation lights . . . "Oh, I see," she said happily, "you keep a red light on the right, a green light on the left and then just fly between them."

• • • •

Funniest gag of the week, however, is the old one which the Ritz brothers have dressed up in a new suit of clothes . . . In the middle of the finale, the three comics become tremendously excited . . . They announce that Jack Dempsey is in the audience . . . Naturally the audience starts applauding . . . Then one of them holds up his hand for silence, and says: "It's not Dempsey—Pardon me, madam" . . . It always takes the audience a split-second to get the inference that there's a woman in the audience who looks as muscular as the former champ, but then the roof caves in.

During the peak of the New Year excitement, with thousands of people jamming Broadway . . . One of Commissioner Valentine's better-known aids dropped in to extend the 1936 greetings. The talk switched to the iron fists of Joe Louis, the Detroit Bomber, who never has trouble with his maulies though he hits with terrific force . . . I asked the police inspector how it was that the hard-hitting detectives of the Broadway patrol, who often engage in punching duels, rarely break their hands or knuckles . . . It seems that they roll a newspaper tightly, hold it in the clenched fist with perhaps three inches of it protruding from the spot where the thumb curls . . . "Detectives, using the butt of that tightly rolled paper as a hitting surface, can flatten a giant," explained the inspector, "and they can keep punching all night, without bruising their hands."

Ballou Maps Building Plan For Schools

Eastern High Situation Most Urgent, Says Superintendent.

Expedition of Program Urged in Report to D. C. Board.

First reports looking to a new long-range school building program were submitted to the board of education yesterday by Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools.

"The Eastern High School situation is the most urgent need of the school system," he told the board, saying the school, now on a two-shift basis, was accommodating 876 more pupils than its capacity called for.

The reports, covering needs of the school system's administration, its teachers colleges and the senior high schools, were turned over to the finance committee, headed by George M. Whitwell.

New Reports Promised.

Further reports will cover junior high school, vocational school and elementary school needs. They will be correlated by the finance committee, submitted to the full board, put into recommendation form and then shaped into legislation to be introduced to the present session of Congress.

"I feel strongly that the program should be handled as expeditiously as possible," Dr. Ballou told the board.

Suggestions made by Dr. Ballou yesterday included:

Provision of regional high schools to serve the Manor Park and Takoma Park areas to relieve commercial education crowding at Roosevelt High School.

Retaining of ninth-grade pupils in junior high schools to relieve crowding at Central, Western and Cardozo high schools.

Building program to relieve Armstrong High School.

Provision of expanded record facilities for the school system.

Securing of centrally located facilities for the Visual Education Library.

He also asked the board to consider whether it should replace Wilson or Miner Teachers College or both, and whether a junior college should be inaugurated with each institution.

Report Cites Conditions.

Dr. Ballou's report cited the following high-school conditions, as of November 1:

School	Capacity	Enrollment	Difference
Central	2,400	2,665	265 over
Eastern	2,100	2,976	876 over
McKinley	2,200	2,190	10 under
Roosevelt	1,600	1,822	222 over
Western	1,400	1,559	159 over
Wilson	1,500	765	735 under
Armstrong	1,100	1,639	539 over
Cardozo	1,050	1,104	54 over
Dunbar	1,500	1,407	93 under

The white high schools had a capacity of 11,300 pupils, and were accommodating 677 more, or 11,977. The colored high schools' capacity was 3,650, with 500 extra pupils, or 4,150.

Of Eastern High School, Dr. Ballou said "the relief for this emergency situation should be prompt and adequate."

Of Armstrong, he said it "represents one of the most pressing educational problems in the high schools of Washington."

Federal Funds Help.

The board of education yesterday received a report from Assistant Superintendent Jere J. Crane showing that 17 local schools were being improved now with Federal funds—Barnard, Bowen, Brightwood, Keene, Lafayette, Mann, Maury, McKinley, Paul, Peabody, Randle Highlands, Stoddert, Stuart, Taft, Wallach, Woodrow Wilson and Young.

It delayed action on a recommendation to start a waiting list for kindergarten children as school officers sought to limit the number of kindergarten pupils to be taught by each pupil.

Mrs. Edna S. Brown, principal of Reno School, was promoted to the principalship of Syphax School, succeeding Miss Mathiel Williams, retired. Miss W. F. Brown, teacher at Mott School, was appointed teaching principal of Reno.

Soldier's Car Looted.

Homer P. Lott, colored, a soldier attached to the medical department at West Point, N. Y., reported to police $206 worth of clothing, personal belongings of his wife and himself, were stolen from his automobile parked in the 1400 block Twelfth street northwest yesterday.

Mother Dying of Grief For Missing Daughter

Father Pleads for Child's Return; Offers Reward for Any Clews.

Mrs. V. C. Thyrring, of 417 Oglethorpe street northwest, is dying of grief because her daughter, 15-year-old Alva Carmen Thyrring, has not been found after a search of 68 days.

Torn with grief himself, the father last night announced that he would pay a reward of $200 to any person who would return his child safely or give information leading to her return. And, he said:

"In the event that she should return voluntarily, this reward will be paid to her, as nothing else would make her parents happier than having her home again."

Alva, a Central High School pupil, has not been seen or heard of by her parents or friends since October 25, when she visited her former teacher at the Paul Junior High School.

The anguish of the parents was evident in the announcement of the reward prepared by the father. He said:

"Her mother is seriously ill from heart trouble, caused by grief and anxiety over the safety of Alva, and this illness has been very much aggravated by the disappointment of not having Alva home for the Christmas season and not even having heard from her at this time.

"The suspense of not knowing whether Alva is alive and safe has made her indifferent to her own recovery, which is doubtful, unless Alva returns soon.

"No doubt Alva has been worrying over her long absence from school. She need not worry over this, as she will not have to account to the school authorities for her absence, as this has been settled by her mother."

Alva is 15 years and 8 months old, 5 feet 3 inches tall, weighs 115 pounds. Her hair is medium blonde, naturally wavy and is usually worn combed back, forming a turned-up wave at the back of her neck. Her eyes are large and blue-gray. She has wide eyebrows, oval face, full lips, high forehead, medium nose and fair complexion.

Rules for Use Warn Owners Of Firearms

Code Is Intended to Save Recipients of Guns From Themselves.

A code intended to make firearms foolproof has been drafted by the National Rifle Association.

The purpose of the movement, it was announced yesterday, is to promote safety among persons who received rifles or pistols as Christmas gifts.

All one need do to take the danger out of firearms is abide by the following code, it is stated:

1. I will never point my gun at anything I do not want to shoot.
2. I will never load my gun when it is pointed at any person.
3. I will never pull the trigger "just for fun."
4. I will never shoot at bottles or other hard surfaces from which the bullet may glance.
5. I will always look to see if a gun is empty before handling it.
6. I will never carry a loaded gun except when hunting, and then only with the safety lock on.
7. I will never shoot at harmless animals for sport.
8. I will never leave wounded game to suffer.
9. I will always put my gun through a fence muzzle first before I climb through.
10. I will always clean my gun when I have finished shooting it.

Vice Squad Jailed 1,321 During Year

Members of the Police Department vice squad made 1,321 arrests during 1935 and confiscated 17,540 pieces of evidence, it was revealed in an annual report submitted to Police Chief Ernest W. Brown by Lieut. George M. Little, in charge of the squad.

Arrests for violations of practically every law and regulation in the District and United States law codes were listed. The arrests ranged from minor traffic offenses to charges of mutilating Government currency, bigamy, violations of white slave acts, gambling offenses and liquor law violations.

More than 10,000 quarts of illicit whisky were seized, with 313 bottles of beer and 7,100 gallons of mash. In gaming raids, the squad seized 69 telephones, a roulette wheel, 25 slot machines and 42 adding machines.

Ten stills were smashed and 30 automobiles seized for transporting illegal liquor.

10,000 Put Back On Cash-Relief Status in D. C.

200 Families Are Returned to Supplemental Aid; Future Studied.

Washington's 10,000 relief clients went back on full payment basis yesterday as District officials laid plans for meeting the relief problem in the future.

Daniel J. Donovan, District auditor and deputy works administrator, and William C. Cleary, assistant, were in Philadelphia attending a regional works meeting, presumably to develop facts on which Harry Hopkins, Federal administrator, and President Roosevelt will base the national program beyond March 15.

Two hundred families who had been receiving supplemental relief prior to December 1 were put back on their former status. Cash relief payments had been stopped when Commissioner George E. Allen, District works and relief administrator, ordered reduction in all relief payments last month following withdrawal of Federal funds.

Yesterday there were 9,296 persons on relief receiving cash. Others who were being aided in some other manner brought the total case load to 9,971. On December 9 the number receiving money was 9,751 and the total case load was 10,459.

Those who had been transferred from relief and put to work on WPA jobs numbered 10,255. An additional number assigned to such jobs but not actually at work brought the figure to 10,953. There were 2,317 awaiting assignment to specific jobs.

Nursery Schools' Opening Delayed

Reopening of nursery schools was delayed yesterday when relief and works officials could not find the required trained staff.

Otto Cass, works auditor, said the five white and five colored schools required services of ten teachers, ten dietitians, ten nurses. Under the Federal works rules 90 per cent of the persons employed on works projects must be taken from public relief rolls. There are available, officials said, three white and four colored teachers, one white and two colored dietitians; two white and two colored nurses.

Should the Board of Education be willing, practical nurses and dietitians can be obtained from the relief rolls.

Death Called Suicide, Army Driver Cleared

A coroner's jury yesterday called Clarence Courtney, 52, of Rosslyn, Va., a suicide after he had thrown himself under the wheels of an Army truck on the Key Bridge Tuesday.

Witnesses testified Courtney was walking south toward his home when the truck approached. He stepped from the curb and dived under the wheels. The verdict exonerated Private Bernard E. Martin, attached to the Quartermaster Corps at Walter Reed Hospital, driver of the truck.

Youth Forgets Phone, Runs Through Slush for Firemen

The next time a fire breaks out, John Liccini will use the telephone.

Last night a chimney caught fire in John's home, the old Bates farm house near Eleventh and Varnum streets northeast. John, who is 18 years old and 6 feet tall, ran through a mile and a half of snow and slush to No. 17 firehouse at Monroe and Twelfth streets.

John's father, Louis who runs the farm for the Catholic Sisters College nearby; his mother, Anna, and his brothers and sisters, Teresa, 16; Rita, 14; Luke, 12; Rose, 10; Raymond, 4, and Mary Louise, 1, calmly stood around while firemen extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

Someone told John about firemen coming when you call them on the telephone. He blushed and said he guessed he was too excited.

The damage was trivial. The home was built shortly before the War Between the States and occupied for many years by the Bates family, one of Washington's oldest.

One of the Bates daughters was the wife of Bill Jones, known as "the Avenger," the man who tried to shoot the assassin of President Garfield, Charles J. Guiteau, as Guiteau was being moved from the jail to the courthouse in a police wagon.

Capper Ready To Push Fight For Suffrage

Proposed Bill Extends Citizenship Rights to Washington.

Public hearings on the joint resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to give the District national representation will be demanded by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, early in the approaching session, he said yesterday.

Co-author of the resolution, Senator Capper said he does not intend to let the issue lie dormant as it has for several years. He will confer at the first opportunity with Senator Ashurst (Democrat), of Arizona, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, regarding the resolution.

"Congress is getting more receptive to the idea of national representation for the District each year," he said. "The people over the country whom I see can hardly believe that the residents of the National Capital are voteless taxpayers without representation."

Provides Citizenship.

The Capper resolution would authorize the submission of an amendment to the Constitution to State Legislatures. The amendment, inserted at the end of section 3, Article IV, would authorize Congress to admit District residents to the status of citizens of a State.

The National Capital, under the proposal, would be entitled to elect one or two Senators, as Congress should determine; Representatives in the House according to population and Presidential electors equal in number to the District's aggregate system into effect.

Qualifications of voters and the time and manner of elections would be decided by Congress along with any laws necessary to put the suffrage system into effect.

King Looms as Chairman.

As Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, is ranking majority member of the Judiciary Committee, he probably would be appointed chairman of any sub-committee selected to hold hearings on the resolution.

A corresponding movement for hearings before the House Judiciary Committee will be inaugurated by Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, who introduced the joint resolution in the House.

Numerous national organizations are behind the new campaign for Congressional action on the national representation resolution. Sponsors of hte legislation have a mass of data ready for presentation when and if hearings are held.

Among the facts to be aired are that, even on the basis of the last national census in 1930—since which the District population has gained thousands—eight States had fewer residents than Washington and ten States fewer men and women of voting age.

Legislator's Auto Looted of Clothes

Representative William J. Granfield (Democrat), of Massachusetts, may have to borrow a clean shirt in which to attend the opening of Congress today.

A thief broke into his machine while it was parked on New Jersey avenue southeast near the New House Office Building last night and walked off with the Representative's suit case containing 15 shirts, a dozen ties, bath robe and slippers and a blue overcoat.

Representative Granfield told police the suit case was valued at $50.

Echoes

Congressman Faces Court as Bell Ringer.

The switchboard operator at the apartment house said Representative Marion A. Zioncheck was ringing bells.

On the intoxication charge the Democratic Representative from Washington yesterday was scheduled to appear in Police Court next Tuesday.

The bell-ringing occurred early New Year's morning when Zioncheck called at an apartment house at 2701 Connecticut avenue to see friends. The friends had gone to bed or were out and the Representative, according to the switchboard operator, D. B. Perry, colored, sat down at the telephone switchboard and rang a number of apartments. Perry called police and Private Brown made the charges against Zioncheck. The case was called for trial yesterday, but was postponed until Tuesday by agreement between Zioncheck and the corporation counsel's office.

D. C. Advised To Plan New Set of Taxes

Cannon Also Demands Permanent Policy on Relief.

By James D. Secrest.

An ultimatum to the District Commissioners to submit new tax proposals and a permanent policy of unemployment relief before further pressing demands for a larger lump payment from the Federal Government was issued late yesterday by Representative Clarence Cannon (Democrat), of Missouri, chairman of the House sub-committee on District appropriations.

At the same time he called high rents in Washington "intolerable" and warned that the sub-committee would take cognizance of "the wide spread between rents and tax assessments" during hearings on the 1937 budget.

Because of Cannon's position, his statement was interpreted as definitely forestalling any new campaign for an increase in the Federal contribution above $5,700,000 in the next District supply bill.

The Commissioners asked the Budget Bureau for a lump sum payment of $8,317,500, but the bureau has not yet transmitted its recommendations to Congress.

Recalls Vote Years Ago.

Cannon said the House apparently has not changed the attitude it reflected several years ago when it passed, without a dissenting vote, the four Mapes tax bills, which would have imposed new assessments on incomes and inheritances and would substitute a motor vehicle weight tax for the present personal property assessments on autos and double the 2-cent tax on gasoline.

"Until the residents of the District pay taxes that are comparable to those of citizens of the States," he said, "the House leaders will be opposed to any change in the Federal contribution.

"However, after these adjustments are made in the District income, I, at least, will favor any change in the lump-sum payment that may be necessary to meet the expenses of maintaining one of the world's greatest national capitals."

The District sub-committee chairman said that the demands for relief appropriations for Washington are far out of proportion to what they should be, and he indicated that the requests of the Commissioners for a deficiency appropriation and larger annual sums to care for the city's unemployed will be closely scrutinized.

No Starvation, He Says.

"The House sub-committee will not let anybody starve," he asserted, "but the Commissioners will have to evolve a permanent policy of relief.

"Washington has never known the effects of a real depression. It is now enjoying greater prosperity than ever before in its history. Even during the peak of the national prosperity or during the World War the District never enjoyed such a business boom.

"The whole trouble is that the District is trying to take care of a large population of unemployed who under normal economic conditions would return to the cotton or corn fields when the city failed to give them employment.

"The thousands of Negroes who have drifted here from the South and the North and managed to get along for a year so that they would be eligible for relief constitute the District's greatest problem. At one time 85 per cent of persons on relief were colored."

District officials reported this week that 23,000 families in Washington are on relief, directly or indirectly. The appropriation of $3,000,000 for emergency relief last session is already rapidly diminishing, although it was intended to cover the whole fiscal year, which does not end until July 1, 1936.

Situation Called Desperate.

The situation has become so desperate since the withdrawal of the Federal dole that the Commissioners plan to ask for an urgent deficiency appropriation shortly after Congress convenes.

Cannon will not decide whether he will conduct the District budget hearings this year, as well as the agricultural appropriations hearings, until he confers with Chairman Buchanan, of the House Appropriations Committee. He recalled that he conducted both hearings last session, but that the practice is irregular.

Whether he presides at the executive sessions or not, however, he will continue to exercise strong influence on the determination of District fiscal policies. Moreover, he and Representative Blanton (Democrat), of Texas, the ranking majority members of the sub-committee, see eye to eye on District affairs.

The District budget will be one of the last to be taken up by the Appropriations Committee, Cannon said, and may not be reached until well into February.

The Budget Bureau's recommendations will be made early next week when the President delivers his budget message to Congress. It is reported that the $47,482,760 total requests of the District Commissioners have been severely slashed.

Cannon was biting in his criticism of Washington landlords who have taken advantage of the housing shortage to raise rents. While explaining that the matter is out of the hands of the Appropriations sub-committee, he said that it would be considered in relation to the $1.50 real estate tax and the scale of realty assessments.

"Instead of raising rents, landlords should cut them, in line with the recent reductions in assessments," he said.

Although he differs from Blanton in the interperation of the anti-Communist rider on the 1936 money act, Cannon agreed with the Texan that the legislation is permanent and can be removed only by a special legislative act.

Some time ago he expressed approval of the opinion of Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman that the rider does not bar the teaching of communism as a subject. Blanton, its author, holds that it does.

Byrns Pledges A Square Deal For D. C. Bills

Interference With Measures Assailed; Va. Boundary Report Scored.

Speaker Byrns yesterday promised the District a square deal in the second session as Senator William H. King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, assailed the District-Virginia Boundary Commission's report.

Reminded that the District lost three of its semimonthly legislative days in the House last session, Byrns said he would oppose any postponements or cancellations of District days this year.

"Two days a month are little enough for the District," he said, "and only emergency matters should be allowed to interfere with them."

Senator King said he was dissatisfied with the boundary commission's report because it awarded Federal property to the State of Virginia. He said he has asked Corporation Counsel E. Barrett Prettyman to prepare a report on the District point of view in the controversy.

No matter which committee the report is submitted to, King said, he will take the lead in opposing it and in insisting upon public hearings.

Senator King is ranking member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to which the report is expected to be referred.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, will be back at the Capitol today and is expected to call a meeting of the House District Committee for next Wednesday morning in anticipation of the first District day in the House on January 13.

While there are sufficient District bills on the House calendar to occupy the first day, Mrs. Norton is known to be eager to assign new legislative proposals to sub-committees for early hearings.

She has announced she would sponsor both a race track bill and a measure to change the character of the juvenile court.

White House Gives Scant Help to Worried Legislators.

The great social crisis of 1936—the problem of correct attire for members of Congress when the President speaks before tonight's joint session—continued unabated yesterday.

From the White House came an official pronouncement. The official pronouncement said nothing was official.

"There will be no official announcement," Stephen T. Early, secretary to the President, replied to anxious questions.

Firm in standing up for the "common people," Representative John R. Mitchell, Tennessee Democrat, said he would wear a blue business suit, and asserted:

"The people elected me to represent them, and I intend to represent them. I bought a tuxedo in 1931, and it's staying in the box."

Senator Joseph R. Guffey (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, couldn't solve the problem for the ess, although he is regarded as a Beau Brummel of the Senate. He said he followed styles and didn't set them.

Representative Percy Gassaway, Oklahoma's former cowboy, promised to wear a $35 pair of boots (without spurs), a business suit and a black string tie.

Last night five cutaway coats were stolen from Jake Rosen's tailoring establishment in the Kellogg Building. Detectives working on the case said it had absolutely no connection with the crisis.

Transit Ills Due to Autos, Hearing Told

Trolley Company Chiefs Defend Transportation in Washington.

Service Handicaps Cited; Strict Regulation, Hanna's Plea.

Congested traffic was blamed for most of Washington's mass transportation system ills at public hearings before the Utilities Commission yesterday as the heads of the Capital Transit Co. began presentation of their reply to public criticism.

John H. Hanna, president of the company, said the service was as good as that in any other city in the country, despite handicaps over which the company had no control.

Difficulties were multiplied, W. B. Bennett, assistant to the president, said, by the overlarge number of taxicabs, the large number of private automobiles, parking on transit lanes and double parking of privately owned vehicles.

Cites Bus Averages.

Mr. Bennett cited the average running time of company buses. In the morning rush it is 11.21 miles per hour, he said. At midday the speed is 11.39 miles per hour.

Col. Dan I. Sultan, member of the commission, expressed surprise there was not greater average speed during the midday nonrush hours. The figures showed, Mr. Bennett said, there was traffic interference during nonrush hours as well as during rush hours.

Evidence of the company's improvements in service, Mr. Bennett said, was to be found in the 195 buses it had put in operation in the last two years. "Our company has increased its bus service 110 per cent, mostly in the last year, a condition unparalleled in any other city in this country," he said.

Admits Many Complaints.

Mr. Hanna, admitting there had been a large number of complaints about service, said many undoubtedly had been prompted by public invitation to make complaints. He was aiming at the invitation by William A. Roberts, people's counsel, addressed to representatives of civic organiztions to cite specific complaints.

Mr. Hanna pointed out that a large part of the complaints which had been made were about the substitution of bus for car service on upper Connecticut avenue. He read a letter from Mrs. F. W. White, 1015 Montana avenue northeast, in which Mrs. White commented "We can't expect street cars to play leapfrog over automobiles."

His company, the president continued, had sufficient equipment to give necessary public service, but the difficulty lay in improper spacing of equipment, due more to traffic conditions than to anything else.

There should be more stringent regulation of traffic and a larger number of experienced and capable and trained men assigned to that task, he said.

Clubs and Hotels Enjoyed Fine Patronage During Holiday Season.

By Chanticleer.

They's getting ready to dust off that old gag about "Hey, mister, go into your dance" up at the Russian Troika. Poor Karavaeff has fallen victim to the disease that gets all good dancers sooner or later. With Karavaeff—later.

It seems that Karavaeff has been experimenting and he's discovered he has a bee-yoo-tiful tenor voice. For the nonce, however, he is confining his vocal efforts to a Russian yodel, sound effects as it were, for a new sensation he has routined to the nosiy strains of "The Music Goes Round and Round." It employs trick whiskers, too.

And don't expect any post-holiday melancholy at the Troika. Russian Christmas comes next week, followed as you will suspect, by Russian New Year's. A whole month's celebrating for the Americanized Russian.

The boys and girls were sitting around at the LaParee yesterday getting their breath and thinking of what a success New Year's Eve was, when someone observed that the time had come to say something about Joe Murphy, the La Paree's emcee. They decided that Joe had been carrying the floor shows along very nicely now for some 15 weeks, and that he was paying the penalty of a long stay—by receiving no mention in the public prints. So—here's our vote for Joe—long may he wave. Incidentally, he's a native Washingtonian, has played with Ted Healey's shows and in the "Vanities," was the first emcee in Manhattan's Hollywood Restaurant and emceed stage shows at Jersey City's Stanley.

The Dude Ranch was also in a reflective mood following New Year's. The good old State of Maryland had crews out throughout the week laying the snow into the ditches along the Washington-Baltimore pike just as fast as it fell. And that pleased Dude Ranch Host Milt Barrett no end. It literally paved the way for the boys and girls who made the Ranch their holiday rendezvous. Phil Barrett and his orchestra are carrying on into the new year.

The Corbetts are here, direct from the Edison Hotel in New York. They are Joseph and Ellen and they made their debut last night. You'll be interested in knowing that Manhattan has its eye on them because they're the youngest dance team on the Big Stem. They are niece and nephew of none other than James J. Corbett, hailing from Boston—with a mixture of Bostonese and Irish in their speech. Maestro Pete Macias says you'll love 'em.

Manager Lam knows his talent as well as his victuals. He predicted that the De Espy Trio would be the smash hit of the Lotus' new show—and they are. Good to look at, filled with grace and rhythm, they're tops in applause. In keeping with the season, Lady Mei's Mannequins are doing a "winter number" in which the ringsiders get peppered with snowballs. Yes, the Capitolians are doing "Round and Round," with Bix Ramsey the hot cornet. Beauty note: Judy Ellington is telling how she lost that poundage.

All these months of research into old song hits came in handy New Year's Eve for Milt Davis, maestro at the Hamilton's Rainbow Room. Everyone asked for something most band leaders forgot a long time ago . . . The Ambassador, like the Hamilton, enjoyed a terrific holiday patronage. It was estimated that 2,500 persons paid New Year's Eve visits to the Ambassador—and by 10 o'clock every inch of space was in use.

Not long ago someone suggested that Host Matt Windsor (Club Volga Boatman) bore a striking resemblance to Moviedom's John Gilbert—the same flashing smile and all. And, so help us, the people now are slipping quietly in for a glance at Gilbert's double! After all, a guy who plays the accordion and sings as well as the Volga Boatman's impresario is indeed deluged with attractions if this Gilbert likeness catches the public fancy.

It's "Movie Night" again at the Shoreham—and that means pretty debs, handsome escorts and the grandest of grand dames all set for more pictures to be made and more showings of last week's takes. The pictures to be shown tonight include those made of Jackie Coogan last week. And the pictures made New Year's Eve will be shown January 11. Carl and Leone Bonner continue to stop the floor shows. Carl is doing an impersonation of Bing Crosby this week; Leone is doing Norma Shearer.

Going to Baltimore this week? Many of the folks from the home precints drop in at Walker Hassling-er's famous restaurant when they're at the other end of the Washington-Baltimore road. The Federal Diary

Registered in U. S. Patent Office.

By Morgan Baker.

A NATION-WIDE campaign will be launched today to enlist public opinion to secure support of trained personnel in Government service by the National League of Women Voters. Special emphasis will be laid on obtaining support of political parties.

BAKER.

The campaign, a feature of personnel month during January, will take the form of petitioning the political parties to pledge themselves to abolish the "spoils system and to establish the merit principle of appointment."

A goal of 500,000 signatures to the petition by May 15 has been set by league members in 600 communities.

On each petition card is the banner of a recent prize-winning slogan, "Find the man for the job; not the job for the man." The petition's foreword will read:

"Believing that efficient public service is essential to the success of our American form of government, I petition the political parties to pledge themselves to abolish the spoils system in Federal, State and local governments and to establish the merit principle of appointment."

Simultaneously with the launching of the petition circularization was the announcement by Miss Marguerite M. Wells, of Minneapolis, league president, of a special advisory committee of approximately 50 prominent men and women and plans for Personnel Month.

A series of events, to direct attention to the evils of the patronage system, is to be conducted in 38 States and the District. The keynote of the league's drive will be sounded on Personnel Day, to take place the latter part of this month, and to be featured by a Nation-wide broadcast with national celebrities as speakers.

The specialized January drive for public support will include mass meetings, one-day personnel schools, institutes, open house in Government buildings, radio programs and legislative conferences.

The advisory campaign committee, to assist in obtaining better civil service policies, includes:

Miss Edith Abbott, dean of graduate school of social service administration, University of Chicago.
E. Claude Babcock, president, American Federation of Government Employes.
Newton D. Baker, Cleveland, Ohio.

Federal Bridge League.

The second half of the Federal Bridge League's team-of-four season will begin Tuesday night at 2400 Sixteenth street northwest. The second leg will run through every Tuesday night for 12 weeks.

The games are open to all Federal employes and their wives or husbands. A team consists of four players with four substitutes allowed. In the first half there were 29 teams, with players representing virtually every Government bureau. Application for membership may be made with Paul E. Golden (C), league president, Columbia 5336, or Roy Astleford (F), secretary-treasurer, Postoffice box No. 1815.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF F, P or C appears after your name in this column call in person on the Federal Diary editor today only between 3:30 and 5 p. m. You will receive tickets to one of the following Loew's theaters: F, Loew's Fox (stage, Leon Navara and his Hotel St. Moritz Orchestra and other acts; screen, Warner Baxter and Alice Faye in "King of Burlesque"); or to P, Loew's Palace (second week of Shirley Temple and John Boles in "The Littlest Rebel"); or to C, Loew's Columbia (Will Rogers and Dorothy Wilson in "In Old Kentucky.")

Table Manners.

At Uncle Sam's table the children sit;
Though I don't want to be a crab,
It oftentimes nearly gives me a fit
To see how the biggest grab.

They gobble most of the patronage soup,
Then bang each political spoon;
You never saw such a rowdy group,
Nor heard such a raucous tune.

When the waitress appears with promotion pie
The strongest snatch and brawl,
While the poor little clerks sit sadly by
With no dessert at all.

JOHN J. JONES (P).

Mass Meeting Planned.

Plans are being worked out for a mass meeting, in observance of National Civil Service Week, in the Labor-Interstate Commerce Commission auditorium January 13, in commemoration of the adoption of the national civil service act. The meeting will be sponsored by the American Federation of Government Employes.

IF YOU HAVEN'T THE TIME

To talk with the President and the Members of his Cabinet and the Members of the Supreme Court and the Senators and Representatives and the Government Experts – including the Brain Trust – and the Politicians, Republican, Democrat, Farm-Labor, Socialist and Communist and the Diplomats and all the others that make Washington what it is . . .

And if you'd like to know, nevertheless, how they're feeling and who they've been seeing and what they're thinking and what they're doing or proposing to do . . .

And if you're interested in knowing the direction in which the country is heading and would like to have a line on the trend, economic, social, financial, political, industrial, agricultural . . .

You surely have 5 or 10 minutes

To read Raymond Clapper's daily digest of what's important for you to know. Nobody (in our opinion) is doing as good a job in this vast field of human affairs as Mr. Clapper. He doesn't know it all and he doesn't think he does, but his long experience as a political and government observer has taught him what to look for and where to find it. And he can write what he knows in a manner that anybody can read with satisfaction and enjoyment.

So, there only remains

Lily Pons, Here to Sing at White House, Makes Clear Why She Is Screen Hit

Prima Donna Young Woman Of Rare Talent

Charms Greeters at Depot; Amateur Nights Again; Theater Notes.

By Nelson B. Bell.

No doubt my good friends Earle and Dorothy Dorsey, who have presented her more than once in concert, could have told me all about it, but now I have determined for myself just why Lily Pons should have been so immediate and unequivocal a success on the screen in "I Dream Too Much," her first picture, currently being shown on the silver sheet at RKO-Keith's.

Mlle. Pons has everything it takes, to drop into the vernacular.

When Manager Hardie Meakin, of RKO-Keith's, called up yesterday afternoon to say that Mlle. Pons would be coming in in the late afternoon to sing at the White House at the President's dinner in honor of Vice President Garner and to hope that this desk would be able to trek to the Union Station to accord her a welcoming hand, I was pleased, to say the least.

When Mlle. Pons alighted from the train I was more than ever pleased, because this charming young prima donna proved to be all that her first feature picture would indicate her to be—a vivacious, charming and wholly natural young woman who evidently hugely enjoys meeting people.

A Distinguished Party.

There was a distinguished company aboard that Pennsylvania limited that bore Mlle. Pons to the Capital. Some of them you will see pictured on this page. Senator and Mrs. Barbour, of New Jersey, back for the new session of Congress, graciously agreed to pose for the cameraman, and David Sarnoff, head man of the National Broadcasting Co., likewise consented to stand for a flash bulb or two with the handsome young woman he called only by the name of "Lily."

It must be nice to be as intimate as that with so brilliant a young artiste. I must try it some time!

But about Mlle. Pons. She is about as you would suspect from having viewed her on the screen—perhaps 5 feet 1 or 2 inches tall, auburn-haired, cordial and spontaneous in her greeting, enthusiastic about the cinema and altogether a "regular" young person who conveys no notion whatever of "swank," but immediately sets herself down as a congenial and companionable girl who enjoys having people around her.

If her secretary was doubtful about the Pons view of this sort of thing, the Pons was not. So everything worked out splendidly.

Asked how she liked singing her songs and doing her acting for the cameras and microphones, Mlle. Pons was emphatic in her advocacy of the screen as a more comprehensive medium, and one of broader scope, than can be afforded by either the operatic or concert stages. She is keenly aware of the flexibility the cinema is able to impart to her vocal and histrionic artistry and, one gathers, entertains a keen desire to further this medium of expression as a new and valuable outlet for her incomparable talents.

Likes Kern's Tunes.

She was, of course, bubbling over with enthusiasm about her imminent appearance at the White House—a feeling that Mr. and Mrs. David Sarnoff seemed to share.

When queried as to which were her favorite songs in "I Dream Too Much," Mlle. Pons, contrary to expectation, did not nominate the "bell song" from Leo Delibes' "Lakme," but nominated some of the less-pretentious numbers composed especially for her initial picture by that eminent American composer, Jerome Kern.

If her real favorite of all her songs in the picture were to be definitely hit upon, one surmises that it might turn out to be the "Caro Nome" number from "Rigoletto," in which she accompanies herself at the piano. But one never can be sure of these things.

It is only a certainty that Lily Pons is a vibrant, ingratiating and ebullient young woman who seems to be equipped to go as far as she wishes to go as a star of the celluloids.

A few moments' conversation with her under conditions not entirely adapted to a completely mutual understanding and concert of thought leads to the belief that where she wishes to go in pictures is very far, indeed.

Has What It Takes.

She has every qualification to make the distance. It was a pleasure and a privilege to have met her and talked with her, however briefly.

I hope her next picture will be as good as "I Dream Too Much." It would be difficult to wish anyone very much more than that.

Mlle. Pons is not too well acquainted with the National Capital. This visit will not permit her much time to learn the city better. She leaves this afternoon to return to New York, where she is engaged in radio activities as well as the exacting demands of the Metropolitan.

Bien venida, as we say in the pure Castilian, and may the visits be frequent and not so hurried in future.

Sidney Lust, foremost of the Capital's independent motion-picture exhibitors, is resuming his amateur night program at the Cameo Theater in Mount Rainier, Md., tonight. Contestants already selected include several novelty performers who will help make the program one of the best so far offered in the series. While crooners and dancers have been primarily featured in earlier bills, the forthcoming program will introduce a snappy six-piece harmonica orchestra, a full-blooded Indian roper, a comic character singer and other acts that are distinctly "different." The crooners and dancers, to be sure, will not be neglected and a sister tap team, a Russian dancer and the usual allotment of songsters will be on hand.

The stage program will begin at 8:30 p. m., wth the feature picture going on at 7. Final tryouts for the amateur goings on will be held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. There is still time, if you have what it takes.

Sports Parade.

The Capital's sports writers and figures prominent in the game in which Al Schacht is a notable personality, will gather at Loew's Fox Theater at 8:30 o'clock tonight to watch Al go through his stage act, which is an added attraction on the vaudeville program.

Nick Altrock, Al's old partner in baseball buffoonery; Ossie Bluege, Clark Griffith, Al's old boss; Edward Eynon, secretary of the Washington Senators; Bucky Harris, Walter Johnson, Umpire Bill McGowan, Frank Baxter, Mike Martin, Dick Lanahan, Mrs. Elizabeth King, Arch MacDonald, Bill Hoyle, Joe Holman, Shirley Povich and all of the city's sports editors and baseball writers have been invited to participate in this "Sports Night."

Many of these have already promised to be on hand to greet their colleague of the diamond. Al shares headline honors with Leon Navara and his Hotel St. Moritz Orchestra.

Alex Goes to Town!

It is Mr. Joe Roberts, eminent avant courier for this and that down through the years who comes to bat with the announcement that not only is Alex Yokel, producer of "Three Men on a Horse," the comedy hit of the decade, going to present Beth Merrill in "Julie, the Great" on the stage of the National Theater the week of January 13, but shortly afterward will be presenting on the same stage "The Magnificent Heel," a Samuel Raphaelson work, in which the title role will be played by George Jessel. This is an item that will go into rehearsal about the twentieth of the current month.

In bringing "Julie, the Great" to the rostrum Master Yokel, one of the best gamblers in show business, is presenting the dramatic work of John Taintor Foote, one of the best of the Saturday Evening Post's contract authors, who wasn't at all sure that he could write a play.

Neither will some of the rest of us be, until "Julie, the Great" makes her bow on the thirteenth. Then we'll know. Or maybe not even then!

Meteorological Note.

Just as the taxi driver said, that perfect New Year's Day was just an ugly weather breeder.

Diva Arrives to Sing at White House

Fight in Deputies Menaces Zamora

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, Jan. 2.—A group of rebellious deputies, aroused by a government decree suspending Parliament for another month, today declared the order unconstitutional, refused to recognize it and attempted to move for the impeachment of President Alcala Zamora and the cabinet.

The group, consisting of monarchists and some populists and radicals, under the leadership of Calvo Sotelo, circulated a petition demanding that Congress be reopened and that the president and cabinet be made to answer for the suspension.

However, the petition lacked 12 signatures of the number necessary for action against the government.

The suspension was decreed in an effort to produce a month of political calm preliminary to parliamentary elections, probably the first of March.

Dr. Hudson Proposed For World Court Job

Geneva, Jan. 2 (AP).—National groups of The Netherlands, Estonia and Cuba today nominated Dr. Manley O. Hudson, of the Harvard University School of Law, for the vacancy on the World Court created by the resignation of Frank B. Kellogg, American co-author of the Kellogg-Briand peace pact.

The Netherlands group, however, also nominated former Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, of the United States and Ake Hammarskjold, of Sweden, now registrar of the court.

Two vacancies exist, the other because of the death of a German jurist. The League of Nations, however, understands Germany may not nominate a countryman.

Cummings Names Keen As Justice Assistant

By the Associated Press.

Promotion of Joseph B. Keenan, of Cleveland, to the post of Assistant to the Attorney General, a place making him third in command of the Justice Department, has been recommended to the President by Attorney General Cummings.

The nomination is expected to go to the Senate early in the session. At present, Keenan is an assistant attorney general.

Uruguayan Buying Halted by Soviet

Montevideo, Uruguay, Jan. 2 (AP). The Iuyamtorg (Soviet) Trading Corporation was informed today by the Soviet Commissar of foreign commerce that Russian authorities had prohibited further purchases of Uruguayan products because of the recent rupture of diplomatic relations.

Consequently, Iuyamtorg announced it will be liquidated and will abandon trading activities.

He was bade farewell at the station by the diplomatic corps, including the entire staff of the American embassy. This embassy will care for archives of the Uruguyan legation, following the severence of diplomatic relations.

Law Urged to Guard British Investors

By the Associated Press.

London, Jan. 2.—Legislation for protection of the British investing public was recommended tonight by a stock exchange committee which for a year has been investigating "fixed trusts."

Some £45,000,000 (about $225,000,000) has been invested in the fixed trusts in the last four years, much of it in small savings.

The fixed trust movement, which came to Britain in 1931 from America and is credited in investment circles with helping to save small investors from bucket-shop sharpers, has achieved a remarkable growth.

The committee's report stated there was no cause for public misgivings in the present situation, but the investigation "makes it clear that this method of investment provides a means of obtaining money from the public without affording, in return, safeguards in legislation which surround other forms of investment."

$900,000,000 Electric Program Is Proposed

By the Associated Press.

A bill to authorize a $900,000,000 self-liquidating rural electrification program in the next nine years was projected yesterday by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska.

The Senator outlined plans for the bill he expects to introduce early in the session after a conference with Morris L. Cooke, rural electrification administrator.

It would authorize Congress to appropriate $100,000,000 a year for loans for three purposes: (1) For rural transmission lines, (2) for electric appliances and (3) for electrification of farm homes. The loans would be limited to public agencies and co-operatives with a specific ban against lending funds to private power companies.

Four Killed, 18 Injured As Building Collapses

Havana, Jan. 2 (AP).—Four persons were killed, at least 5 were missing and 18 were injured late today when a downtown building formerly occupied by the newspaper Mercurio collapsed.

U. S. May Call Nations to Talks On Gold, Silver

Morgenthau Hints Both Metals May Be Urged as Currency Bases.

By the Associated Press.

A series of conferences with silver-using nations was projected yesterday by Secretary Morgenthau, with the hint that the future of gold might be involved as well.

Expressing a belief that such talks would prove mutually beneficial, the Treasury head said "very satisfactory progress" is being made in discussions this week with Eduardo Saurez, finance minister of Mexico.

At the same time he indicated an opinion that the extension of such conferences to other nations would enable those countries to which silver is important to plan more effective action to their own advantage as well as that of the United States.

A reporter asked if Peru and Canada would be invited to such parleys, but the Secretary countered with:

The hint that gold, or the combined use of gold and silver, in the monetary systems of the nations might be involved came in an assertion that the Mexican conferences were in conformity with the program outlined by President Roosevelt when the silver purchase act was passed. The Chief Executive suggested talks with neighboring countries on monetary policies.

"The success of the London Conference in consummating an international agreement on silver," the President said in a message in 1934 to Congress, "which has now been ratified by all the governments concerned, makes such further agreements worth seeking.

"The ebb and flow of values in almost all parts of the world have created many points of pressure for readjustments of internal and international standards. At no time since the efforts of this Nation to secure international agreement on silver began in 1878, have conditions been more favorable for making progress along this line.

"Accordingly, I have begun to confer with some of our neighbors in regard to the use of both silver and gold, preferably on a co-ordinate basis, as a standard of monetary value. Such an agreement would constitute an important step forward toward a monetary unit of value more equitable and stable in its purchasing and debt-paying power."

Bullitt Back in Capital After Florida Holiday

By the Associated Press.

Otherwise, he said he enjoyed his Christmas holiday on Hoe Sound, near Jupiter, Fla., which he spent with his young daughter Anne. Bullitt plans to return to the Soviet capital late this month.

Press to Witness Hauptmann Death

By the Associated Press.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 2.—Press arrangements at Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution the week of January 13 were discussed today by Col. Mark O. Kimberlin, principal keeper at New Jersey State Prison, and 52 news and photographic representatives.

Declaring the execution was to be "no show" and that authorities were anxious to avoid confusion, Col. Kimberling announced witnesses at the electrocution would include representatives of the major press associations and news agencies and about 15 representatives of individual newspapers who will act as witnesses under the law requiring a jury of 12 at each execution.

No broadcasting will be allowed on prison property.

No women will be admitted to represent any newspaper or press service at the execution.

No news reel or feature pictures will be allowed on prison property.

Hollywood

By Sidney Skolsky

Movie Boners.

Hollywood, Jan. 2.

THE pirates in a sequence in the flicker "Captain Blood" are marching through the streets to their small boats and, writes William Blinderman, it is clearly shown that they are carrying their ransom and loot with them. The pirates then set sail for their ship, but they neve reach it because Errol Flyn fires on them and sinks their small boats. The next scene shows Lionel Atwill going to the victors to congratulate them. The first thing he says is: "You have saved my money," and he immediately races to his treasure chests. Mr. Blinderman wants to know how these treasure chests floated from the small pirate boats to the large ship.

In "I Dream Too Much," asks C. Karistotes, "why does Lily Pons romp about in a fur coat on a hot summer afternoon; presumably to display the fur coat. But since when is it wrong for ladies to wear their furs in the summer, especially movie actresses? They wear fur coats over silk pajamas here.

Edward Everett Horton and Irene Hervey in "His Night Out" are in a night club, and the large letters on the canopy of the cafe tell the audience that Mr. Horton and Miss Hervey are at the Rainbow Room. Several scenes later, says Betty Kashman, Robert McWade shouts about the theft of the bonds, and emphasizes the fact that both Horton and Hervey were seen by him the other evening dining at the Cafe Paree.

It must be that the press agents for both these night clubs knew the scenario writer and each saw to it that his client was mentioned.

Ronald Colman in "The Tale of Cities" is looking out over Paris on the morning he is slated to die. The rooftops of Paris are seen and, claims G. K., in the background are seen two towers. These towers are the Trocadero, which was built about the middle of the Nineteenth century for an exposition and, therefore, couldn't be in evidence in this scene.

In "Rendezvous" there is a ballroom sequence at the Russian Embassy in Washington, and William Powell makes a forecast that within six months there will be a revolution in Russia. Since the flicker "Rendezvous," writes Don Rinper, opens with the United States at war, the time must be April or later of the year 1917. The Russian revolution had occurred already; it took place in March, 1917.

When Brian Aherne in "I Live My Life" becomes vice president, he pushes all the buttons on his desk. One of these buttons, says Herman Karonowsky, is supposed to lock the door. Yet, all the secretaries enter his office marching through the door which is supposed to be locked.

• • • •

Ginger Rogers and George Brent in "In Person" are in a cabin in the mountains. A rustic clock on the wall, writes Royal Mollineaux, reads 5:25. Miss Rogers does a dance number which takes about 5 minutes. When Ginger completes the dance routine there is a full view of the room and the clock now says that it is 6 o'clock.

It appears that Ginger Rogers made the clock do some stepping also. But why complain about a movie clock when the one on the Paramount Building won't behave?

• • • •

It happens only in the movies, writes Edward Norman, that when the hero reaches into his pocket to get some money to tip a person he always manages to draw out the correct change.

A speeding auto, in a chase sequence, is never caught when it is driven by the hero. A speeding auto is never stopped and given a ticket.

Only in the movies, insists Arthur Murray, can the Swiss Alps, the Grand Canyon, the Pacific Ocean and half of the world's female population be assembled on an ordinary theatrical stage or night club floor.

A door may be locked, but that doesn't make any difference. If a person has to enter the room he can open the locked door without a key.

If it is necessary to the story of a flicker—and it generally is—a hero and a heroine can see each other only once, and in a following sequence the heroine will tell that she is going to have a baby. The censors don't say it's wrong.

T. W. Cook Named General Agent

Announcement of the appointment of Theodore W. Cook as general agent of the National Life Insurance Co., of Montpelier, Vt., in its District of Columbia agency was received from that company yesterday.

T. W. Cook

Mr. Cook's territory will include the District of Columbia, Alexandria City, and the Counties of Arlington, Fairfax, and Loudoun in the State of Virginia.

Mr. Cook came to Washington in 1928, joining the Equitable Life Assurance Society as a soliciting agent. In December, 1929, he was appointed unit manager of that company.

In September, 1932, he became associated with John F. Cremen, local general agent of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., as production manager. Associated with Mr. Cook in his new work will be William C. Worthington, who will continue with the agency as associate general agent.

New York, Jan. 2 (AP).—Stock sales on the New York Stock Exchange during December totaled 46,094,520 shares, compared with 57,459,775 in November and 23,588,612 in the same month a year ago.

Telephone Net Gains $51,090 For December

Capital Transit Earns 56% Less in 11 Months.

The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., in its December statement filed yesterday with the Public Utilities Commission, reported a net operating income of $2,005,779 which compares with $1,954,689 for December last year, an increase of $51,090.

The report also showed that operating expenses of $6,511,659 for the month increased $238,482 over the 1934 figure of $6,273,177, and that operating revenue of $9,193,489 increased $227,938 in comparison with the $8,915,531 for December last year.

Capital Transit Co.

Net income of the Capital Transit Co. showed a decrease of $501,039.89 in the first 11 months of 1935, a total of $385,855.38 in the year just ended being compared with $886,895.36 in the like period a year ago, according to the financial statement filed with the Public Utilities Commission. This was a drop of 56 per cent.

Passenger traffic on the Capital Transit system increased steadily during the year. In the 11 months a total of 138,689,503 revenue passengers used the street cars and busses, an increase of 16.5 per cent over the number of paying riders in the same period in 1934, the report shows.

Operating revenues in the same months amounted to $8,556,518.52, an increase over the previous year of $866,865.53, or 11.3 per cent. But operating expenses, taxes and depreciation also were higher, reaching the sum of $7,685,689.63, an advance of $1,348,457.33, or 21 per cent, and leaving an operating income of $873,829.89, a reduction of 35 per cent.

November net earnings also revealed a very sharp decline, profits of $11,290.10 being reported to the commission, against $85,711.79 in November, 1934, a decrease of $74,421.69.

Chevrolet Offers $20 For Junking Old Cars

Detroit, Jan. 2 (AP).—To stimulate the sales of new automobiles and late-model used cars, the Chevrolet Motor Co., announced today it had set up a $1,000,000 fund from which its dealers will be paid $20 for every old car taken in trade and junked during January.

The company also said it would pay bonuses to its dealers' salesmen who sell more used cars during January than in the same month of 1934.

Stocks and Bonds Begin New Year With Easy Optimism in Moderately Active Trading.

New York, Jan. 2.—Enough fresh investment and speculative demand for stocks appeared to keep up an appearance of strength in the face of persistent profit taking in some groups. Congress hung like a cloud over the markets, but its effect was less depressing, with a year of good business recovery behind, than might have been supposed. Even the bonus, which is beginning to look an assured thing, probably helped speculative stocks more than it injured them. Bonds at any rate were not perturbed. May wheat closed ⅝ of a cent higher at 102¼ cents a bushel.

Stocks were active in nearly all groups, but rails and utilities (aside from telephone) were comparatively quiet. Airplane issues held speculative attention. They had to undergo a good deal of profit taking, but they found it fairly easy. Boeing pushed into new high ground. T. & W. Air Express jumped three points or so. Douglas & Wright were a trifle heavy for a time.

What was lost by the oil shares was more than made up by the building stocks, the steels, the rubbers and miscellaneous issues. The day was a good one for the builders. Radiator made a new high. Penn-Dixie Cement was buoyant. Alpha Portland and Lehigh Portland rose a point or more. International Cement climbed more than 3 points. Thompson Starrett, common and preferred, sold into new high ground. Johns-Manville, on the other hand, sagged a bit, but Gypsum climbed.

Inland was a leader of the steels. It rose 2 points. Bethlehem reached a new high level and United States Steel threatened 50. Amusements were strong and the oils held firm. In the assorted list, attention was drawn to the buoyancy of Philip Morris, Agricultural Chemical, Colorado Fuel (both classes), Checker Cab, the Paramounts, United States Rubber, Spalding preferred and Ritter Dental.

Italian Currency Weakens.

Two foreign currencies began the new year with breaks to new low levels. The lira, though continuing to be quoted nominally, lost 3 points to 8.03 cents. The Hongkong dollar, which had been held relatively stable, slipped about 80 points to a new support zone around 31½ cents, which was within less than 2 cents of the price of the stabilized Hongkong rate. All the gold currencies, which received the support of year-end buying orders to transfer foreign funds home on December 31, went lower today as some of these funds were returned. Sterling was steady.

Publication today of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York monthly bulletin threw no new light on the situation so far as most observers were concerned, but it put its authority behind what had been supposition or special knowledge. The bank recounts the heavy cash payments made by member banks last month that drew down excess reserves by $600,000,000, but which left them in "so large a volume that there was no perceptible effect on money rates."

Steady Progress.

Last month, November 20 to December 24, the total gold receipts were $310,000,000, an unusually heavy movement, and on that basis the excess reserves are assured of a higher level when cash flows back to the banks, to say nothing of the possibility of further large gold imports. An index of holiday shopping, incidentally, is given by the bank's observation that currency withdrawals for the purpose corresponded closely with the average movement in past years.

The bank has estimated the volume of production and trade in 1935 at approximately 8 per cent more than in 1934. "It would appear" says the bank's bulletin "that for the year as a whole the percentage increase over 1934 was of approximately the same dimensions as the rise for the year 1933 over 1932 and consireably in excess of the increase between 1933 and 1934." Trade was, nevertheless, 30 per cent under that of 1929, which leaves much ground to be regained. Incidentally, the measured rate of recovery from depression does not suggest too much optimism in current predictions of 10 per cent further rise for 1936.

Last First.

Zonite Products, the last stock on the list in alphabetical order, was the first to appear on the ticker tape in the new year's trading. The symbol, ZP, also was as appropriate as the suggestion in the stock that last year's dregs had been washed out. The last quotation for 1935 was Gimbel preferred.

Agricultural Chemical.

Officials of the American Agricultural Chemical Co. said today that no consideration had been given to retirement of 50,000 shares of the capital stock at $60 a share, as reported in press gossip. Closing at 51 last year, the stock rose to 55 with the new year. Early in 1934 the company made tenders for the stock at not more than $35 a share, to exhaust $3,000,000. An official said today it would be pointless to buy in more stock at a price exceeding the net asset value, which he said was around $55 a share.

Colorado Fuel.

Colorado Fuel preferred managed to sell as high as 29 on the closing day of the year, which put it a half point above its previous high price for 1935, reached before receivership. This morning activity became great in the common shares, which were run up considerably, and the preferred rose more than 5 points against a body of helpless shorts still closed in the stock. In the past two years it frequently has been noted that the best news for holders of stock in companies having financial difficulties is for receivership or trusteeship to be agreed upon.

Bank Statements.

Year end statements of condition of local banks, in comparison with those published a year ago, disclosed what looked to be the small beginnings of an expansion in loans, the expected large growth in deposits, and a general though modest increase in bank holdings of State, municipal and corporation bonds. Most of the banks for the first time in years had a tidy addition to make to undivided profits after the year's dividend payments, although some of these were cut during 1935. For most institutions holdings of Government securities are a little higher on the year. Cash is much higher, since large percentages of the increased deposits were not employed at all.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

The dollar was ahead of leading foreign currencies in most exchange centers yesterday.

In New York, the British pound sterling declined ⅛ of a cent to $4.93, and French francs were .00½ of a cent lower at 6.62⅛ cents.

In London the dollar was a trifle higher at 4.92 15-16, and in Paris it was steady at 6.623 cents to the franc.

Bank Clearings Up 8.8 Per Cent In 5-Day Week

Washington Total Falls Below Same Period Last Year.

By the Associated Press.

New York, Jan. 2.—An even better showing was made by bank clearings in the United States for the five-day week ended December 31 than for the previous five-day period. The total for the 22 leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., was $4,991,801,000, compared with $4,590,050,000 last week, a gain of 8.8 per cent and with $4,709,221,000 a year ago, an increase of 6 per cent.

New York City clearings totaled $3,247,538,000, a rise of 4.9 per cent over the corresponding period in 1934, while the aggregate for cities outside of New York was $1,744,263,000, or 8.2 per cent higher.

The Washington Clearing House reports a total of $14,491,117.76 for the week ended December 31, which compares with $16,575,094.12 for the same period last year, a decrease of 14.4 per cent. Compared with $13,149,273.83 for the week ended December 24, clearings showed an increase of 10.2 per cent.

Total clearings this week were above the amount reported for the week preceding by $401,751,000. For the two corresponding weeks of 1934 the gain amounted to $717,555,000.

All cities, excepting Chicago, reported gains, the most notable of which appeared at Cleveland, New Orleans, Detroit, Omaha and Dallas.

Figures at leading centers, showing increases and decreases as compared with those of a year ago are printed herewith; also daily bank clearings for the year to date.

Besides being members of the big board, the firm holds memberships in other leading exchanges throughout the country.

Strong Demand From Abroad Lifts Wheat

Europe Reported as Buyer of 5,000,000 Bushels in Two Days.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Jan. 2.—Immense purchasing on the part of overseas wheat importing countries led to broadened speculative demand here today for wheat and brought about substantial price gains.

Chicago wheat quotations rose to within a few cents of the 1935-36 topmost record, with maximum new upturns of 1½ cents a bushel. Late estimates were that European importers had bought as high as 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat in the last 48 hours, and that export sales since Canada's new government wheat board had recently taken hold have amounted to nearly 60,000,000 bushels.

Wheat in Chicago closed unsettled, ½-⅞ above Tuesday's finish; May, 1.02⅝-¾. Corn, ⅜-⅝ up; May, 61⅜½. Oats at ¼ decline to ¼ advance, and provisions showing 5 to 10 cents gain.

Delaney Returns to D. C. Jan. 13; Promising Bouts Planned

Blair to Risk Fine Record Monday

Will Oppose Serrian in First of Series of Arena Battle.

By Bill McCormick.

AFTER a false start with the ill-advised program of punch on the afternoon of January 1, the new year in boxing will get off on the right foot here with a series of promising bouts, the most promising of which will find Al Delaney, the sensational Buffalo heavyweight, returning to the local wars on January 13.

Delaney's opposition has not yet been signed, but probably will be culled from a group of fisticuffians which includes Billy Ketchell, Charley Massare and Steve Dudas.

Ketchell is a rough, tough Philadelphia youngster whose style is well calculated to cause Delaney trouble. He is managed by Iron Hat Johnny Burns, the colorful Philadelphia promoter and manager who pulls the strings on Johnny Jadick.

Returning to Ring.

Charley Massare once a highly regarded heavyweight prospect, is returning to the ring after a long layoff—and under the expert guidance of Jimmy Kelly. Massare has been perhaps the most unfortunate heavyweight ever to almost reach the heights. When he first started, he clicked from the start, but a broken right hand, cracked left elbow, a wide gash in his forehead and several cuts over both eyes impeded his progress.

Kelly became interested in Massare through Jack Dempsey, who admired the Pittsburgh lad because of his habit of punching away continually at the midsection. Once under Kelly's management, Massare was rehabilitated and shipped to West Virginia for a three-month rest, which, Kelly claims, now finds him as good as new. Kelly should know whereof he speaks, having once been a great fighter, then a manager who pulled the strings on such luminaries as Pepper Martin, Midget Wolgast and others.

A Dudas-Delaney match would be a natural in Washington, but the boys are scheduled for the Ridgewood Grove in New York tomorrow night. Should they draw in that bout, they might be rematched here.

Blair Faces Serrian.

Another promising fight is scheduled for the Turner Arena next Monday night when Frankie Blair is slated to swap swats for ten rounds with Mickey Serrian. Blair is undefeated in 30 starts and has been in Washington such fisticuffers as Phil Furr (twice), Cary Wright and Roy Manley. Frankie also won from Gene Buffalo, one of the reigning colored welterweight sensations here.

Serrian, a high-ranking welterweight, has recently defeated Eddie Cool, Izzy Janazzo (twice), Steve Halaiko, Johnny Jadick and Al Casmini. He lost to Frankie Hughes in his only start here.

Phil Furr has been signed to wage war on January 20 against an opponent yet to be selected, but probably to be either Steve Halaiko or Cary Wright.

Mulligan On Crutches For Next Three Weeks

By a Staff Correspondent.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 2.—George Mulligan, Catholic University's star end who was injured in the C. U.-Mississippi Orange Bowl game here yesterday, will be on crtuches for about three weeks, Coach Dutch Bergman announced tonight.

The senior, who is from Waterbury, Conn., suffered torn leg ligaments in the third quarter of the game, which Catholic U. won, 20 to 19.

C. U. Alumni to Plan Reception for Team

Plans for a mammoth reception to be given Catholic University's victorious football team Sunday morning, when it returns from the scene of its Orange Bowl victory over Mississippi, will be made at a meeting tonight of C. U. Alumni. The graduates will meet at the Music Hall at 8 p. m. All alumni are urged to attend.

Ryder, Golf Cup Donor, Dies in London at 77

London, Jan. 2 (AP).—Samuel Ryder, 77, donor of the Ryder Golf Cup for competition between professionals of the United States and England, died suddenly today in a London hotel.

He presented his trophy at St. Albans, England, in 1926 for competition between teams of American and British professional golfers.

Humphries Quits Hospital.

Forgets to Bet; Horse Pays $115

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Jan. 2.—Don Cameron, a trainer, admitted ruefully today he spent too much thought on the condition of a colt named Bay Buddy.

Joe Savoldi launches a two-footed attack at Joe Cox and bounces his opponent out of the ring at Turner's Arena last night. Cox returned to deal Savoldi the same dose and then lose the bout on a foul, after attacking the referee.

This Morning . . .

With Shirley Povich

MY VISITOR was speaking in a tone that was calmly emphatic; saying as how Jack Dempsey at his best wouldn't last four rounds with Joe Louis, that the man who would eventually beat Louis is still in his early teens and that Jack Johnson was the only heavyweight champion who would have a good chance to beat the Detroit Negro. My visitor was Teddy Hayes.

POVICH.

Mister Hayes should know whereof he speaks when he speaks of fighters. For eight years he was the trainer of Jack Dempsey during that period when Dempsey was the virile Manassa Mauler, pounding Fulton, Willard, Brennan, Carpentier and Firpo into submission with his iron fists. He parted with Dempsey in 1925 when Jack Kearns parted with the old Mauler. When the rift came, Hayes chose to cast his lot with Kearns and Mickey Walker, whom Kearns also managed.

The years have not dealt unkindly with Teddy Hayes. He's in politics now, his ring days behind him. At 40 he looks for all the world like a vest-pocket edition of Max Baer, owning the same high cheek bones and broad-beaked countenance, and Baer's flair for the sartorial. His estimation of Dempsey he frankly admits may be discounted because of the circumstances under which they quit partnership; but, to hear him tell it, Dempsey was something of an overrated bum.

"Why, Kearns and I would never think of matching Dempsey with a boxer," Hayes was saying. "We kept putting him in there against those big slow bums and Dempsey made us all look good. We didn't want any part of that Tommy Gibbons fight but we gave Jack his own way. And what happened? The first time Dempsey met a good boxer he was shown up. You know how Gibbons cuffed him around for 15 rounds at Shelby. That was the tip-off on Dempsey."

IT WASN'T hard for Hayes to visualize a Dempsey-Louis fight. The Detroit Negro would make short work of the Old Mauler, he figures.

Just like Willard, Firpo and the others were made to order for Dempsey, Dempsey would be made to order for Louis, according to Hayes. Dempsey, who rushed his opponents off their feet, would be playing directly into Louis' hands with those kind of tactics, Hayes declares.

"Why, Dempsey wouldn't lay a heavy glove on Louis," Hayes was saying. "That Negro's too smart. He'd let Dempsey force all the fighting and then cut him to ribbons. He'd be stalking Dempsey from the opening bell, backing away, catching Dempsey's shots on his arms and elbows and waiting for the opening to put that sleep-producer across. Don't forget, Dempsey was never hard to hit, Jack's offense was always his defense and whenever he met a good boxer his offense wasn't worth a nickel. The Carpentier bout wasn't any exception. Carpentier could box but he was washed up.

"And I know Louis can hit. I saw him lift Primo Carnera right off the floor with an uppercut to the chin and I saw him lift King Levinsky off his feet three times in the first round. Dempsey could take it, but no mortal can continue to take it and Louis would find plenty of openings if he were in there with Jack. Louis is as good a boxer as Gibbons and Tunney, maybe better, and as I was saying Dempsey would never lay a heavy glove on him."

To emphasize the points he was making, Hayes put the same old question that Dempsey skeptics have been putting for years: "Who did Dempsey ever lick?" And then like all Dempsey skeptics he answered his own question with "Nobody but the big over-stuffed Willard, a slow 255-pounder; the washed-up Bill Brennan who outboxed Dempsey for 11 rounds before he was knocked out; Billy Miske, who was in such poor shape he died three months after fighting Dempsey; Carpentier, who was only a light-heavyweight, and Firpo, who was a big bum and slow to boot."

IT WILL take the Jack Johnson or Gene Tunney type of fighter to beat Louis, according to Hayes—a smart boxer who can counter punch, because any man who faces the Negro must expect to be hit and hit hard. Hayes foresees Louis beating both Schmeling and Braddock by early knockouts and then successfully defending the title for seven or eight years.

"He reminds me of Tiger Flowers," said Hayes. "Kearns and I had a lot to do with Flowers, and like Louis he always kept in great condition. Like Flowers, who died from an operation on his ear, you remember, Louis is a religious Negro and they don't waste their physical condition. The manager who has that kind of a Negro in his stable is lucky.

"The only man I would have bet on to beat Louis was Jack Johnson," Hayes says. "They didn't come any smarter than Johnson. He could outbox the boxer, outpunch the puncher and outclown the clown. He was better at that shuffling style of fighting than Louis is and he'd be a mean target. I kinda think he'd wear Louis down and then stop him in the late rounds. But I don't see any Jack Johnsons around these days."

Neither do I, Teddy.

Omaha to Sail for England

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Omaha, champion 3-year-old of 1935, was scheduled definitely today to sail next Wednesday for England in quest of the coveted Ascot Gold Cup, although his ailment is as much a mystery as the day he was forced out of competition last August.

William Woodward, owner of the big chestnut colt, made the decision after Omaha had been brought here from the Belair Farm in Maryland and worked out at Aqueduct under the eye of Capt. Boyd-Rochfort, who will have charge of the champion in England.

"Omaha did easy work under the saddle for two months before leaving Belair," said Woodward. "Since arriving at Aqueduct he has been working out daily under cover. He seems to be in the best of condition and in vigorous health."

Because the son of Gallant Fox never has shown any soreness until after an extended workout, Woodward said it was impossible at this time to know if the mysterious ailment has finally disappeared. Omaha went wrong while preparing for the Travers at Saratoga.

"It is with full knowledge of this that the horse will be shipped to England," said Woodward. "If he should be unsound it might as well be shown up in England as in this country."

If by any chance the ailment should appear again when the colt's workouts are extended over the English turf, Woodward plans to turn him out in England. After a year's rest he then hopes to bring him back to the races in the best of condition.

Before he was forced out of competition, Omaha earned $142,255 to become the leading money-winning horse of the year.

Savoldi Wins; Near-Riot Quelled

By George Considine

THE lost art of drop-kicking was revived with considerable gusto at the Turner Arena last night, when Giuseppe Savoldi, the All-American foulback, was awarded a disqualification victory over Kansas City Joe Cox in the feature match of the weekly wrestling show. Slightly more than 1,000 spectators watched the 27-minute foulfest.

Recovering from a brace of Savoldian drop-kicks, which had placed him in the third row, Cox tore into the former Notre Dame grid star, and with one mighty swing knocked him into the press box.

In the resulting confusion Referee Bennah Bortnick received a solid punch on the schnozzle from the greatly aroused Kansan. So he (Bortnick) upped and disqualified Cox, while Maj. Brown's minions quelled a potential riot. Police, displaying clubs, kept howling fans in their seats.

Content to Take All.

Only on rare occasions throughout the 27 minutes did Savoldi offer any kind of resistance. He seemed content for the most part to "take" everything. But when his interest was mildly aroused he slammed Cox with consummate ease.

At the 25-minute mark Savoldi evidently decided to put an end to the nonsense. He caught Cox in the midst of a flying tackle, retaliated with a resounding drop-kick and Cox pitched headlong into the laps of the ringsiders. Returning to the mat, Cox got in the way of another drop-kick, as Arch McDonald might say, he went away.

Thoroughly wrought up over the turn of events, Cox came back and bashed Savoldi with that looping right. Savoldi fell out of the ring, never to return. When Referee Bortnick sought to convince Cox that he shouldn't go out and get the glassy-eyed Italian, Cox smote him down. "You're disqualified," shouted Bortnick. And that was that.

Detton Defeats Hall.

Semifinally, Dean Detton rallied to win from Dr. Len Hall by virtue of an airplane spin in 26 minutes, while Handsome Vic Christie and Dr. Freddie Meyers worked to a bristling 30-minute draw.

And in what was generally conceded to be the worst exhibition ever committed, Sure Mike Mazurki required 11 minutes to beat Harry Kent. Up until a late hour last night the winning grip was still unidentified.

Ambers Choice To Beat Klick Tonight

Rivals to Clash in Garden for Right to Meet Tony Canzoneri.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Two persistent rivals for Tony Canzoneri's lightweight crown clash in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night for the privilege of meeting the champion in a title contest.

They are Lou Ambers, the Herkimer, N. Y., hurricane, and Frankie Klick, the California veteran, who is stepping along at the same speedy clip he set when he first appeared on the big time years ago.

The pair will fight the 10-round feature of an all-lightweight show, and Canzoneri has promised to meet the winner in the spring.

It will be Ambers' first Garden appearance since his jaw was broken in a fight with Fritzi Zivic six months ago. He spent weeks in a hospital before returning to the ring against three warm-up opponents. He won all three bouts so easily his managers didn't hesitate to sign for Klick.

Ambers Is Choice.

The betting is 6 to 5 that Klick will drop his first Garden decision in seven starts. The Californian always has regarded the Garden as his lucky spot. On his last appearance there he came back after being knocked down twice to defeat the sturdy Al Roth.

If Klick beats Ambers and gets the Canzoneri match it will be the fifth time he has opposed the little Italian. Canzoneri won all four bouts, but one in Washington was so close newspapers roundly panned the decision the next day.

Four other aspiring 135-pound contenders get spots on tomorrow night's card. Leonard Del Genio, Bronx, is matched with Mexican Bobby Pacho, who once knocked Canzoneri to the floor, and Eddie Zivic, Pittsburgh, meets Aldo Spoldi, Italy. Both are billed for 10 rounds. Johnny Clifton, of New York, tackles Johnny Bollus, of New Haven, in a six-rounder.

Goodacre and Lamson Win Billiard Matches

In the District round robin, three-cushion billiard tournament last night at the Lewis & Krause parlor, Charles Goodacre defeated Frank Masi, 35 to 29, in 93 innings, and Curtis Lamson won from Henry Baer by 35 to 32 in 74 innings.

Delinquent in Grades, 3 Minnesotans on Bench

Minneapolis, Jan. 2 (AP).—Scholastic difficulties cropped up today to complicate further the troubles of the University of Minnesota basketball team as the athletes went through their last real workout of the week before playing Notre Dame Saturday night.

Reports from the registrar's office showed that Dick Seebach, veteran guard; Lowell Sullivan and George Gustafson received grades of "condition" which must be removed by examinations before they can play.

Risko Hurt, Bout Off.

Newark, N. J., Jan. 2 (AP).—An injured hand Eddie (Babe) Risko, world's middleweight champion, suffered in training at Syracuse, N. Y., today led Babe Culnan, matchmaker, to postpone Risko's 10-round fight with Young Terry, of Trenton. Culnan said the two would meet on January 20 or 27 instead of next Monday.

Sugar Tennis Postponed.

New Orleans, Jan. 2 (AP).—The weather laid its unwelcome hand today on the Sugar Bowl Tennis Tournament, causing postponement of first-round matches, scheduled for this afternoon, until tomorrow.

Myer, Alone of Nats, Gets Raise for 1936

AMONG contracts for the 1936 season mailed to Washington players yesterday, only Buddy Myer's called for an increase in salary terms, Clark Griffith, owner of the Nats, indicated.

Griffith admitted that he anticipated the usual wrangling on the part of particular players, but pointed out that the Washington club, financially, encountered its worst season in several years during 1935.

Myer, who received a salary of $10,000 last season, will be given a raise in wages as a consequence of his brilliant play in 1935 when he led the league in hitting, Griffith said.

That Griffith's chief source of salary worries will be Buck Newsom has long been apparent. Despite an increase of $800 per month given him by Griffith when Newsom was bought from the Browns in May, the big pitcher still considers himself underpaid and is expected to delay signing a contract until he confers with Griffith at the Nats' Florida training camp.

Others known to be expecting increases are Jake Powell, the rookie outfielder who had a successful season in 1935, and Cecil Travis, who proved his worth both at third base and in the outfield.

The Washington club will hold its annual stockholders' meeting on Tuesday. No dividend will be declared, according to Griffith.

$100,000 Speed Car Will Seek Record

Californians Lay Plans for Florida Tests.

By the Associated Press.

Los Angeles, Jan. 2.—Harlan Fengler, automotive engineer, said today work will start within the next six weeks on a $100,000 automobile which he hoped can break the 301 miles an hour record of Sir Malcolm Campbell.

Fengler said the car will be powered with two 12-cylinder, 2,000 horse power engines, mounted horizontally, one attached to the front wheels and the other to the back.

It will be driven at the Daytona Beach, Fla., Speedway by Lou Moore, well-known racing driver, said Fengler.

A model has already been constructed, Fengler said.

Methodists Lose Entire Team in '36

Only Five Experienced Veterans to Return.

By the Associated Press.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 2.—Football fans of Southern Methodist University tonight gloomily contemplated graduation day—an occasion that will riddle the ranks of the famed flying circus.

The entire first-string line and most of the backfield completed S. M. U. football days in the 7-0 Rose Bowl defeat at the hands of Stanford yesterday. Only five experienced reserves will be on hand next season.

Coach Matty Bell must turn to the freshman squad and the reserve lists in his hunt for successors to Bobby Wilson, Harry Shuford and Shelly Burt, the three wild horses of the Mustang backfield.

Moscrip, Stanford, Has Injured Eye

Sight May Be Impaired; Observed by Physicians.

Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 2 (U.P.).—All-American Jim (Monk) Moscrip, Stanford end, was in bed under observation of physicians tonight for an injury that may impair the sight of his left eye.

The injury, only serious casualty in the Rose Bowl game between Stanford and Southern Methodist yesterday, was disclosed while Moscrip was in the Stanford dressing room after the game.

He said his sight was blurred, and the eye was found to be bloodshot. Dr. Fritz Roth, team physician, insisted Moscrip remain in his hotel room until Saturday, under close observation of physicians. The Indian end said he felt a blow in the temple from someone's elbow when he was going down under a kick.

Dr. Roth said he did not believe the retina had been injured.

Ray, Wrestler, Is Dead From Match Injuries

Johnson City, Tenn., Jan. 2 (AP).—Jack Ray, 40, a professional wrestler, died in the Johnson City Veterans' Hospital yesterday of injuries said to have been received in a match with another grappler, Dick Powell, here several weeks ago.

Physicians found that Ray suffered a spinal injury when thrown to the canvas in the match. He entered a Bristol hospital after the accident and later came back to the Johnson City institution.

Tom Beaupre, Managed By Raskin, K.O.'s Rival

Chicago, Jan. 2 (AP).—Tom Beaupre, of Dallas, Tex., 21-year-old white hope, managed by Harry Raskin, of Washington, D. C., knocked out Jerry Johnson, of Norway, tonight in the Chicago Stadium, in the headliner of a ten-fight program.

Seven of the bouts, which were witnessed by Joe Louis, resulted in knockouts.

Yanchulis' Blocking of Punt Called Real Feat in Victory.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A Staff Correspondent.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 2.—Tired but still going strong, Catholic University's football squad plunged into two strenuous days of entertainment and frivolity before shaking the sand of Miami from its collective feet and heading back home.

Last night the squad visited the Royal Palm Club, when it broke training for the first time since early September. This morning the players went swimming and played tennis, and in the afternoon went sightseeing.

Tonight they are preparing to go to the dogs in royal style, that is, to the dog races, where they will be the guests of Tiny Parker, one of the town's leading sportsmen, who also happens to be a baseball umpire. Parker worked in the international League last season, but next summer will find him calling them in the National.

After the races, the hotel management is arranging a dance for

Wright Rides Both Horses To Victory

Albino Rewards With $13 Mutuel; Hose Pays $15.10.

By the Associated Press.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., Jan. 2.—The scarlet, white and black silks of Joseph E. Widener, making their first appearance of the season here today, were borne to victory in the two races in which the Philadelphia sportsman was represented. After Albino had captured top honors in the "baby race," the Western campaigner, Hose, took five speedy sprinters into camp in the featured Istokpoga Handicap. Both horses paid well, Albino returning $13 and Hose $15.10. Wayne Wright was aboard in both races.

Hose won by a length from J. H. Gaines' Adolf, running the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 1-5 in a strong wind. H. Friedberg's Southern Way was headed out of the place, while R. L. Gerry's Chancer, the favorite, was another head back.

Chancer, away from the races since last September at Jamaica, was outrun and had no apparent excuse. He closed gamely to no avail.

Disposes of Armful.

Southern Way cut out the early running and disposed of Armful, but he could not stand the gaff when Hose, close up from the start, challenged at the far turn. Under Wright's smooth handling, Hose drew away as Adolf outfinished Southern Way in the three-way battle for the place.

The first "baby race" of the new year, a 3-furlong test for youngsters making their debut, saw J. E. Widener's Albino earning a hard-earned victory. Albino lasted to score by a half length over the lightly regarded Legion, which saved the place by a like margin from the favorite, Addis Ababa. Candle Light was a close fourth. Albino, breaking fast from an outside position, opened up daylight, but tired and needed to be hard urged at the end. Addis Ababa probably will beat the same horses later. He dropped back after a good start from the inside, was bothered several times in the stretch and closed with a rush. The time, made against a stiff wind, was 0:36.

Regula Baddun rang up his third local success in five starts in the third, outrunning nine other platers over the 6-furlong distance and paying $17.10. Joe Rosen broke the gelding, owned and trained by Mama and Papa Rosen, on top and never was menaced. At the end his mount was four lengths in advance of Screen. Pryor and Dixie Princess followed in the blanket battle for the place.

Running the fastest 6 furlongs of the meeting, Great Haste got up to win the sixth purse by a half-length from Miss Rainbow. He completed the 6 furlongs in 1:10 4-5 and paid $12.80.

Success of Santa Anita Track, Playground Of Film Folk, Started by 'Em, Truly Colossal

By Jack Diamond.

Copyright, 1936, by the United Press.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—He is in the land of make believe, where everything is no less than colossal, one might well expect to find a pretty fair sort of a racing plant. Santa Anita is it.

One of the costliest in the world, the track is a thing of beauty in the San Gabriel Valley, at Arcadia, hard below the giant telescopes of lofty Mount Wilson. Briefly, my friends, it is a lulu, and even rarer in these times, it is a money maker.

The "handle" on the opening day, Christmas, was the tidy sum of $492,435, nearly twice the amount pushed through the mutuel windows when the plant was opened for the first time just a year before.

By the time these lines spoil your breakfast the pari-mutuel take will brim beyond $1,500,000 and predictions are that when the chips are counted on February 29 some $25,000,000 will have been wagered through the big "tote" layout in the infield.

If that sounds like a lot of money, don't bother to check for errors. It is, and this is Southern California.

The meeting draws the finest thoroughbreds of the American turf—Discovery, Cavalcade and Top Row at this moment are neighing in its stables. And even if you blow your wad and all you have left is the return stub on the little electric train back to the city, you still may have rubbed elbows with Carole Lombard and Myrna Loy in the exclusive turf club atop the clubhouse proper. The notables are among its stockholders and participating owners and are rabid fans.

Hal Roach, the "Our Gang" comedies impresario, is president. Bing Crosby, Joe E. Brown, Mae West, Clark Gable and many other screenlanders own Santa Anita horses. And the lovely ladies of Pasadena, Santa Barbara and Beverly Hills are all boxholders.

Santa Anita is a playground for the film folk. Hitherto these personable exponents of the polo shirt and the beach pajamas had hied themselves below the border of a week-end to fling away their countless sheckels on the wheels at Tia Juana and the hayburners at Caliente.

Then California decided to keep its dough at home, and racing again was legalized after an absence of some 25 years. Prohibition went by the boards, too.

So the impressive plant was organized on the site of Lucky Baldwin's famous rancho, where the pioneer California gold miner himself had a track in the early days. It cost $1,500,000 at the start—all of which, I am told, was returned to the investors in the first year—and another $300,000 worth of improvements was tacked on this year.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BRIGHT EMERALD, $8.20, $3.70, $3.20; AMQUI, $4.10, $3.70; CHRYSEIS, $7.00.

BRIGHT EMERALD, away fast, followed pace to the middle of the turn, where she moved up and, taking lead entering stretch, drew away at end. AMQUI, a rapid breaker, showed good speed and held on gamely. CHRYSEIS, well up all the way, ran good race. NED'S AFFINITY made a game effort. DUETIME had no excuse.

SECOND RACE—Three furlongs. Purse, $600. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:35. Off at 2:39. Winner, Joseph E. Widener's ch. f. (2), by Jack High—Stray Leaves. Trained by D. E. Stewart. Value to winner, $425; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:36.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ALBINO, $13.00, $7.30, $3.90; LEGION, $37.10, $10.90; ADDIS ABABA, $2.70.

ALBINO, a rapid beginner, ran into lead just after the start, showed good speed, but was tiring fast. LEGION finished gamely. ADDIS ABABA broke fast, but was allowed to drop back, closed fast, but was bumped several times entering stretch and would have won with better racing luck. CANDLELIGHT, well up all the way, ran good race. BRAVO CARUSO, very rank, is sure to improve.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:06½. Winner, Mrs. W. Rosen's blk. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—REGULA BADDUN, $17.10, $10.10, $6 80; SCREEN, $7.30, $4.30; PRYOR, $7.50.

REGULA BADDUN, going in much improved form, was rushed into lead, opened wide gap and just galloped along, winning nicely in hand. SCREEN came with a rush on the inside and was second in final stride. PRYOR was hustled along from the start. DIXIE PRINCESS was well up all the way. BELIEVER closed a big gap. FRED ALMY lacked speed. JUSTA PLAY stumbled and almost fell shortly after the start.

DAILY DOUBLE (FIRST AND THIRD RACES) PAID $61 90.

FOURTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and up; maidens. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:35. Off at 3:44. Winner, Mrs. W. Knapp's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROCKY PRINCE, $7.10, $4.20, $3.30; BEST POLICY, $7.10, $6.10. PEACE MOVE, $4.30.

ROCKY PRINCE was rushed to the front, raced SEEDLING into defeat and held on gamely. BEST POLICY, well up, ran good race. PEACE MOVE moved up with a rush around turn, but was weakly ridden through stretch. COGARTOWN closed a big gap. LADY GRANDACE was timidly ridden all the way. SEEDLING had speed for half a mile.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $800 added. The Istokpoga Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:14. Off at 4:18½. Winner, Joseph E. Widener's blk. c. (3), by Sickle—Fire Play. Trained by D. E. Stewart. Value to winner, $695; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:06 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOSE, $15.10, $5.30, $4.50; ADOLF, $5.20, $3.20; SOUTHERN WAY, $5.10.

HOSE, displayed a wonderful turn of speed, raced ARMFUL into submission in the first half mile, drew away in final furlong, but was doing his very best to win. ADOLF, slow to get into his stride, came with a rush and ran a smart race. SOUTHERN WAY, well up for a quarter mile, then dropped back, but came with a rush and finished very fast on inside. CHANCER lacked early speed, was taken to the inside stretch and finished with a rush. SUNANAIR finished gamely. ARMFUL tired.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $700; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start poor. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:50. Off at 4:53½. Winner, Miss A. Doris' b. g. (4), by Haste—Stephanie. Trained by H. L. Campbell. Value to winner, $525; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 1:10 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GREAT HASTE, $12.80, $7.70, $6.20; MISS RAINBOW, $8.70, $5.10; KINGS PLEASURE, $6.90.

GREAT HASTE worked his way up under a strong ride, came around field in stretch and won going away. MISS RAINBOW displayed good speed, ran into contention at once and made a game effort. KING'S PLEASURE displayed good speed and held on well. MUCHO GUSTO quit badly in last sixteenth. CANTERBOY came from far back with a rush. CROWNING GLORY was outrun. SEMAPHORE had early speed.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:19. Off at 5:21. Winner, Erindale Stable's b. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUSLET, $15 50, $5.30, $3.40; MOVE FASTER, $12.50, $8.90; PAY RACK, $8.30.

MUSLET broke well, but dropped back going around first turn. She began to move up in run down back stretch, assumed lead entering stretch and won going away. MOVE FASTER displayed keen speed and held on well. PAY RACK opened wide gap, but stopped badly. SMEAR, closed very fast. HIGH FINANCE had flash of early speed. BLACK WATCH was outrun.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $700; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:48. Off at 5:51. Winner, W. E. Hupp's b. f. Deplores The Way Coaches Deplore Football Drinking

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—It is perhaps a little late to refer back to the meeting of football coaches held in our town a few weeks ago, but what with one thing and another, I never did get around to deploring the coaches' deploration of whisky drinking in the football stands at their football games, and if it is all the same to you, I would like to sling a few words because I am very fond of deploring, especially when somebody else has deplored before me, because then the ground is broken, and I do not think it fair that I should be cheated out of my two cents worth. I think that it is a very wonderful thing that the coaches have finally turned their attention to the evils of drinking in the stands, a matter which was obviously called to their attention by the well-oiled gentleman from Jersey who ran down from the stands and played one play against Princeton on the Dartmouth line.

The coaches did a good job with their deploring. They deplored not only the actions of the famous twelfth man, but also the attitude of the press, the members of which laughed raucously and made cracks. The coaches felt that if the press were less inclined to make light of these football drunks it would be a better thing for this country. My conscience tells me that I have sinned greatly in this respect and I feel that the shot fits.

But I never dreamed that I was angering the football coaches with these light-hearted articles, and you may be sure that I will never do so again. The next time I see a drunk on a football field you may be certain that all you will get from me will be a stiff sermon on the evils of drinking. That is, if I am sober enought to write it. You see, I feel particularly upset about the way the coaches feel because I so often get drunk at football games myself.

I DO not mean to do this, because I am really a very temperate person and I am always sorry the next day, especially when I read my story, but the coaches will play their games in weather not fit for man or beast, and the colleges that hire the coaches stow the press in open, unheated press boxes, exposed to wind, rain, hail and snow.

I do not drink on warm days or when it is dry, and I do not think many other people do, either. For instance, I do not recall seeing any drunks or rowdyism at the Southern Methodist-Texas Christian game at Fort Worth, where the weather was balmy and a bright sun shone throughout the game. I maintain that all of the drinking at football games here in the East and in the Midwest is purely medicinal (as in my own case). The colleges think nothing of inconveniencing 80,000 people who have paid from $2.20 to $4.40 to see a football game by making them sit in uncovered stands in rain and snowstorms because they do not care to postpone football games to Sunday. If the professionals can play on Sunday without frying in Gehenna, I am sure the amateurs can, too.

It has always seemed to me that the attitude of the universities, particularly on big games that are sold out a week in advance, is that the dough is in the till—to hell with the public. Go ahead and play the game. The customers don't have to come if they don't want to do so. The only redress the public has is to get stiff in self-protection and tear down the goal posts.

I HAVE been hoping all these years to see a football crowd, after sitting through a cold downpour for two and a half hours to watch two teams slide around in the mud, get stiff enough trying to keep warm and alive, to tear the university down with the goal posts. Then, maybe, the boys would do something about giving the public a break.

The trouble with medicinal drinking as compared to social drinking is that the alcoholic content of the spirit is the same and all people do not react the same. It is a great problem also when drinking medicinally, to be able to tell exactly when you have been sufficiently healed to leave off. It calls for fine judgment, especially in my own case where I am required to do a job of work.

The glass-inclosed steam-heated press boxes of the Midwest solve this problem automatically. But the burrows of Yale, Princeton, Harvard and New York, high in the teeth of the wind and exposed to weather make it almost imperative to work with a pint in one hand. However, I sympathize with the coaches and am willing to take the pledges, as I know the football public would be, too, if the coaches or the colleges would fix it so that they either wouldn't have to sit in the open in pneumonia weather or could be afforded some protection.

Tech, Central To Compete In Event

By John R. Vosburgh.

DOWN in Richmond right now some people might be thinking Eastern High went and put a chip on its shoulder and then backed out when somebody (John Marshall High, of Richmond) knocked it off.

As a matter of fact, Eastern did throw John Marshall a challenge to play it in basketball tomorrow at the University of Richmond basketball carnival, but now finds it can't back it up. John Marshall, to make matters worse, has accepted the challenge.

But the Richmond people will be doing Eastern a great injustice if they think Mr. Charles Guyon's basketball players are running out. That is not the case at all. The reason Eastern can't play John Marshall is because it hasn't enough money to make the trip to Richmond.

Hasn't Necessary $75.

The school finds it hasn't $75 to shell out for a train trip to Richmond, and it feels the weather conditions don't warrant sending the team by automobile. Eastern has plenty of reason for wanting to meet John Marshall, since it was the Richmond team which upset Eastern in the Washington and Lee tournament last year. Coach Guyon, however, hopes the teams can meet again in March—at the same tournament.

In the meantime, Tech and Central's basketball teams have gone ahead with their plans to take part in the carnival. Tech will play either Thomas Jefferson High, of Richmond, or Newport News High. Central will play Benedictine Prep, which it defeated, 35 to 34, last year in the carnival.

Both Tech and Central teams will leave by automobile for Richmond tomorrow morning. Eastern will be playing the Heurich Senate Beer team instead tomorrow night, as preliminary to the New York Celtics-Heurich Brewer game, at the Heurich gymnasium.

Eastern sort of wishes it hadn't written those letters to the carnival committee, asking that it be allowed to play John Marshall, but it wants it definitely understood why it isn't going. Eastern beat John Marshall in the carnival last year, 35 to 24.

Roosevelt to Play Temple Freshmen

Roosevelt High's basketball team will embark on a big game expedition this morning, bent for Philadelphia where tonight it will stalk the Temple University freshmen. Eastern High's cagers also will take a trip today to Bethesda, Md., where the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High team will form the opposition.

Tech High will meet the invasion of Southern High of Baltimore tonight in the Tech gymnasium, aiming to avenge a 1-point defeat inflicted upon it in Baltimore last month. Meanwhile, Central and Western will be working out this afternoon, Central preparing for its Richmond Carnival game tomorrow, Western for its game Wednesday with Friends School.

The following Roosevelt players will make the trip to Temple: Francis Beamer, Spiro Kolius, Ed Thompson, Harry Silverman, George and Francis Coakley, Daly, Comer, Fogel and McPherson. Coach Herman Littman and Manager Frank Witt will accompany the squad. Departure will be made at 9 a. m. from the school.

Armstrong, Douglass To Clash Here Today

The South Atlantic High School Basketball Conference, consisting of teams from Wilmington, Baltimore, Annapolis, Manassas and Washington, will open at 3:15 p. m. today in the Terrell Junior High gym when the Armstrong cagers clash with Douglass, of Baltimore.

In a preliminary game the Armstrong Jayvees will match their court-work against that of the Douglass junior varsity team. More than 100 Douglass undergrads will witness the doubleheader.

Notice: Bovello Plumbers

The manager of the Bovello Plumbers is asked to call the Alexandria Fire Department basketball team's manager, Alexandria 510, concerning the game scheduled between the two teams to be played tonight at the Alexandria Armory.

Swimmers Vie Here for 4 U. S. Titles

FOUR national championships in swimming will be decided in Washington during 1936, the District A. A. U. announced yesterday. The men's and women's junior national outdoor diving championships, the women's junior national 300-yard medley championships and the men's junior national 300-yard medley championships will be held here.

Assignment of the four championships to the Capital by the National A. A. U. reveals intensive continuance of the District A. A. U. to make Washington more and more a center for competitive swimming. In bringing here the junior national diving championships for men and women last year, the junior national 220-yard men's breast-stroke championships and the junior national water polo tournament, the local organization was more than passably successful in 1935.

New High for District.

The coming season, however, will mark a new high for the sport in Washington from a national standpoint. Never before have four national titles been decided in Washington pools. A. Earle Weeks, chairman of the A. A. U. swimming committee, has been instrumental in bringing the national events here.

In securing the 300-yard medley swim for women, Weeks is giving Washington one of the country's big races. The District is retaining the diving championships which drew throngs to Glen Echo and Takoma pools last year. Helen Madison, of Chicago, and Northwestern University, won the women's title and James Patterson, of Ohio State University, and San Francisco, won the men's championship.

The 300-yard medley relay for men will be held February 1 at the Shoreham pool. The dates for the three other championships have not been decided. The men's diving will be held, however, at the Glen Echo pool and the women's diving at the Maryland Club Gardens pool.

Two Pin Events Carded Here Tomorrow

U. S. Stakes, Star Roll-Off Slated; Special Event at Rosslyn Tonight.

WASHINGTON will be the bowling center of the country tomorrow afternoon and night, with the eyes of the Nation's major duckpin experts being focused on the fifth annual United States sweepstakes crown and the rich cash prize to the victor and the usual tension aroused in the roll-off of the Evening Star tournament qualifiers. The first event calls for 15 games and will be rolled at the Convention Hall, while the latter will be held at the Lucky Strike.

Tonight at the Rosslyn alleys, the famous Connecticut Blue Ribbons will halt on their way to the Capital, prior to their participation in the United States stakes, to engage the Rosslyn All-Stars in a special five-game match, singles and doubles. Nick Tronsky, the No. 1 ranking bowler of the country; Jack White, the defending champion of the United States Sweepstakes; Bozo Dente, Wally Pipp and Mike Bogino, will carry the Connecticut banner, being opposed by a team of high-ranking stars whose ability is highly respected; Joe Freschi, claimant of the District No. 1 ranking; Russ Spilman and Paul Jarman, Atlantic Coast doubles champions; Galt Davis and Whip Litchfield.

The match will start at 8 o'clock, following which Nick Tronsky will roll Joe Freschi in the singles, and Spillman and Litchfield will engage two of the visiting team, not yet selected, in the doubles.

The United States Sweepstakes is expected to attract about 25 of the country's major bowlers, the Blue Ribbons team rolling intact, with the possible exception of Jack White, the defending champion, who has complained of a back injury. Ray Von Dreele, Ray Felter, Doc Pickus and Johnny Miller will come down from Baltimore; Bill Arnold will represent Annapolis, and Richmond will be represented by Gordon Caldwell and Norfolk by Steve (Sugar) Kane.

Washington will be ably represented by Astor Clarke and Joe Harrison, second and third ranking bowlers, respectively; Ollie Pacini, Perce Wolfe, Joe Freschi, "Hokie" Smith and others.

The first block will be rolled at 1 p. m., the second at 4 and the final at 8.

Wild Life Meeting To Be Held Today

The first meeting of the citizens' committee for the North American Wild Life Conference will be held today to draw up a definite program for the international meeting.

The conference, designed to bring about closer co-operation between public and private interests and between Canada, Mexico and the United States in the interests of restoration and conservation, has been called by the President to meet in Washington February 3 to 7, inclusive.

The program will include discussions of the crisis in the wild-life situation, the place of education in wild-life restoration, co-operation between Federal, State and local agencies and private organizations, and kindred subjects.

The citizens' committee, which is headed by E. A. Silcox, chief forester, is composed of the following members:

Secretaries Ickes, Wallace and Roper, respectively; Lucille Petry, Elliott S. Barker, president International Association of Game, Fish and Conservation Commissioners, Santa Fe, N. Mex.; Frank T. Bell, United States Commissioner of Fisheries; president American Fisheries Society; Arthur B. Cammerer, director National Park Service; Charles Clarke, jr., chairman Conservation Committee, United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, Jacksonville, Fla.; Powel Crosley, jr., president Crosley Radio Corporation, Cincinnati, chairman of the Executive Committee, American Wildlife Institute; Jay N. Darling, former chief of the United States Bureau of Biological Survey, Des Moines, Iowa; William L. Finley, member Migratory Bird Advisory Board, Portland, Oreg.; Ira N. Gabrielson, chief of United States Bureau of Biological Survey; Col. H. S. Graves, president American Forestry Association, New Haven, Conn.; Dr. John A. Hartwell, More Game Birds in America, New York City; J. K. Kinnear, president Associated Fishing Tackle Manufacturers, Geneva, Ohio; Mrs. Robert Campbell Lawson, president General Federation of Women's Clubs, Tulsa, Okla.; Nathan Moran, sportsman-conservationist, member Migratory Bird Advisory Board, San Francisco, Calif.; Frank E. Mullen, chairman Radio Conservation Council, New York City; Edward A. O'Neal, president American Farm Bureau Federation, Birmingham, Ala.; I. T. Quinn, chairman National Committee on Wildlife Legislation, Montgomery, Ala.; Kermit Roosevelt, president National Association of Audubon Societies, New York City; E. A. Taber, president National Grange, Columbus, Ohio; C. A. Wheatley, member executive board Izaak Walton League, trustee American Wildlife Institute, San Antonio, Tex.; Judge George W. Wood, president Izaak Walton League of America, Waterloo, Iowa.

Canada and Mexico also have been invited to name ten members each.

Famed Celtics Invade D. C. Tomorrow

Play Heurich in First of Two Game Series at Local Gym.

IT will be age against youth tomorrow night when the world-famed New York Celtics meet the Heurich Pros in the brewery gym, but if past basketball records mean anything it will be youth that will have to take a back seat.

Scheduled at 7:30 p. m. Saturday and again at 3:30 p. m. Sunday, the New Yorkers, one of the greatest aggregations of court stars ever assembled, will strive to show Washingtonians just what a really great basketball team looks like.

Two Preliminaries.

Two preliminary contests will augment the Saturday night program. The championship Eastern High quintet will meet Senate Beers in a return game. The high school team licked the combined talent of several high schools last Saturday and the crack amateur quintet is looking for revenge. This game will begin at 7 p. m.

Mount Rainier Five to Play G. W. High

ALEXANDRIA, Va., Jan. 2.—George Washington High School's basket ball team resumes its heavy schedule tomorrow afternoon where it left off before the Christmas vacation. The opposition will be furnished by Mount Rainier High School at 4 p. m. in the local gymnasium.

Playing the December section of their schedule, the Presidents defeated Mount Rainier, Washington-Lee, Western and Roosevelt, before their streak was stopped by McKinley Tech in their last game. Tomorrow they will be attempting to regain their winning stride at the expense of the Marylanders.

Due to their previous victory over the invaders, the Presidents will be slight favorites. In the Mount Rainier gymnasium they triumphed by a score of 35 to 23.

Coach Givens probably will start the same five who have been so successful in the early games on the schedule. Two veterans, Ben Burrell and Tommy Ennis, are slated for the forward berths. Burrell has led the five in scoring since the opening of the season.

Catholic U. Begins Sightseeing Trips

the Cardinals and tomorrow there will be deep-sea fishing, more tennis, swimming and sightseeing. The team is scheduled to leave at 9 p. m. tomorrow, arriving home late Saturday night.

While newspapermen and fans continued to heap praise upon the backs who did the ball carrying in yesterday's thrilling 20-19 victory over Mississippi, the players themselves singled out Joe Yanchulis, center, as the real hero of the game. They pointed out that Yanchulis, and not the right side of the line, blocked the punt which was converted into the winning touchdown.

Joe, they say, has been the most consistently overlooked player on the squad all season. He played a brilliant game yesterday, but it was not extraordinary for him as he did yeoman duty all year, particularly on the defense where his talents were best appreciated. Yanchulis himself refused to be lionized by his mates. He is quiet and retiring, the kind of a boy who leaves the talking to others, whose actions are far more eloquent than words.

That Miami intends to make its Orange Bowl game one of next year's truly outstanding sports spectacles was indicated today by the news that horse racing which drew 15,000 fans, will be banned in deference to the grid battle, for the day. The mayor and city council intend to pass a city ordinance to this effect.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE District of Columbia, holding an equity term as a District Court of the United States, in the matter of the acquisition of all of Assessment and Taxation Lot 817, in the rear 24 feet of Assessment and Taxation Lot 805 and the rear 24 feet of Assessment and Taxation Lot 806 in Square 785 in the City of Washington, District of Columbia. District Court Docket No. 2379. Filed December 18, 1935. Frank E. Cunningham, clerk. Order of citation. Upon consideration of the petition of the United States of America filed herein on the 18th day of December, 1935, by Leslie C. Garnett, United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, acting under the instructions of the Attorney General of the United States and at the request of the Alley Dwelling Authority created under and by virtue of the District of Columbia Alley Dwelling Act, approved June 12, 1934, c. 465 (48 Stat. 930), seeking the condemnation of the following described land in the City of Washington, District of Columbia:

Parcel I—Part of Original Lot 12 in Square 785 in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, described as follows: Beginning for the same at a point 13 feet west from the southeast corner of said lot and running thence west 13 feet 6½ inches; thence north 53 feet 3 inches; thence east 13 feet 6½ inches and thence south 53 feet 3 inches to the beginning, known for the purposes of assessment and taxation as Lot 817 in said Square 785 and improved by premises No. 313 Douglas Court, Northeast. Said parcel to be taken free and discharged of the perpetual right of way for alley purposes over the following portion thereof: Beginning for the same at a point 1 inch west from the southeast corner of said Original Lot, and thence north 53 feet 3 inches, thence west 2 feet 6 inches, thence south 53 feet 3 inches and thence east 2 feet 6 inches to the beginning, for the use of the owners of premises No. 313 B Street, Northeast;

Parcel II—The rear or north 24 feet by the full width of the East one-half of Original Lot 3 in Square 785 in the City of Washington, District of Columbia, said East one-half of said Original Lot 3 being now known for purposes of assessment and taxation as Lot 806 in Square 785, Said rear or north portion of said Lot 805, containing 396.4 square feet, is improved by premises No. 318 Douglas Court, Northeast;

Why George! The idea. Barging into this stateroom without even knocking.
So sorry, Mrs. Bungle. We can come back later to look at the map.
Hartford and I were talking about where his dad buried the treasure, and we decided to get the map.
Poor old dad. He was so...
The map? Oh Mr. Eldorado has that.
What! Monty has it! By jove, that's...I mean.. ah this is quite a surprise, Mrs...
When did Monty get his hooks on it, Jo?
I gave it to him long before we sailed.
Really? Well I don't know just what to say. I mean...I knew nothing about it until now, and...
This is what a surprise to me, too, Jo. Just how did?
I can't argue now. While I'm dressing. I'll see you about it later. Maybe.

Culbertson on Bridge

A hand reported in a bridge magazine of Great Britain has drawn my ever-roving eye. It was played in an important team-of-four match and would have resulted in a large "swing" except for the curious fact that both teams made the same egregious blunder in the bidding.

I am using it as an illustration of a shocking overcall.

NORTH
♠ None
♥ 7 5 3
♦ K J 5 4
♣ K J 9 8 4 2

WEST
♥ K J 9
♦ Q 9 3 6 2

EAST
♠ K 7 5
♥ A 6 4
♦ A 10

SOUTH
♠ J 10 9 6 4 2
♥ Q 10 8 2
♦ 7 3
♣ 5

The bidding:

Especially with a partner who has passed first hand, North's two club overcall is the sort of bid that not only invites but actually demands severe punishment. How could North possibly fail to see that a club bid on his part would be 99 per cent certain to evoke a spade bid by his partner? His hand, assuming the diamond bid to have been honest, is fitted to the play of only one suit, clubs, and even that would depend on some club strength in the South hand. I cannot point out too often, or too emphatically, that when a player has the opponents' suit, he must be more than usually chary of overcalling.

The two spade contract was, of course, slaughtered. West opened his singleton club; East won and returned a low club. South ruffed high and West overruffed with the queen. West now led the nine of hearts, which his partner won with the ace and a heart return gave the defenders two more tricks.

The declarer guessed the position of the diamond ace, playing the jack from dummy on West's next lead of that suit. East's ace won and the club ace was led. Again declarer ruffed high and again West over-ruffed. With only four spades, the J, 6, 4, 3, left, declarer found himself in the dummy. He ruffed a diamond, and led the thirteenth heart, which the opponents ruffed. The spade jack had to be conceded for the third trick of an eight-trick contract.
